A High-Rise Fire

More than $50,000 damage was caused by a fire on the sixth floor of the Pembroke One office building Saturday night. An estimated 50 firemen from the Davis Corner, Thalia, Beach, Borough, Chesapeake Beach, and Kempsville fire departments were on the scene for more than four hours. Firemen Bob Stepen and Tom Cooney were treated for smoke inhalation, and fireman Mike Wade received a rib injury. The firm of Pembroke Associates moved into the sixth floor Saturday morning. ## Happiness Is 3 Cub Scouts

The three Cub Scouts who missed a chance at getting Julie and David Eisenhower's autographs have wiped away their frowns with grins from ear to ear. They not only have the autographs, but enlarged color photographs of the young couple as well.

Presentation of the pictures was made during last week's meeting of Pack 378 and Cubes Sidney Hassel, Cholley Fishel and Mark Lowe were about as surprised as any youngsters could be.

It all started with a recent VIP program at Dam Neck. A large group of scouts in PAVAB were on hand to pin some of the military officials. When Ensign Eisenhower and his wife made an unexpected visit to the base, where he is in training, the three young scouts had the honor of pinning the couple. Sidney, Cholley and Mark were so overwhelmed, however, they completely forgot to ask for autographs. They later suffered much remorse—and might embarrassment among their friends—at the oversight.

Preliminary Judging Is Saturday

Preliminary judging of the Miss Virginia Beach contestants will be held Saturday at the Windjammer Motor Lodge starting at 11 a.m. About 20 contestants are presently registered with the Chamber of Commerce and others are expected to apply before Saturday.

Each of the contestants will be required to present a sample of their talent and be interviewed by a screening committee composed of chamber members and a former beauty queen.

From the larger group of applicants, the committee will select about 12 girls to compete in the Miss Virginia Beach Pageant to be held May 29 at Princess Anne High School at 8 p.m. brought the boys' plight to the attention of the Virginia Beach Sun and a public plea to the Eisenhowers for the autographs appeared in the April 1, 1970, issue.

Soon, after, John Griffin, general manager of the Sun, received a special envelope from the White House. In it were the three pictures, each inscribed with a personalized note from Julie.

The treasures were kept secret until the next Pack meeting when John Griffin surprised the youngsters with their gifts. It was, indeed, a happy day for Sidney, Cholley and Mark. And for Mrs. Mosley and the Virginia Beach Sun for having played a part in their happiness.

Group To Aid Boys

The Big Brother movement, the one-man-to-one-boy concept for youths who lack a father, or father image, in their lives, is coming to Virginia Beach.

A group of 34 board members held a kick-off function last week at the Capes to introduce the new program and to solicit the help of prominent businessmen. Come June, the board members will go into a public solicitation for the project.

The goal is to raise $30,000 so that the program might survive for two years when it is expected to be taken over by the United Communities Fund. The first year's expenses will go to salaries for an executive director, a man experienced in youth work, his secretary and for office expenses. Interviews for the director's position will be held in June. The board anticipates expenditures of about $23,000 for the first year of operation.

This would provide "a cushion to go into the next year," said architect Wiley Cooke, one of the board members.

Once the financial problems are out of the way, the group will seek adult male volunteers (ages 21 and over) to serve as Big Brothers. These men will take on a one-man-to-one-boy relationship with a youngster between 8 and 17 years of age who lacks a father image in his home, whether it be in a home broken by divorce or death, or in a military home in which the father is absent much of the time.

Volunteers for Big Brothers will be carefully screened by a committee in as much as each Brother role demands a great responsibility. A volunteer will assume interest in the boy assigned him, assisting in his school, sports and home life, until the boy reaches the age (about 17) of personal responsibility.

Officers of Big Brothers of Virginia Beach, Inc. are Howard Gill chairman; Algy Cohen, vice chairman; Ed Phillips, secretary; Bob Mciver, treasurer; and Tom Lee, fund raising chairman.

Open House

The public is invited to an "Open House" celebration Sunday at the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Department headquarters building on Shore Drive near the Lynnhaven Bridge.

Refreshments will be served to those attending between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Mrs. Julie Nixon Eisenhower, caught in the glare of television lights during her first official public appearance, is flanked by student co-chairmen Jack Revell and Ellen Overman.

President's Daughter Is Guest At Arts Festival

There was much excitement Monday night about the opening of the Second Annual Virginia Beach Festival of Visual and Performing Arts, and Mrs. Julie Nixon Eisenhower was very much a part of that excitement.

President Nixon's youngest daughter, wife of Ensign David Eisenhower who is presently in training at Dam Neck, slipped unobtrusively into the front row just prior to curtain time, sitting, not with the many dignitaries, but with the young people.

It was the first function in Virginia Beach Mrs. Eisenhower had accepted on an official basis. She was expected to attend the reception held at First Colonial High School prior to the festival opening at the Civic Center. But the plans were changed Monday morning and she appeared instead at the festival itself...much to the delight of the young people. The lovely young girl, who immediately blended in with those around her despite the glare of television lights and camera flashbulbs, was flanked on one side by Jack Revell of Kempsville High School and Ellen Overman of First Colonial, student co-chairmen of the festival. Her interest was turned toward the students as she ignored the flurry of excitement her entrance had caused.

After a welcome by Mayor Donald Rhodes and the introduction of guests by Superintendent of Schools, E. E. Brickell, Jim Anderson of First Colonial took over as master of ceremonies. The program offered everything from original poetry by Mike Wade of Kempsville to ballet, piano and banjo solos to songs from "The Sound of Music" by Princess Anne High School students. The festival will continue

Jury to Probe Bribe

Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans said Wednesday he had been advised of City Council's request for a Grand Jury investigation into an alleged plot to discredit City Manager Roger Scott but made no indication of when a panel would be called.

Councilman Frank Dusch called for the investigation at Monday's meeting after reading an excerpt from a Norfolk newspaper which stated that Scott had "found it necessary recently to report to Mayor Rhodes and Commonwealth's Atty. Andre Evans the details of an alleged plot against him."

Scott supported the article's claims that he had been informed by a contractor who said he (the contractor) had been offered $2,000 to build without the required permits so that, when stopped, he could say Scott had been paid to allow the construction.

Mayor Rhodes said Scott informed him of the plot and he advised the city manager

Council Faces Sign Ordinance

"I cannot approve it," Carrington says

The controversial sign ordinance which was revised and approved last month by the Planning Commission will come before City Council next Monday, but it won't carry the blessings of the Planning Department.

Planning Director Charles Carrington told council Monday, in a briefing session following the regular weekly meeting, that the revised ordinance is "so different from the original that my department will not endorse it."

He also said that "as a professional planner, I cannot approve it."

Carrington said the present ordinance, as revised, increased the size and height of all signs and is so loosely worded it destroys most of the restrictions.

"The original ordinance was structured tightly so as not to allow building permits," he said. "Now the signs are in control. In fact, the ordinance to be presented to you states that building permits will be required."

"The purpose of a restrictive ordinance, he explained, was to relieve council of any action other than changes of zoning."

"I don't believe we should be in a position of picking billboard locations through building permits," Councilman Reid Ervin commented.

Dr. Clarence Holland said that such restrictions would "get the decision off our backs but would put City Council in a position of going to the department heads with the complaints of citizens."

City Manager Roger Scott added that no matter how tight the ordinance might be the city would "still have to have council's consideration on borderline cases."

The Planning Department was not consulted when the revised ordinance was drawn up, Carrington said. "Those recommendations came from the Planning Commission's sign committee and I was not advised of the changes until the briefing session just prior to the public hearing."

He said that the changes when, individually, were not too drastic but "collectively they water down the whole purpose of the

Little Theatre's 'Our Town' at the Lake Wright

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre production of the Thornton Wilder classic "Our Town" will be presented tonight and Friday at the Lake Wright Dinner Playhouse.

Dinner will be served at 7 p.m., followed by the stage presentation at 8:30 p.m. The Little Theatre has been taking this production into the high schools, primarily for the junior high students, for the past few weeks as part of its cooperative efforts with the schools to dramatize works being studied in the regular curriculum. The first was "Death of a Salesman", the Arthur Miller drama, which was presented for the high school students before its public showings.

This will be the first public showings of "Our Town". The play deals with the daily lives of people in a small New England town, using only a minimum of sets and props, calling more on the imagination of the audience for its effectiveness.

Mrs. Vickie Grussendorf is the director with Mac McManus as the Stage Manager, the narrator of the story of love, life and death, and the understanding of life's existence.

The main roles are portrayed by Alan Barber as Dr. Gibbs, Theresa Worrall as Mrs. Gibbs, Mike Hamblin as Mr. Webb, Merle Anne Fetz as Mrs. Webb, Sheila Hoffman as Emily Webb and Gary McFatter as George Gibbs.

Other members of the cast include Laura Hauck, Mark Worrall, Mark Grussendorf, Paul Worrall, Phil Uhler, Peggy MacArthur, Jim English, Ian Goodwin, Mike Moran, Sally Warren, Georgia Barber and Karen English.

The collection, all by American artists, have been assembled by the museum's new curator, Edward Jones of Richmond.

A special showing will be held Friday evening for invited guests.

'Hello Dolly' at Cox

Just wearing the same costume as Carol Channing, when she starred in "Hello Dolly" should be incentive for Stephanie Schroeder to give a terrific performance when she stars in the Cox High School production of the musical May 6, 7, 8.

The costumes were rented from New York and they're hoping that some of the magic from the long-running highly successful musical will rub off on the students when they put on those costumes for the first performance tonight.

So successful was last year's show that they played to standing room only audiences. This year they're hoping even more people will attend.

James E. Garret is directing; William E. Boyll is technical director, Miss Susan Lohr and Mrs. Marcia Olsen are faculty advisers, Marie Collins is handling lights. The elaborate set was designed by Sharon Rork. Student director is Liz MacKay.

For tickets, which are $1.50 in advance, $2 at the door, see Sherry Vann or the student accounting office. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

Special Olympics May 15

It will be a first for Virginia when the "Special Olympics" is held May 15 at Foreman Field from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The program, inaugurated in 1968 to give retarded children a feeling of recognition and belonging, will occur throughout 49 states and Canada. On May 10, Gov. Holton will announce the formal proclamation of "Special Olympics Week."

There will be competition of track and field events, swimming, and free exercise. A parade of athletes at 9 a.m. will precede the events. Professional athletes and dignitaries will attend. Admission is free. Medals will be awarded and each participating child will receive a special medal. Sports clinics will be held on the side lines to instruct and occupy the children until their event takes place.

The Norfolk Fire Department will have a fire engine available for the children to examine.

Dr. Sidney Sward is state director. Donations if desired may be sent to Virginia Special Olympics, 4420 Chelsea St., Va. Beach, 23455.

was first proposed by Morrow and has become a strong issue in his campaign. The meeting in Boston with John Ryan is for "a more detailed briefing on the program," he said.

The Massachusetts program, which went into effect Jan. 1, applies only to compulsory bodily injury coverage. It provides that claims under $2,000 be paid by a motorist's own insurer regardless of fault in the accident and eliminates such claims as pain and suffering unless medical expenses are more than $500.

Massachusetts Governor Francis W. Sargent has estimated the impact of no-fault insurance will reduce premiums for bodily injury insurance by 25 per cent.

"It remains to be seen if we can realize such savings here," Morrow said Tuesday, "but, as a businessman and a person active in the insurance field, I feel compelled to make this trip."

The candidate will also attend a hearing today in the Massachusetts Supreme Court on the constitutional challenge of the plan.

Fellowship Day Friday

The theme of May Fellowship Day is "Focus on the Family in a New Era." It will be held Friday at 11 a.m. at First Presbyterian Church.

They will discuss "Is the Family, as we have Known It, Disintegrating?" Mrs. Louise Wilson will be the moderator. The panelists will answer questions from three representatives of the congregation.

Guy 'Refuses to Knuckle'

By Howard Swindle
Dedicating campaign headquarters only blocks from his Chesapeake Colony home, Del. Richard Guy told more than 100 backers Tuesday he will "refuse to knuckle under to political domination."

Guy, a one-term member of the House of Delegates who hopes to unseat Sen. Ned Cato, accused his opponent of creating "the illusion of a political booby-man" in his background. "They try to make people think that because my wife is an Italian I automatically make a villain of me," Guy said. The 39-year-old independent said Cato and his backers are "clearly part of a political conspiracy designed to exclude qualified business and professional people from public office in Virginia Beach."

Guy strongly reemphasized in a prepared statement his stand as an independent candidate for the state senate. "Two years ago I ran for office completely free of any ties to any political organization or machine whatsoever," he said. "I was and I am vehemently opposed to political machines."

Cato and his supporters have claimed Guy is backed by a political machine headed by Sidney Kellam.

Guy who termed horse racing in Virginia Beach the "overriding issue," said its legalization would "create new jobs, stimulate the city's over-all economy, and provide new tax revenues to help finance our local schools and state mental institutions."

"Horse racing can and will be tightly controlled by the state in much the same way as the ABC Board controls the sale of liquor," Guy said. As a legislator, he sponsored the creation of a horse racing study commission which will make its recommendation later this year.

Other key campaign issues listed by Guy include anti-pollution measures, creation of False Cape State Park, surfing at the state-owned Camp Pendleton and the creation of a drug rehabilitation center in Virginia Beach.

Team Off to Tournery

Members of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Volleyball Club left Tuesday to compete in a national tournament in Birmingham, N. Y. The tournament will end Friday.

The Virginia Beach Masters, as they are known, will be among 185 teams from all over the U. S. and Mexico vying for top position in four categories: the collegiates (the younger men), the open (middle group), masters (those over 35), and women's.

The team composed of Harry Pincus Jr., an attorney; Dr. Roger Viser, an orthodontist; Monroe Farmer, a building materials firm executive; Joseph Stallings, a teacher; Solomon Atkinson, demolition expert at Little Creek; and Mel Koch, flight maintenance officer at Oceana.

They were given a royal send-off Thursday morning at the Ramada Inn on Newtown Road by Virginia Beach Mayor Donald Rhodes and Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin.

Twine Heads VSA

Chairman of the 1970 East Coast Surfing Competition, R. S. (Buddy) Twine, Jr., has been named chairman of the 1971 Executive Committee for the Virginia Surfing Association.

Twine, a charter director of the VSA, was also a director with the Jaycees last year.

Serving with him are Peter M. Smith, vice chairman; L. D. Tuck Finley, III, treasurer; Russell Adams, secretary. All are charter directors of the VSA.

The VSA, organized last year to give surfers a "fair shake," is a non-profit association, it successfully engineered the necessary approval for the ECSC to be held at Camp Pendleton last year. In addition, it sponsored a number of beach clean-ups and conducted a mass membership at the Steel Pier which attracted over 4,000 young surfers.

Its organized leadership sponsored numerous trips to Richmond to meet with the Governor, the Adjutant General and Beach representatives to secure a portion of Camp Pendleton for an all-day surfing park.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 428-8513.

Famous Healers Draw Capacity Crowds

They came from all walks of life, the young and the old, the successful and the modest, to gather in the presence of two people, a retired couple, who professed to have spiritual healing powers.

The sun was brilliant outside, the beach was a hub of activity, boats were cavorting carefree about the bays. Inside Friends Meeting it was subdued and dimly lit; opened windows made it too cool, closed ones to stifling. But the capacity group cared little that outside life was engrossed in its own pleasures. They were there in faith, and perhaps curiosity, to hear the words of Olga and Ambrose Worrall, internationally famous healers and psychics.

And they apparently were not disappointed. The famous couple was low-key in presentation and charming in manner. They offered an understanding, a knowledge of life to those who wished to share and made only vague attempts to convince anyone of their own particular beliefs.

During the four public sessions over the week-end, they stressed one thing...man is what he thinks. They were not here to publicize their particular gifts through spectacular healings. They were here to teach those who listened that each individual controls his own health, hence his own destiny, through proper thinking. They emphasized healing of the mind, body and spirit by placing the responsibility on the individual himself.

Ambrose Worrall, an Englishman and a highly successful engineer, is the author of "The Gift of Healing," in which he tells of the experiences of both him and his wife in the healing of people through faith, and "Explore Your Psychic World" in which he relates tapes of discussion with scientists on this subject. Olga Worrall, a first generation American-Russian, is a "natural undeveloped psychic," as she explains it, and was instrumental in organizing the New Life Clinic which operates in a Methodist Church in Baltimore, Md.

Worrall, an unassuming and softly-spoken man, warned the group to "let's be careful how we think" because it not only determines what the person is but what the world around him becomes.

"The world is in the shape it's in," he said, "because Man is using his free will in the wrong direction... Individual desire determines a person's personality and character."

Each person, he said, "can live with the laws of health or live with the laws of disease," explaining, "If you want to pick the liver with alcohol, go ahead, I personally don't care to."

His philosophy is based on faith in God and faith in one's self, he said, then explained the "faith" the lack of resistance to that which you wish to receive."

Mrs. Worrall, a vivacious and outspoken woman, took over much of the question and answer periods and was quite adamant in her opinions to the responsive group. She immediately discounted reincarnation, flatly stated she did not believe in the "Edgar Cayce theory," and attacked abortion as "wholesale murder."

"I have been told through psychic experiences that a spiritual body is created at the moment of conception," she said. "An aborted child is a spirit that grows in the spirit world and parents, when they pass on, will see these children. That's why doctors are concerned about abortion."

In answer to a question, she said, "There is nothing wrong in growing up in the spiritual world. The problem is with the guilt that comes later to young people when they begin to realize more about life."

On Saturday night, the Worralls conducted somewhat of a healing service, but their efforts were not of the "coming forward and laying on of hands" type. They chose, instead, to place the names of persons, submitted by the audience, in a basket for a healing prayer. The same principal was used by Mrs. Worrall's New Life Clinic, at which prayers are said at a certain time on a certain day for distressed persons.

The Sunday morning service, held prior to the Friends Meeting's regular service, dealt primarily with what the churches should be doing toward spiritual healing. Worrall stressed that persons today "cannot heal because they are always talking" rather than listening.

A near-capacity crowd turned out Sunday afternoon, as in all the sessions, and an invited group of "less than 20" swelled to about 60 Sunday evening for a display of psychic pictures.

Wofford College basketball coach, Gene Alexander, and First Colonial coach Pat Ricks watch as Bo Killen and Tom Couch sign four-year full grant and aid contracts with Wofford.

Wofford Signs 2 at First Colonial

Head basketball coach, Gene Alexander, representing Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., signed two top stars of First Colonial's basketball team to full grant and aid for four years. Bo Killen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Killen of 603 25th Street, was honorable mention All Tidewater. Playing center, he averaged 14.5 points per game and has an average of 12 rebounds per game. He played on the Jr. Varsity team in his sophomore year and moved up to Varsity team for his junior and senior years.

Tom Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Couch, Sr. of 329 East Farmington Road, has played for the Patriots for four years to complete an impressive statistical career scoring 1,252 points, the first Patriot ever to reach the 1,000 point mark.

Tom averaged 24.5 pts. per game as a junior and ranked 4th in the state.

Coach Alexander said in the interview following the signing of contracts, "I'm very pleased to sign these two young men. I feel they'll play a great deal of basketball for us. They are certainly outstanding, and are the first to be signed by Wofford to scholarships from the Tidewater area."

Coach Pat Ricks congratulated Couch and Killen saying, "They've done a great job for us and will certainly be heard from in the future. Another outstanding player, Ricky Malbon, was signed earlier by Chesapeake College to a full grant and aid. Ricky was the leading Patriot scorer averaging 18.5 pt. per game."

Accompanying Coach Alexander to the Beach was the athletic director and head football coach, Jack Peterson who was here to talk with prospective football players in the area.

Political Clouds

The political clouds hovering over Virginia Beach are becoming as destructive to the health of this growing city as the smog that chokes some of this nation's more industrial communities.

This is not to say that politics is not important. Competition is healthy, provided it is fair and open. A game is sporting so long as the teams play by the rules and respect their opponents.

But no one gains, in politics or in sports, when trust is replaced by suspicion and friendships are destroyed by differences of opinion.

It is indeed frightening when those who wish to be in high office, hint at corruption within the city, accuse each other of unlawful or unethical actions, place self above community welfare. If such things exist, and if there is sufficient proof of their existence, then they should be taken immediately to the proper authorities, not delayed as political maneuvers in the heat of battle.

There has always been name-calling and mud-slinging in politics and there probably always will be. But it is distressing to see this city pulled apart because of a set of political labels.

A man, whether he be elected official or private citizen, should have the right to voice his opinion, to stand firm in his convictions, without every action being interpreted as his political affiliation.

The citizens of Virginia Beach should be the prime interest of all officials, in office or hoping to get there, and politics should be kept in the proper perspective.

Thank You, Julie

A special word of thanks is due to Mrs. Julie Nixon Eisenhower for selecting the Second Annual Virginia Beach Festival of Visual and Performing Arts for her first official public appearance here.

It is significant that she selected a function presented by the young people, a very talented but, unfortunately, little recognized, group of young people. The goal of this festival is to bring attention to youth in a favorable light. That in itself has considerable merit.

Her appearance was not only a tremendous boost to the morale of the adult and student co-ordinators of the festival and those who are participating, but she drew the eyes of Tidewater to the Civic Center and focused attention on a very worthwhile effort which might otherwise have gone unnoticed. This is listed as the "second annual" festival, which is technically correct. A festival was held last year at First Colonial High School and students from all six secondary schools went to great pains to make it a success. But they, primarily, entertained only themselves. There was little response from the public. Even the parents of participating students failed to support their own talented young people.

But this year will hopefully be different. Parents and the general public can hardly turn away from an event which Julie Eisenhower believed important enough to attend. And the headlines she generated for the festival are worth their weight in gold to the young people. So, to the Beach's newly-adopted Mrs. David Eisenhower, those who care about and believe in the young people say "thank you".

Heed Their Call

As volunteer firemen begin their annual fund raising drive it seems very appropriate to urge the residents of Virginia Beach to heed their call for aid in return for the many times these courageous men answer your call for help.

These men never hesitate to take whatever action necessary, many times overcoming what would seem to be insurmountable odds, to protect the lives of residents of the resort city and their property from the ravages of fire.

The importance of the work performed by volunteer firemen was officially recognized by Mayor Donald H. Rhodes and members of City Council in proclaiming the month of May as "Volunteer Firemen Month", and urging residents of the resort city to support these men

In their fund raising campaign. Although the volunteer firemen receive no monetary compensation for their work, and relinquish what little spare time they have from their jobs in defending you and yours from the dangers of fire, no one has ever heard the first bitter word of complaint from any of the volunteers.

A goodly number of residents would also admit to incidences during which their lives or those of loved ones or friends have been saved by the actions of these gallant men. Many such individuals have felt they have no way to thank those who came to their rescue in times of distress, but that is now possible by making a generous contribution when the volunteer firemen of your area contact you during their fund raising campaign.

THIRTEEN SECONDS: CONFRONTATION AT KENT STATE, by Joe Eszterhas and Michael D. Roberts. New York, Dodd, Mead and Company, 1970, $7.50.

THIRTEEN SECONDS is a thorough account of the tragedy that took place at Kent State University on May 4, 1970. The authors, two reporters with the Cleveland Plain Dealer, were on the campus that day. Since then, they have interviewed many people in order to piece together the events leading to those thirteen seconds. Kent State had never been considered a radical campus. The first half of the book tells about the two years prior to the National Guard and student confrontation. Campus leaders, university officials, campus organizations and townspeople are studied. Although the attitudes on campus had undergone some change, there was still nothing very radical. The student government leaders were struggling against plain student apathy. The event causing the most activity was the annual spring mud fight.

THIRTEEN SECONDS shows many of the strains on society today. One wonders what can cause young people in helmets and young people in bell bottoms to stand opposing each other. Many remembered Jerry Rubin's words on that campus a month prior to the shootings: "Being young in America is illegal." THIRTEEN SECONDS will give everyone something to think about.

Citizen Is Outspoken

To the Editor:

In answer to this weeks Sun survey, my answer is a big loud yes. It would also be the answer of many, many more of the Virginia Beach citizens, too, if they only knew what the score is.

Dictator Scott was afraid it would hamper him in giving himself and other imported rubber stamps these so-called administrative raises. Check and see how many administrative raises he has given himself, along with Mr. Culverhouse, and Mr. Lambert (who had a position created for him and which should be handled by the purchasing agent).

I noticed the Virginia Observer newspaper a while back ran an article on the shape of finances in the city of Norfolk and it was disclosed that the picture was entirely different from what the so-called great City Manager Mr. Maxwell had led the Council and the people of Norfolk to believe. Perhaps a study for Virginia Beach would reveal some startling information for our citizens, as well. I understand Roger Scott's salary has increased about $8000.00 over a short span. Pr-ging in imports such as Fleming from Henrico County, DeBellis, has cost us a lot for nothing. Also the nearest nothing that Scott has ever done was when he made Mr. Frank Creasey the so-called Information Officer for the city. This was the joke of the year. I am told however, that he does get out a little monthly news letter of some sort, filled with news or things that happened a month or more prior. Thank God for your newspaper that has the guts to call the shots as they should be called. Mr. Scott talked about morale, he does not know what the word means. Just check your city employees in a manner in which they will not have to reveal their names and you will find out how low the morale is (in all departments). I understand that Mr. Scott has a Jr. Dictator in the office of Chief of Police, as well as some of the other depts.

Something needs to be done fast--Virginia Beach is in dire need of a capable manager. Mr. Russell Hatchett has forgot more than this manager will ever know. Mr. Hatchett tried to help the city and the people. Try to get any help in the morgue (City Hall from the City Managers office now). Doors are closed to citizens, they are treated abruptly, etc. Just get you an investigator to do a little checking and you can fill your paper and do the people a great favor and service by so doing. It is a shame and a sin what is going on on the so-call Hill and with our government. Don't take anyone's word for it; have same checked out. The best move the six council members could do for the city is to give Roger Scott his moving orders before he ruins the city, as he doesn't have far to go. . . . Jim Lowe Virginia Beach, Va.

Nope, No Apology

To the Editor:

I would like to call your attention to what must be an error in your article regarding the jailer. In it you state: "City Sgt. Marr was asked by Judge White about the denial of permission for Younger to make a phone call and said such action was 'customary when these people come in the jail raving or drunk.' We have to restrain them from making a phone call' on grounds of what language they might use."

Now surely Mr. Marr did not actually say this in a court of law, did he? For if this is his normal procedure under these circumstances, then he is denying a basic right to prisoners. Furthermore, he is in clear violation of a State Rule. For in "Rules and Regulations for the Administration of Local Jails and Lockups", 1970, on page 4, it is specifically stated that prisoners are to make at least one phone call before being locked up. If they are not in a physical condition that allows them to make the call, but request one, the jailer is to make the call for them.

Either you have misquoted Mr. Marr or he is violating, either knowingly or unknowingly, a State Rule for local jails. In as much as Mr. Marr has already received so much adverse publicity, I think you owe him an apology in print if you have misquoted him. Ann Onymus

Amendments an Explosive Issue

There appears to be no middle-of-the-road group of citizens on the budget amendments which tore City Council apart last week. A person is either adamantly for them or adamantly against them. And each is quick to voice his opinion in no uncertain terms.

Even though council rescinded most of these amendments in a meeting called by City Manager Roger Scott last Wednesday night, the question was nevertheless posed--so that the people might express themselves. And they did!

The response was quite strong and "NO's" carried it in 98 per cent of the total vote.

It proved to be a most volatile issue, drawing some very bitter letters to the editor. There was, quite frankly, considerable hesitation in printing some of these comments but the Sun, in fairness to its readers, did not feel justified in censoring the letters so long as they adhered to the rules.

Some of the questionnaire comments were also quite definite: "Hell NO!" "The question is not only the nature of the amendments but the precipitous manner by which the Council apparently tried to revert to rule by the 'organization'. Thanks again to the Sun for bringing the issue to the people. We all need more time to fairly evaluate such actions."

"NO--Only an individual owing NO responsibility to the electorate could propose such amendments!"

"Your editorial was outrageous. Who's side are you on, anyway?"

"I may not agree with the Sun's stand on this, but you can't always be right."

"Thanks to the Sun for speaking up for the little people, for that's what the amendments were all about."

Now, let's change the subject. Council has been under fire by the charter boat operators to "get with it" at Rudee Inlet. One group has wanted to keep it limited, another has wanted it expanded. Council has decided to build-head the undeveloped section and make-do with the slips already there so 22 boats can be accommodated this fishing season.

Council agrees, however, that the city should not be involved in private industry, even though some resort cities have reaped great benefits from municipal marinas. It's a two-sided situation.

Miss Virginia Beach MARCIA WHITE was a big hit with the Girl Scouts; they swamped her with questions and requests for autographs at each stop.

Miss Virginia Beach MARCIA WHITE confers with MRS. JUNE MARTIN, publicity chairman for Area Four, on their next stop along the clean-up route.

Cleaning up Rudee Inlet were members of Cadette Troop 287 of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, ESTELLE FEREBEE, CHARLOME ROBINS, ARETHA DAVIS and SHIRLEY FEREBEE. MRS. THELMA DAVIS is their leader.

The city's two beauties - Little Miss Virginia Beach KIM OWNES, and her older counterpart Miss Virginia Beach MARCIA WHITE, MAYOR DONALD RHODES and MRS. JUNE MARTIN enjoy the conversation.

Scouts Answer Ecology Call

Some 700 Area Four Girl Scouts--Brownies, Juniors and Cadettes--rallied to ecology's call Saturday with a well-organized clean-up of the beach. The 44 troops were divided into groups and stationed from Rudee Inlet to Fort Story. The program started about 9 a. m. and ended with a mass meeting at the Civic Center parking lot at 11:30 a. m. During the morning the clean-up details were visited by Area Four Chairman Mrs. Eleanor Smouse, Publicity Chairman Mrs. June Martin and Miss Virginia Beach Marcia White, traveling the length of the beach in a Police Dept. dune-buggy driven by Officer T. G. Edwards.

Once at the Civic Center, the participants were treated to free drinks, music by the Elementary All-City Festival Band and brief complimentary speeches by a group of dignitaries. The band, consisting of a portion of the 150 elementary students selected from 37 schools, was directed by Ernest Olds. The troops were presented certificates of appreciation for their efforts by Mrs. Lawrence Tucker, anti-litter chairman for the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission and the Council of Garden Clubs, and Mrs. Garland Payne, president of the Suburban Junior Woman's Club.

Mrs. Philip Russo, who recently was named First Citizen primarily because of her youth work, read the Girl Scout's Action '70 creed. City Superintendent of Sanitation Cecil Land, who arranged a special garbage pick-up of the plastic-bagged beach debris, told the girls how pleased he is in the young people's interest in "the problem we have with littering" and "you're going to learn us older people a lot of things."

The real "stars" of the special program, however, were Miss White, and Little Miss Virginia Beach Kim Owens and Mayor Donald Rhodes. The mayor, who had already thrown out the first ball at two little league openings and was on his way to another ball-throwing as well as opening of the new Princess Anne Park, was enthusiastically received by the crowd and was followed from the speakers stand by groups of admiring youngsters.

Between 47th and 50th streets, MRS. H. B. PARKER, JR., leader of Brownie Troop 166 from Star Of The Sea Catholic Church, collected an armful of driftwood. Helping her were Brownies KIM WINFREE, CHRISTINA KING, MARY BETH SMITH and her daughter, WANDA PARKER.

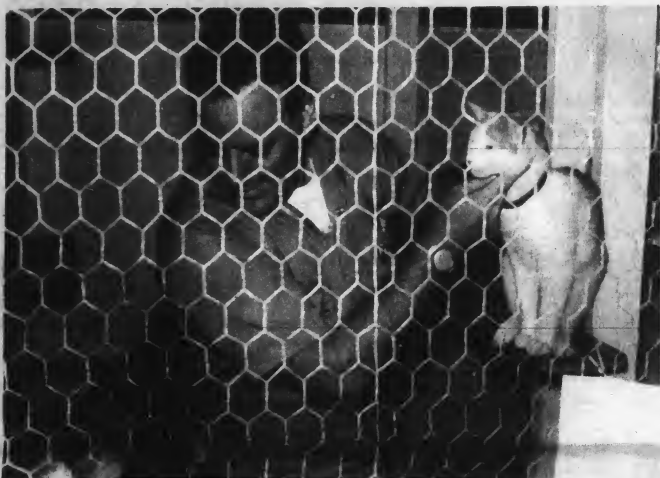

LINDA FELBER, 1, and her sister, CHERYL, 2, give the older girls a hand. They are the daughters of MRS. ALICE FELBER, a leader of Cadette Troop 287, sponsored by Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd.

Cold Nose and Marching Society

The SPCA is no place to be if you're a sofie when it comes to limpid brown canine eyes or the gentle purr of a furry Persian kitten.

But that's where we were last week, when Station WVAB delivered 12 cases of animal food to the shelter.

It was all the result of a six-week campaign conceived by the Cold-Nose and Marching Society, when the radio station put in a plea for donations of food to the animals. Cub Scout Pack No. 378 took up the plea with a vengeance. The result was the generous collection of cat and dog food and a "This is great-really splendid" from SPCA manager E. L. Bennett.

Joe Patrick, president of the society and vice president Dee Martin were delighted with the response of listeners, who in addition to the Scouts contributed food. "We'd like to make this a continuing thing," Joe said, adding that it would be a first-rate project for women's clubs to adopt.

And Bennett reminds everyone that this is "Be Kind to Animals Week". "Now's a good time to take home some of the little fellows for adoption," he says. There are some lovely cats available—a pretty-faced Calico kitten, Persian kittens, their little noses pressed to the cage just asking to be taken home. There's the Pekingese dog, a bit older, but gentle and perplexed because he's been left by his family.

But they all have their friends. There is, for instance, Frank Spear, of 1049 Old Dam Neck Road, who collects meat scraps and bones from the grocery stores and brings them to the shelter, where they're cooked in a huge pot in the kitchen. There are volunteers who willingly help, and there are those who donate food and money to the self-sustaining animal shelter.

But the need is ever present, for the shelter cares for more and more animals every day.

Help Those Who Do So Much for Others

It's Volunteer Fire Department Month

By official proclamation of Mayor Donald H. Rhodes and by a resolution passed unanimously by the City Council of Virginia Beach, the month May has been set aside as "Fund Drive Month" for the volunteer fire departments in the city. During this period the 13 volunteer fire departments and rescue squads which serve the city will be conducting their annual fund-raising campaigns.

In his proclamation Mayor Rhodes stated "I encourage each and every citizen of Virginia Beach to actively support, morally and financially, our volunteer firemen as evidence of our sincere appreciation of their efforts, past, present and future."

The men who protect the city and who are on call 24 hours a day will visit houses in their own areas, or contact residents by mail, seeking contributions to guarantee the continuation of the fine protection the residents of Virginia Beach have known in the past.

They do not seek much. They ask the minimum contribution of $5.00 per household. It is a proven fact that because of the excellent protection they have given, homeowners pay as much as $25 less in fire insurance than they would if the volunteers were not on the job. The donation they seek is far less than that. Contrary to some belief the volunteer fire departments are not a tax supported operation.

Each department has highly trained men assigned at all times, no matter what the weather or the time of day. They are all volunteers with full-time jobs other than their fire and rescue duties, but they give a few hours every week to insure the safety of the citizens of Virginia Beach.

These men are all dedicated to their responsibility, and continue to train themselves to be even better qualified in fire-fighting methods and in first aid and rescue work.

They must pass rigid tests of high standards before they are allowed to become members of a volunteer fire department. It is hard work to become a member and hard work once they become members.

Many of the departments operate under real handicaps. They often lack equipment and their buildings are often inadequate. But this does not stop them. Never has there ever been a complaint that the volunteers did not do their job, but the praise heaped upon them has been great and richly deserved.

In recent months nearly every department has purchased new and needed equipment, partly on loans from the city. The equipment now in service can honestly be called efficient and modern in every way.

But the operation of the volunteer units on a day-to-day basis is strictly up to the residents of the areas served. Only through the generosity of the people of Virginia Beach can the departments do the best possible job.

The next time you hear the low mournful whistle in the deep of night or the siren of a fire engine or ambulance passing your door, think about the security all of us have because of the men and equipment of the volunteer fire departments of Virginia Beach.

This is their month. You can help make it a successful one for them.

Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center

Dr. James N. Williams, director Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center meets with Mrs. Thomasine B. Cubine, psychiatric social worker, in relaxing atmosphere of the group therapy room.

Volunteers needed at Center

It was just one year ago that the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center moved to its brand new quarters at 1876 Wildwood Drive. For a progress report we called on administrator B. W. Spore.

"We're proud to report that the building is paid for lock stock and barrel," he said. Funded by the Hill-Burton Act it was necessary that 45 per cent of the $150,000 cost of construction be borne by the local community.

Thus it was necessary to raise some $68,000 from local funds.

"The people responded unselfishly," Spore said. City, civic groups, women's clubs, garden clubs and individual donations made the building a reality.

"The Princess Anne Woman's Club alone has given us about $40,000 over the last ten years," he said.

It is a source of pride to all involved that the funds have been raised without placing a mortgage on the building.

The Center serves a population of over 200,000, including the Beach, and the Eastern Shore Counties of Accomack and Northampton in the diagnosis and treatment of mental and emotional illness. It's the only such facility available on the Atlantic coastal section of the state.

They now have two full-time psychiatrists: Dr. James N. Williams, director, and Dr. James D. Hague.

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Bimson is chief psychiatric social worker; Mrs. Thomasine B. Cubine, aftercare psychiatric social worker; Dr. Vernon S. Bliese and Dr. Henry O. Gwaltney, part-time clinical psychologists. Mrs. E. A. Simiele is employed as a part-time social service aide.

The Center itself is designed primarily as an outpatient clinic.

"We've added furniture to the occupational therapy room and the group therapy room," Spore said.

Adjacent to the building is a fenced-in play yard for children, and a garden, especially helpful for patients attending weekly group therapy sessions who would benefit from working in the soil.

Volunteers from the community give of their time to provide transportation, instruct patients in arts and crafts, fashion design, hair styling and even cake decorating, on a once-a-week basis. "We hope to expand this program to two and possibly three days a week," Spore said.

Landscaping of the building has been nearly completed—one more phase of five needs to be finished. "This includes two borders on the property lines," Spore said.

Immediate needs are for the addition of another psychiatrist, social worker, and occupational therapist.

"Although budgetary restrictions now limit this to part-time positions and only for the psychiatrist and social worker, the Center must further increase its professional staff if it is to continue to provide adequate service to the community," Spore said.

He added that there is a great need for additional volunteers to help in the occupational therapy and to furnish transportation for patients to the Center.

How do you feel around people?

By REV. JOYCE KRAMER

How do you feel around people? Are you at ease or uncomfortable? Are you afraid of people or even a particular person? Do you sometimes find yourself feeling defensive, fearing that another may harm or misuse you?

Let no person cause you to feel threatened or afraid. Instead, realize that he or she is a human being with the same basic needs and desires that you have. Go one step further and realize that you are one in Spirit with another due to that invisible essence of Divine life and intelligence that is within all.

If necessary take a stand with another rather than allowing him to abuse or misuse you. To serve as a doorman of the victim of someone's emotional disorder is neither right nor good.

As you stand strong and firm you will help another to be better than he is capable of being alone. In that way, everyone concerned will be blessed.

Be secure in your awareness that God is within you. Look for God in another person and you will help him to respond in an intelligent, loving way. That you will learn to be at ease with people and they with you.

THE CHRIST IN ME BEHOLDS THE CHRIST IN YOU. WE ARE ONE IN GOD'S LOVE.

Mrs. W. L. Buergey at home.

Gregory Haake on track team

Gregory V. Haake, a Princess Anne High School graduate, is a member of Chowan College's track team.

How's it feel to be named Tidewater Military Wife of the Year?

"Great - just great," said Mrs. William L. (Laurel) Buergey, who received the honor in a ceremony recently at the headquarters of Adm. Charles K. Duncan, Commander in Chief Atlantic.

Mrs. Buergey, wife of Marine Lt. Col. Buergey, is one of five finalists who will compete for the title of Military Wife of the Year on May 18.

The Buergeys are King's Grant residents. With their children, Chris, 15, Stephen, 10, Charla, 20, they live at 3601 Chamberlayne Court. Their eldest son, an ensign, is married and lives in Pensacola.

Laurel's a native of Commerce, Oklahoma. "It's small, the population's about 2,000, but it's wonderful," she said, "and it's famous in a way, it's Mickey Mantle's hometown."

In fact, she and Mickey were classmates. "His aunt and my mother were best friends," she added. Her mother is Mrs. James Opal. Her father is deceased.

Her husband's a native of Oklahoma too - from Miami ... "but you pronounce it Miami there - it's an Indian name."

It's been a life of adventure for the Buergeys, who were married in 1947. None were more rewarding than the years they had in Japan from 1961-64 when her husband was military liaison officer with the Army.

In Tokyo Laurel taught English in junior and senior high schools at the Japanese Missionary School.

"English is compulsory in Japanese high schools, but they needed volunteers to supplement the teachers because of the upcoming Olympics."

She was asked to instruct three prosperous business executives as well.

"I thought with my limited knowledge of their language, and their limited knowledge of mine, it would be hopeless. But they were fabulous - came to the house twice a week and I did get it across to them."

It was a great experience for her, and they've remained friends since. One, Tadashi Satoh, vice president of the Fuji Iron and Steel Co. was their house guest over Labor Day.

"He was so impressed with the Beach," she said.

When Laurel lived in Japan she says she was somewhat of an oddity because of her blonde hair, blue eyes and fair skin. "I'd catch people staring at me, then they'd look away shyly when I caught their eye."

She came to love the people. "You know there are misconceptions about them. You think of them as unemotional and cool. But you find that they tend to express their deepest feelings to you after you become friends."

And as for her children, she says they were spoiled there. "The Japanese adore children and they want them to be happy. So a child must always have its own way until about 10 years old. Then they simply expect them to obey."

It was in Japan that Laurel began a Woman to Woman program, for which she was commended when she was chosen Tidewater Military Wife of the Year.

"It was a cultural exchange program between our Wives Club and the Japanese Wives Club."

"We organized small groups and met in individual homes. We'd have an interpreter with us, usually one of the wives, for instance, who spoke the language well."

This was a new and interesting experience for the Japanese women who seldom entertain in their homes. They also formed dance groups, and learned Japanese folk dances.

Laurel continues with club work now, and is president of CINCLANT Officers Wives Club. She sews for Navy Relief; is vice president of Lutheran Church Women and Altar Guild. She continues, too, with her hobby of flower arranging which she studied in Japan.

The Buergeys hope to return to Japan some day. But if it's around the Christmas season she'll not make the same mistake that she did when they lived there and she shopped for Christmas decorations.

"I found a nice lantern with a Santa Claus face and some Japanese writing underneath, and I thought it would be just right for the porch."

When her maid saw it, she giggled and said, "Oh no - Okean - you no use that."

Just about that time, Dr. Tadashi Satoh arrived to take the Buergeys out to dinner, and he too was laughing.

"What's so funny?" Laurel asked.

Pointing to the lantern, he said, "That is - it says, 'Bargain Sale, Merry Christmas!'" ordinance." The signboard situation has been under fire for some months and prompted council to call a moratorium on this type construction until a new ordinance could be put into effect.

The Planning Commission finally came up with a drafted ordinance on March 3 which seemed to appease both the sign companies and the groups and individuals concerned with the city's "visual pollution". The March 3 ordinance was advertised for public hearing.

On April 5, however, this draft was revised by the commission's sign committee in an unpublishized meeting and the changes were included in the ordinance approved by the commission at its April 13 meeting. An outburst of public criticism came in the wake of this decision.

It is this revised draft which council will face Monday and it was for this reason that Carrington requested Monday's informal briefing.

He took each section and explained what the original specification had been. The most objectionable changes, he said, were in increasing the height of ground signs from 30 to 50 feet and in permitting a setback of two feet rather than the original 15 feet.

As a final recommendation, Carrington urged that council specify the streets on which all signs would be prohibited since the Planning Commission had failed to do this. He asked that the Virginia Beach Expressway, Shore Drive, Northampton Blvd. and General Booth Blvd. be kept sign-free.

Authorities say Henry A. Jennings, 27, and Michael W. Johnson, 25, both of Norfolk, received multiple concussions and abrasions when their auto careened out of control and flipped over several times last Saturday on the Shore Drive Fort Story by-pass. Police officers joined Beach Borough rescue squadsmen in rushing to the scene to render medical assistance.

THE EISENHOWER'S ARRIVE UNDER the keen eye of the Secret Service.

Hello-Goodbye

When Julie Nixon Eisenhower speaks of her father, it's difficult to realize she is referring to the President of the United States. It is equally difficult to realize that a statement from David Eisenhower like "My grandfather cooked a lot" is actually a personal glimpse at the late President Eisenhower.

Not that they appear incapable of filling such responsible roles. On the contrary. Both of the attractive young people have the poise and refinement bred by wealth and success. But they have more. Much, much more... the enviable ("I could wear hot pants if I wanted to, but I wouldn't want to wear them down the street," Julie), to openly share their convictions ("The biggest cause of youth unrest is concern for the future. Everyone is concerned. We can't help but be concerned," David) and their frustrations ("No, it isn't easy being the president's daughter").

Julie and David—they prefer the informality of first names—are not long-haired, barefoot kids inwardly longing for utopia that cannot be. They are clean-cut, wholesome young people, the epitome of the youth image cherished in the memory of yesterday's generation. But they are as modern in their awareness and comprehension and concern as any of their weirdly-dressed counterparts. Acceptance of responsibility is perhaps this young couple's greatest asset.

Such were the observations made of Virginia Beach's celebrated temporary residents in a White House-handled meeting with the press late Tuesday afternoon at the White Heron Motel, an event so rare it even drew news media from Washington.

For over an hour Julie and David braved a barrage of questions from the invited guests, relaxed and calm under the hot glare of television lights and whirring cameras.

It was somewhat of a "hello-goodbye" affair. Their first gathering with the press since their arrival here some six weeks ago and probably their last since they will leave their oceanfront cottage in about 10 days when David completes his training at Dam Neck. It was in fact, only their second press conference since their marriage.

David is scheduled for a 2-month cruise before being stationed in Florida. Julie will stay at the White House until after sister Tricia's wedding next month, then will meet David at various foreign ports and finally join him in Florida.

"I'm already looking into jobs in Florida," she told the group, explaining that work would ease her loneliness when he sets off on a 6-month cruise next year.

Julie was asked if she ever took exception to the President's views. Well, yes, but what can I tell him? You know what I mean? David is better qualified to discuss issues with him," David, to whom Julie usually relinquished the floor, said their discussions around the dinner table "are just like any other family discussions."

"Yes, we talk about the war," he answered one reporter, "but it's hard to talk about Viet Nam frivolously because he carries the responsibility of the war, it's with him every minute. He's at the helm."

As to the demonstrations in Washington last week-end, the young Navy man criticized the motives—"Shutting down the government is not realistic"—but added that peaceful protests are effective.

"Last week's demonstration is not the kind that will influence the President," David said. "If they want to accomplish something they've got to stop playing this game. They've got to work through the processes of government. Their cause will only suffer setbacks as long as they play this charade."

Hearing Tuesday On Dredging

The City's hard-luck permit for the dredging of the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River will finally reach the public hearing stage Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The State Water Control Board has called the hearing as a prerequisite for State approval of a permit which must carry the State's stamp of approval before it can be okay'd by the Army Corps of Engineers.

If approved, the permit will allow the city to dredge some four miles of the Eastern Branch, beginning at a point South of Keeling's drain and terminating North of Route 58, near the London Bridge area.

The overall project will cost the city about $350,000, take some three years to complete and require the disposition of about 300,000 cubic yards of material on several large designated spoil areas along the route. These areas must necessarily be at least 1 1/2 feet above mean low water. They must also be quite large in area since it would cost the city additional money to dispose of the spoil on numerous small plots.

Most of the property owners on the river have, through civic leagues and other organizations, endorsed the city's intent. These areas include Chesapeake Colony, Forest Cove, Great Neck Estates, Great Neck Manor, Great Neck Point, Innlynnview, Kings Grant, Lynnhaven, Little Neck, Wolfnsare, Wolfnsare Acres and others.

Dredging of the Western Branch of the river, which extends from Lynnhaven Inlet nearly to Princess Anne High School—behind Thalia and that area—was started by the city about four years ago and is nearly completed. It was expected that the Eastern Branch project would automatically be undertaken next.

Oystermen opposed the second phase, however, on the basis that the channel might damage their oyster beds in the secluded Eastern Branch. These beds are leased to individuals by the State. There also fear that boat traffic will further pollute the river and that the dredging will upset the natural ecological balance.

The city first submitted its application for the dredging to the Marine Resources Commission in July of last year. Under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, it is necessary that a State agency must certify that the dredging would not violate water quality standards or alter the physical, chemical or biological properties of navigable waters of the Commonwealth.

Applications were also made to the State Water Control Board, Virginia Institute of Marine Science, State Department of Health and the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development. All of these agencies denied the application, but city officials are still uncertain as to why they decided against it.

The Corps of Engineers issued public notice of the city's application and twice extended the closing date with the final decision due by last November 13. On November 16 the Corps advised the city that the application had been denied by the State, which necessitated Federal denial. This was the first word the city had received that the State was concerned about the project.

Shortly after that, such matters were taken from the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development and placed under the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs. In March the city re-submitted its application to this division, plus the other State agencies and the Corps of Engineers. Tuesday's public hearing is an aftermath of this second application.

The Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River was once navigable to large fishing boats but in recent years has become more of a mud flat. Officials have said the bottom of the river has been built up by oystermen in developing shell beds which, when combined with sediment from urban development along the river, has caused an ever increasing accumulation of silt. Today the branch is described as a "stagnant, polluted, dying river."

City officials believe that the new channel would permit flushing action in the river which would clear much of the pollution. This, they believe, would make the Lynnhaven River oysters directly marketable

Skinny Hotel May Be Only Answer

A 25-foot strip of oceanfront property, wedged between two large hotels on Atlantic Avenue, has become a Frankenstein monster for its young owner.

Ashton H. Pulley purchased the property, along with a 2-story building some 40 years old, in hopes of operating a surf shop there. He painted it a bright color to correct its unsightly image, paneled the interior and generally improved it to the tune of some $3,000.

Only to learn that the property is zoned for hotel-motel use. Not retail.

Tuesday he took on the Virginia Beach Innkeepers and the Planning Commission in an attempt to obtain the use permit he needs in order to get a business license. But he didn't make it. The commission denied his application 7 to 4.

Pulley, neatly bearded and modestly dressed, explained to the commission that the property is too narrow to conform with the zoning and that when he opened his business he was unaware of a use permit would be needed.

A zoning enforcement officer visited the shop, explained the problem and said he would have to operate the shop as a subsidiary to a hotel. Pulley said, "Then he found out that one room on the second floor 'technically makes me a hotel operator'."

"I didn't even know I had a hotel until the zoning enforcement officer told me," he said.

The innkeepers, represented by Grover Wright, disagreed with Pulley, claiming the surf shop did not conform with the zoning and approval of the shop would "make a mockery" of the city's zoning laws.

Planning Director Charles Carrington said he did not think a motel could possibly be built on the property because of the required 10-foot property line setback.

Pulley argued that the property had been on the market for two years and that if he had not bought it, the adjoining property owners would probably "have gobbled it up for practically nothing."

Wright told the commission the shop not only doesn't conform with the zoning, it also is at the very end of the Expressway exit on 21st Street and "is the first thing people see when they arrive at Virginia Beach."

A source said after Tuesday's meeting that Pulley had previously been summoned to court for not having a business license and was forced to close the shop until he could get the permit.

Pulley told the commission "I don't mean to be pleading poverty, but I'm not a wealthy person. I have over $3,000 in improvements alone and if I can't operate a business there then I can't hold on to the property."

Canada On 'Issues, Not Personalities'

Virginia Beach attorney Joe Canada, Jr., 33, who left the Democratic party "because of its in-fighting," has announced as a Republican candidate for the State Senate, subject to the Republican convention.

In an informal conference on the lawn of his Linkhorn Park home, Canada told newsmen Tuesday morning that he is "stick of the family wars" going on in the Democratic party and that he intends to run his campaign on issues rather than personalities.

"I don't care about personalities," he said. "I care about issues that will help Virginia Beach."

constructive to help.

More should be done for the young people in this city," he said. "We have done nothing to rehabilitate drug addicts, to help them." He also said that something should be done to provide proper detention of young people.

Among the most pressing problems facing the city is the "deplorable sewer and water situation," he said. "Can you believe that on Virginia Beach Boulevard there are some areas that don't have sewerage while other outlying areas have it?" He also hit at the city's inadequate highway and neighborhood road system.

"I am sick and tired of the political family wars that are robbing the public of the needed leadership that the needs in an urban society require. I feel that the community and many of its citizens—Republicans—Democrats—Independents—will join with me in bringing about a needed change in Virginia Beach politics," Canada said.

Because he is a young family man, Canada said he can understand the problems of young families and will seek a "new political climate" to help solve many of these problems.

He is particularly concerned about the young people, he said, especially those involved in drugs, explaining that "laws are passed on top of laws" as a means of combating this problem, yet the laws do nothing

Building In April Is Tops

Building activity in Virginia Beach during April surpassed any other single month in the city's history by more than $4.7 million, City Building Codes Superintendent John E. Gibbs reported Wednesday.

The value of all (390) permits issued in April was $15,584,705. The biggest previous month was $11,204,444 in September 1970.

Also setting a new one-month record was the April total of 835 residential dwelling units, (249 single-family homes and 586 apartments in 94 separate permits) worth $14.4 million. The previous record month for residential construction was 799 units, chalked up in March of this year.

For the first four months of 1971, the value of all building permits is $36,981,301—more than $16.2 million ahead of the same period last year. Also, Gibbs pointed out that the total so far this year is more than half of the city's complete-year record of $72.9 million in 1969.

City Asked To Halt Public Use of Military Clubs

A Virginia Beach restaurant and innkeeper asked City Council Monday to "look into" the restriction of unauthorized use of the city's military base clubs by large groups for social and official functions.

C.A. (Cary) Karageorge made his request at the very end of the formal session, after adjournment had been called, in fact, apparently as a retaliation to council's approval of an increased 2 per cent tax levied on persons obtaining food, etc. from city restaurants.

The tax will become effective June 1 and is just one of several new taxes council approved in second reading Monday in final approval of the trimmed $55,483,321 City Budget for 1971-72.

Karageorge said that if council was going to impose this increased taxation on the city's restaurants they should request City Attorney Dale Binson to look into restriction of public use of the military facilities which are exempt from the tax.

"We support the city through these taxes," he said, "but lose business, especially by the larger groups, to the officer's clubs which don't pay the tax." He cited such groups as civic leagues and "even our own Chamber of Commerce."

Mayor Donald Rhodes and some of the councilmen pointed out that these gatherings were made possible through individual members who had justifiable access to the military clubs and expressed doubts that council had any control over such activity.

Council agreed, however, that if there were violations of these privileges they should be stopped and indicated, without a vote, that Binson would be asked to look into the matter.

This was but one of the new tax ordinances opposed Monday by the innkeepers, even though Mayor Rhodes made it clear that the public hearing on the budget had long since passed and council was no longer obligated to publicly hear their complaints.

In informal session, Councilman Robert Cromwell explained that he had been contacted by motel-owner George Davis who said the innkeepers would like to appear before council before the final vote was taken on the budget. "And I did not feel that I, as an individual, had the right to speak for the entire council in denying him the request," Cromwell said.

The majority of council indicated an interest in hearing a presentation by Charles Gardner and Tom Lyons, representing the Innkeepers Association, who were on hand at the informal session. "Let's hear what they have to say" Councilman George Ferrell urged.

Gardner explained that he had a suggested alternate to the city's new 2 per cent tax on tourist accommodations. The previous taxation was 1 per cent. The innkeepers contend this increase will hinder Virginia Beach in the competitive tourist business.

Gardner suggested that council make a study of the city's real estate assessments which, he said, "has fairly sizeable discrepancies," not only in the tourist community and North Virginia Beach area, but also city-wide. He said that it council would bring the overall tax assessment of property into line, it would generate far more than the $400,000 the lodging tax will supposedly bring.

Mayor Rhodes said that, in his law practice, he is constantly confronted with such inequities, explaining that his estimated tax figure on the purchase of a new piece of property is often half the amount of the final assessment.

Councilman Curtis Payne said he was unaware of such large discrepancies and called for a re-assessment of city property, which has not been done for three years. Council agreed to seek a new re-assessment but explained that the budget could not be delayed on this basis.

In the following formal session, the taxation on accommodations levied on transients was opposed by Councilmen Robert Callis, Frank Dusch and Reid Ervin but passed on an 8-3 vote.

The only other opposed ordinance among the 12 establishing new or increased taxes was the license tax to be imposed on trucks, according to weight. This was opposed by Councilman Floyd Waterfield, but his was the only dissenting vote.

New Taxes Imposed

With the passage of several ordinances in connection with the 1971-72 City Budget, City Council has established several new or increased taxes.

These include:

*Utility tax of 20 per cent on the first $12 of a monthly charge, exclusive of federal tax, on each utility—telephone, electricity, water and gas—and on the first $400 per month commercial or industrial charge, effective June 1.

*Lodging tax of 2 per cent of total bill for board and lodging paid by any transient to any hotel, effective June 1.

*Restaurant food tax of 2 per cent of any bill over 50 cents, effective June 1.

*A trailer court owner's annual license tax of $15 per space and 6 per cent of the gross receipts, effective Jan. 1, 1972.

*An additional 6 per cent of the stated amount of each business license tax, effective May 1, 1972.

On May 16, the newly organized Virginia Beach Kennel Club will hold its first Fun Match at the Princess Anne Hunt Club on London Bridge Road. Entries may be made from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and judging will commence at 12:30 p.m. Competition is open to all pure bred dogs registered with the American Kennel Club or those eligible for registration. There will be no classes for Poodles, however, due to the Tideland Poodle Club Match being held on the same day. Chairman of the Virginia Beach Kennel Club is Mrs. Frank J. Spreng, Jr.

There will be a charge of $1.25 for the first entry of a dog and a fee of $1.00 for each additional entry. Classes will be divided by sex and puppies will not compete with adult dogs.

Puppy classes offered are: 3-6 months; 6-9 months and 9-12 months. Adult classes are 12-18 months and over 18 months. Mrs. Muriel Laubach of Virginia Beach will judge all Sporting Breeds, Dr. Joseph P. White, Jr. of Hampton will judge all Hound and Terrier Breeds, Mrs. Charles L. Jordan IV of Midlothian will judge all Toy and Miscellaneous Breeds, Mrs. J. C. Denmark of Newport News will judge Collies and Shetland Sheepdogs, Charles Gibson of Norfolk will judge German Shepherd Dogs and Peter Mediate of Virginia Beach will judge the balance of the Working Breeds, the Non-Sporting and Miscellaneous Breeds as well as Best Puppy in Match and Best Adult in Match.

The Virginia Beach Kennel Club was formed last fall and winter through a series of informal meetings of interested owners and exhibitors of pure bred dogs. A constitution and by-laws were adopted and officers elected. To date there have been three official meetings of the club to which newcomers have been invited. Anyone interested in the meetings should contact M. Frank Abel, membership chairman.

Officers of the club are: Harry A. Sheely, president; Capt. David Echols, vice president; Mrs. James B. McCaw, Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stanley T. Hobday, recording secretary; Mrs. John Gordon Myers, treasurer. Directors are Mrs. M. F. Abel, Cmdr. John Vogel, Mrs. Homer C. Thompson, Mrs. M. E. Meacham, Mrs. George A. Sharp and Donovan M. Haxton.

Dredging of the Western Branch has already relieved some of the pollution problems in that area, officials said, and dredging of Lynnhaven Inlet by the Corps of Engineers some years ago, under a Federal Public Works appropriation, greatly relieved the severe pollution problems in Lynnhaven and Broad bays.

Testimony on the project, both pro and con, may be submitted in writing prior to Tuesday's hearing, or, of necessity, submitted at the hearing. All statements should be sent to Miss Anne M. Field, State Water Control Board, P.O. Box 11143, Richmond, Va.

Sign Issue Deferred

City Council has deferred action for two weeks on the sign board ordinance, apparently in hopes of drafting its own ordinance which might be acceptable than the one they faced Monday.

The one presently under consideration is that approved by the Planning Commission last month which carried controversial last-minute changes to a previously acceptable ordinance.

Planning Director Charles Carrington, who said he and his staff could not support the revised standards, issued his department's draft, dated May 5, and Councilman Reid Ervin distributed yet another draft for council's consideration.

Carrington's proposed ordinance drew praise and support from all the conservation groups which had opposed the Planning Commission's April 5 draft but Ervin's proposal was made known Monday only to council. He explained in formal session that his draft had been compiled in his office by his own staff, that he had not utilized city personnel or equipment in preparing it.

Among those speaking against the ordinance of April 5 were:

Robert Standing, chairman, Committee for Visual Pollution Control (supported by five large organizations) -- "The only business that will be affected by this ordinance will be the billboard business and they have exploited our highways long enough."

Mrs. Catherine Lindsay, widow of the first land developer at Sandbridge -- "I know about the billboard industry and there is nothing you can do to satisfy them."

Mrs. Joan Courson, Council of Garden Clubs -- "The powers-that-be (in this city) have become the laughing stock of the state. How long are you going to ignore the wishes of the people?"

Mrs. Liz Sills, Citizens, Citizens Committee for Virginia State Parks -- "You have an obligation to make this the most beautiful city in the country. Signboards are ugly and dangerous and people are not so stupid that they have to be told where to go."

Robert McCausland, Environmental Conservation Organization of Students (ECOS), Old Dominion University -- "You might make this an ugly city, we feel sure you will, but we ask that it not become an aluminum Christmas tree, with its ugliness covered by tinsel and bright lights."

Among those who favored the ordinance were:

Mrs. Gwyn Wood, businesswoman -- "Women are getting into too many things. It's about time we let the men get on doing what they need to do" (referring to opposing women's groups).

Norman Hecht, attorney -- "There is something that strikes me as being unusual; the City of Virginia Beach has two billboards on the Interstate and several of the people who have spoken out against the ordinance have billboards on the Interstate."

Calvin Sapin, attorney -- "The Planning Department's draft is an ivory tower ordinance which would turn Virginia Beach into one big park. If you can afford this park, then so can I."

In other planning matters, Council took the following action:

*Approved Dudley Cooper's change of zoning and use permit for a 97-unit motel on the West side of Atlantic Ave. 200 feet North of Laskin Road, Beach Borough.

*Approved Thomas E. Hurley's change of zoning and use permit for a 12-unit motel (reduced from 13) on the Northeast corner of Baltic Ave. and 22nd St., Beach Borough.

*Referred back to the Planning Commission Martin Goldner's use permit for 10 apartments on the North side of 24th St. 120 feet East of Baltic Ave., pending proposed alley closure, Beach Borough.

*Approved Thomas E. Hurley's change of zoning to Residence Duplex District 2 on two parcels of land on the East and West sides of Laverne Lane in West Ocean Gardens, Lynnhaven.

*Approved the City Recreation Department's use permit for a park on the Northwest corner of the Expressway and Virginia Ave., Pinewood Gardens area, Lynnhaven.

*Approved Jack D. Gibson's use permit to stable horses on property in Lyndale Estates area, Lynnhaven.

*Approved VEPCO's use permit for an electric transformer station on Sandbridge Rd. in Curtis Acres area, Princess Anne.

*Approved A. Franklin Nicholson Jr.'s change of zoning and use permit for a miniature golf course on Sandbridge Rd. West of Sandpiper Rd. at Sandbridge, Princess Anne.

*Approved the Y. C. B.-Youth Organization's use permit for a church on the East side of Seaboard Rd. in the Seaboard Elementary School area, Princess Anne.

*Approved Boulevard Properties use permit for 12 apartments West of N. Wiltchuck Rd. and North of Virginia Beach Blvd., Chinese Corner area, Bayside.

*Approved North Parliament Drive Associates' change of zoning to General Commercial District on Parliament Dr. Greenview area, Kempville.

*Accepted the withdrawal of Lois Simon's change of zoning to General Commercial on Holland Rd., Larkspur area, Kempville.

*Approved Humble Oil's change of zoning and use permit for a gasoline station on the Northeast corner of Providence and Indian River Rds., Barretts Corner, Kempville.

Welcome A board

WORK CAN BE FUN sometimes, even for a city manager. Roger Scott seems to enjoy his role as host to the large group of tourist coordinators from New York and Illinois who were treated to an off-shore view of the city last week. The group was entertained aboard the "Big G" out of Lynnhaven and enjoyed a buffet spread catered by the White Heron.

City Seeks Fire Chief

City Manager Roger Scott has announced he will begin accepting applications for the position of Fire Chief this Saturday. Scott made the announcement in the form of a letter addressed to the Fire Council which was read at the Council's regular monthly meeting Monday night at the Knotts Island fire station.

The announcement contained no indication from Scott as to when he might announce who will fill the position, however the fiscal 1971 budget calls for the position to become operative on July 1.

Members of the Fire Council, which is comprised of representatives of all fire departments in the resort city, during last month's meeting gave overwhelming support to Beach Borough Fire Chief E. B. Bayne as their choice for overall Fire Chief of Virginia Beach.

The fiscal 1971 budget approved by City Council Monday contains an expenditure of $25,155 for the office of Virginia Beach Fire Chief. This includes a Fire Chief salary of $14,400, one office clerk-typist salary of $4,080, a miscellaneous expense expenditure of $2,000, an expenditure of $1,475, plus an automotive equipment allowance of $3,200.

Cavalier Gets Go-Ahead

Cavalier Hotel Corporation received the Planning Commission's blessing Tuesday for a proposed 300-unit motel and restaurant on the oceanfront. The project will now go before City Council on May 24.

Objections from property owners on Cavalier Drive were overcome after attorney Tom Broyles, representing the developers, agreed to 12 modifications to the plan, including a 5-ft. masonry wall along the property line to serve as a sound and sight barrier between the residents and the service entrance to the new motel.

Unique Shop Is Open

MARGARET GULLIAM takes a tour of the shop.

What's new at the Beach? Ground Pads and Such, Inc. that's what's new.

What, you wonder, is that? It's an innocent appearing bungalow on 30th Street, that a pair of young Beach mothers have transformed into a cleverly conceived boutique.

They're Sue Sarkisian and Cindy Hoff by name, and their shop's a combination of saucy shoes, bikinis, accessories, against a background of vivid colors that say "this place is alive."

And the girls did it all themselves. The painted, papered, and designed the shop alone--with the approval, of course, of their husbands. "In fact, they're sort of proud of us," they said.

Dean Named

A former high school principal now associated with the Virginia State Department of Education has been named as Virginia Wesleyan College's first Dean of Students.

William H. Wood, 42, currently assistant supervisor for secondary education in the State Department of Education, will assume his new duties at Virginia Wesleyan on July 15, according to an announcement this week by President Lambuth M. Clarke.

"Where do they stand?"-Holloman

In a talk to campaign workers at the White Heron Motel, Glenn A. Holloman, candidate for the House of Delegates made the following statements:

"I am for the elimination of all tolls throughout the state of Virginia. I am for tighter controls over VEPCO and C&P, discontinuing all public utility advertising and lowering of rates to consumers. I am for banning of all signs and billboards along our major roads and highways. I am for no fault insurance. If it can be proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that this is the best insurance plan for our state, I am for horse racing. If the study commission's report is a favorable one.

"Do these political promises sound familiar? They should. Any one who would refute any of these statements would be committing political suicide.

"Our worthy opponents, at one time or another, have used all of the above slogans throughout their campaigns. They are using these time-worn promises because they are talking as fast and hard as they can to keep from being associated with the organization, which is avoiding the issue. The people of this great city want the government back in the hands of the people. I have heard that they are so afraid of being tied in with the Kellam Organization, they are no longer attending the regular Kellam Saturday morning meeting.

"But we all know that they are backed by the organization. Why don't they admit it? I can tell you why, they know the voters of Virginia Beach are sick and tired of organizational family rule of their city.

"Glenn A. Holloman is for the people of Virginia Beach, I am for anything that is good for the citizens of the state of Virginia. Mainly I stand for the stronger controls of pollution, waste, and litter. In this regard I will introduce legislation calling for a massive educational program of the people of our state which will show them the destruction caused by polluters, the expense caused by littering, and the damaging effects of our waste problem. I firmly believe that once the people are made aware of the severe problem we face, they

Summer Office Is Open

The Virginia Employment Commission announces the opening of a Summer Placement Office at 403 19th Street.

The office is open primarily to assist the resort businesses located at the beach and those applicants in that vicinity as well as those from out of town looking for summer jobs.

However, all applicants and businesses are invited to call or visit the office for assistance.

The summer Dialing-for-Jobs Program sponsored by the Mayor's Youth Council will be coordinated by the V.E.C. and operated from the same address. It will be staffed by students from First Colonial and Princess Anne High Schools until school is out and then by summer Y.O.C. workers furnished by the Virginia Beach S.T.O.P. program. Both offices may be reached by calling 425-8333, 425-8334 or 425-8335.

will care enough to do something about it.

"The other issue on which I hang my hat, as I have already stated, is to return the control of this city to the people, where it belongs. I am against the organization, strongly and firmly. Where do Mr. Pickett, Bowerman and Morrow stand?"

Lawyers Fighting No-Fault: Morrow

House of Delegates candidate James R. Morrow made the following remarks on no-fault insurance to a group of supporters Friday at a morning coffee in Lynnhaven Borough:

"As I told you early in my campaign, I am gravely concerned about what is happening to the automobile insurance industry in this country and our state and its impact on the consumer.

"Because of the potential impact of no-fault insurance on the consumer problem, I met in Boston Wednesday afternoon with the chief author of the Massachusetts no-fault plan and received a detailed briefing on their program.

"I can say to you today that without reservation I feel that Virginia consumers would benefit by having such a plan enacted here.

"Their program went into effect January 1 and applies to compulsory bodily injury coverage. It provides that claims under $2,000 be paid by a motorist's own insurer regardless of fault in the accident and eliminates such claims as pain and suffering unless medical expenses are more than $500.

"John Ryan, special attorney general for governor Frances W. Sargent of Massachusetts, told me Wednesday that his program has reduced bodily injury claims by 60% during the first quarter of this year.

"He said that states' driving public has in essence realized a 40% savings in cost in that they were to be confronted with a 30% rate hike during this period but instead have realized a 15% reduction factor.

"I am sorry to report to you today, however, that this unique plan is being assaulted in Massachusetts by the legal community there and with the domination of the Virginia legislature already I'm afraid that the legal community of Virginia might seek to do the same here.

"Prior to the enactment of the Massachusetts no-fault insurance plan, that states legal community sought to enumber it before it became a legislative reality.

"Now, in the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, that states trial lawyers are opposing the law which is being overwhelming supported by the auto insurance companies who favor it.

"Nationally, the American Trial Lawyers Association is, according to recent news reports, engaged in secret planning to thwart reform of the trouble plagued auto insurance system that earns them probably more than a half a billion dollars annually.

"Due to their personal income consideration it is easy for me to understand how the legal community would want to throw roadblocks into efforts to reform the insurance industry.

"I repeat an earlier pledge to you today that if elected to the General Assembly I will not have these inhibitions in seeking auto insurance reform.

"Furthermore, I plan to further my investigation of this problem with trips in the near future to Richmond and Washington, D.C. to talk with appropriate state and national officials.

"As the campaign progresses, I plan further commentary on the insurance problem and I will continue my call to have the 1972 session of the General Assembly move to act then on the problem."

Plan Okay

Final authorization for construction of a new bulkhead at Rudee Inlet passed City Council Monday 7-4.

An appropriation "not to exceed $40,000, will be used to build up the presently unimproved western end of the city's property, improve the parking lot and repair existing slips at the eastern end.

The appropriation is contingent on a June 1 deadline so that the 22 completed charter boat slips can be in operation for the peak fishing season.

Compromises Ahead

The city's new sign ordinance will be so dog-eared around the edges before it reaches official status no one will really comprehend what the final standards are.

City Council made a wise move in deferring a decision on the present ordinance for two weeks. The meeting Monday was, after all, a public hearing on the revised plan approved by the Planning Commission. It had not received a public hearing prior to Monday. When introduced, and approved, at the Commission's April 13 meeting, it had been modified from its advertised specifications. So, in effect, Council had the pleasure of holding the first hearing on it.

And surely Council got the message. In uncertain terms. The people are terribly concerned about billboard requirements within the city and it is not likely they would take passage of this particular ordinance sitting down.

But it seems equally unlikely that Council will approve the revisions. Not because they fear the repercussions such action might bring but because they, as citizens of the city, recognize the effects it would have on Virginia Beach.

It would be nice to have a city completely free of unsightly billboards, but this is an idealistic way of thinking. Proper restrictions is the logical and sensible answer. And that is the way Council must approach the problem.

It is imperative that the final ordinance place control on the size and setback of outdoor advertising, that use permits be deleted, and that certain thoroughfares be kept totally clear of all but the necessary road signs.

Planning Director Carrington has suggested that billboards be prohibited on the Virginia Beach Expressway, the section of the Interstate that runs through Virginia Beach, Shore Drive, Northampton Boulevard, and General Booth Boulevard. Hopefully these will be specified in the final ordinance but Council would also do well to include Independence Boulevard. This relatively new thoroughfare extends, primarily, through residential and multi-family communities and billboards have no place there. And there may be certain portions of other highways Council might consider.

The ordinance finally approved and put into effect will not, cannot, please all people. But the draft of the Planning Department and the Commission's Sign Committee—not the one approved April 13—bears close scrutiny by Council. There are compromises ahead and if Council approaches the problem with the City of Virginia Beach at heart, then an acceptable ordinance will surely be the outcome.

A Busy Week-End

It never rains but what it pours. And it will surely be pouring this week-end—hopefully not literally—when so many worthwhile events are scheduled simultaneously throughout the city.

Just thinking off the top of the head, the ones that immediately come to mind are:

The Armed Forces Day Parade Saturday on Atlantic Avenue, the city's way of paying tribute to the thousands of military citizens who live here.

The Civic Chorus's concert of American music Sunday, dedicated to the Virginia Beach wives of prisoners of war and those missing in action.

The Teen March Saturday and Sunday to benefit the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The Virginia Special Olympics for Retarded Children

Saturday to encourage special children throughout the state in physical fitness. This is to be held in Norfolk but, of course, involves many persons in this city.

The First Annual Walkathon Sunday on the beach from Rudee Inlet to Fort Story, to benefit the March of Dimes.

Open house at Fort Story Saturday and at Oceana Sunday, the military's way of sharing with its civilian neighbors.

The Peace Officers Memorial Day service Friday, the city's tribute to police officers who have died in the line of duty.

It's risky to cite just a few but each is so worthwhile in its own merit that those listed at least show the community interest displayed. Especially among the young people.

What it boils down to is this: Virginia Beach is a city with a heart.

PRACTICALLY IMPREGNABLE

Doctors Publicly Thanked

To the Editor:

In this day and time when everything we hear and read is of violence, discontentment, and unhappiness, I would like to say I am a very happy person who is glad to be living in this wonderful world of ours and especially to be living in the growing city of Virginia Beach.

Last December after having had my glasses changed twice in two months, my optometrist told me the next change would be to cover over one eye and that meant I would only be able to see with "one eye" vision. Of course, this made me very much upset. I have had double vision now since high school, but the doctor was always able to make the glasses strong enough to force the weak eye over to encourage single vision, this was done by the use of prisms.

The reason that I am one of the happiest persons in Virginia Beach is that our city has some of the best medical doctors in the whole Tidewater area. One of Virginia Beach's leading general practitioners, who is a very dedicated man himself (he has office hours only seven days a week), just happened to have a young talented son who now has an office in his father's building and is an ophthalmologist (and I must say—a very good one), and recommended me to see him.

My eyes were examined in January and he operated on the eye muscles in March. I would like to say I feel like a "brand new" person and happier than words can express! I am a real estate secretary and also, like driving a car; so you can see that seeing "single" vision instead of "double" is really changing my outlook on life. How would you like to drive a car and think there are two cars coming at you and try to decide which way to duck!

Would it be possible for me to thank both of these fine doctors publicly in, of course, Virginia Beach's own newspaper the Virginia Beach Sun? If so, Thank you very much both of you, Waller L. Taylor, Jr., MD and Waller L. Taylor Sr., MD, for your dedication to your work and helping to save and restore our citizens in Virginia Beach to a much healthier life.

In closing, I would like to ask, how can you thank a doctor for helping you in time of pain and sickness? You pay the bill, take some medicine, but that just doesn't seem to be enough, does it?

Thank you,

Nancy Lee Dewberry

A Thank You

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and Mrs. Helen Crist for the articles and pictures your newspaper carried regarding the activities of the students at Star of the Sea. In this day, it is most gratifying to read about the good our children are point work that reflects a phase of our heritage in America. With abundant illustrations provided, the authors next describe the materials used and the basic techniques involved in this handicraft. The chapter on color and design thoroughly treats the procedures for creating and working individual designs on canvas. The various stitches are described and illustrated for both right and left-handed people; methods for ripping out stitches and enlarging the canvas are given. Because of the long-lasting value of needlepoint it is necessary to employ the proper methods of blocking and mounting to insure the excellent appearance of the finished work; these methods are made explicit in the text.

Needlepoint as a rapidly growing and fascinating creative art is presented practically as well as beautifully by three expert needlepointers—the authors and Claire Valentine, who worked the designs for the cover and end papers of the book.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

doing, rather than the trouble they may be involved in. Sincerely, Sister Marie Eloise, IHM Principal

What Is Independent

To the Editor:

I was very surprised to read in the Virginian Pilot, Friday morning, April 29, 1971, the article entitled, "Beach's Cromwell Critic of Calls" in which Cromwell was quoted as saying Callis had broken a personal promise made to him prior to his appointment to City Council. The promise being that he would vote independently on issues presented before City Council.

The point I would like to make clear is that Mr. Cromwell himself ran for City Council as an independent lined up with Mr. Curtis Payne, Mr. D. Murray Malbon, and Mr. Reid Ervin. They all ran as Independents in the last Councilmanic Primary.

Gathering from the remarks made to the Anti-organization group which met at the White Heron Motel, it is very clear to me that he is not an independent, but definitely an Anti-organization man.

Sincerely, Lewis D. Thurston 4404 Wakefield Drive Virginia Beach, Va. 23455

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

Like many people in today's crisis oriented society I have become somewhat callous. Most minor tragedies move me little. It takes something major to stimulate me to feeling outraged, shocked or moved to an emotional state.

So much material passes across my desk, in order to dig out the information required to write a regular column, that I am almost immune to routine catastrophe. Even most earth shaking changes in our life styles seems like the expected thing.

Having spent several years of my adult life in the state of Maine I have long ago accepted the fact that Maine and its natives are something to shake your head about.

The state is the strangest of strange places, the Tim-buck-tu of America. The natives are the oddest of the odd, the Neanderthals of the outback U.S.A.

Due to my callousness and experience with Maine, I normally ignore most news items from that area. Expecting that one of these days the natives are going to discover the wheel and join the rest of the world, I do keep one ear open to the rumblings, grunts and whinnies from Maine.

Well, the boondocks of Maine have given me one heck of a shocker. They got through my callousness and moved me to outrage.

Before you read any further please sit down and try to relax. I don't want you to fall down where you read the latest.

It seems that the University of Maine, the state college, controlled by the Legislature, supported by the taxpayers, has established a new student abortion loan fund. This fund operates openly on campus with the full knowledge of the University officials and the Governor. The newspapers of the state have given this new approach to low morals wide publicity.

On Dec. 1, the fund was set up to assist coeds to go to New York for abortions. Since the abortion fund was set up it has been depleted by the coeds and had to be replenished.

In the long run it is expected that the students will provide the needed funds to continue this bizarre operation. Seventy-five cents of each student's activity fee has been earmarked to support the fund.

Wouldn't that peel the skin right off your onion?

Now try to remember that Maine has very strict abortion laws. The fund is for the expressed purpose of allowing University of Maine coeds to violate the existing state law, go to New York and have an abortion.

All this going on at a state University with the full knowledge of the officials.

About the only thing a coed must do to get an abortion loan is be pregnant, go in and ask for it, prove to the "population control committee" that she has an appointment with a New York doctor.

How do you like the name of the committee set up to control the fund - population control committee. That is a good one!

It is too bad the natives didn't try another approach by trying to control the moral situation that brings about the condition rather than just making abortion easier to finance than a car. It seems to be easier on the University of Maine campus to get an abortion loan than an educational loan.

SOMEHOW I GET the idea something is wrong with that kind of thinking.

Governor Kenneth Curtis has been quoted by the press as saying he doesn't like the idea but he doesn't know if it is illegal. The Penobscot county attorney, David Cox, has the matter under investigation.

Mr. Cox also said that he was investigating on his own, indicating no one in his area, citizens, parent or what have you, has made a complaint to him about the fund.

From what I can find out, the Legislature has not objected. It seems most of the Maine press has been mild in its remarks about this innovation in low morals.

A few individuals have put up a fuss but you must remember that it has been said that spathy and the dedication of life to not getting involved were invented in Maine.

Regardless of how you look at abortion, from a medical, legal, social, religious or what have you, the idea of a state University supporting it, in a state where the law makes it illegal to have one, just doesn't seem like the thing to do. I KEEP THINKING of the old saying, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation". That makes me shudder.

If this abortion fund at the University of Maine is a preview of what the nation is coming to, then we are in serious trouble! Let's hope this Maine disease doesn't infect the rest of the country.

Readers Nearly Split on Inlet

To be or not to be in the marina business continues to plague the City of Virginia Beach.

And from the responses to last week's question "Should the city sell or lease its property at Rudee Inlet and get out of the marina business?", the readers are pretty well divided on the issue themselves.

Those who favored a withdrawal from the Rudee Inlet situation won out, but just barely. There was only one vote difference.

Some of the comments were: "I have seen cities operate similar marinas in other states and have been quite successful at it."

"Yes and the property owners who benefit from the project should be taxed sufficiently to pay the cost of keeping the inlet opened."

"I do not fully understand the problem, but why does the marina at Lynnhaven appear to run so successfully? The public needs marina facilities as it needs parks."

"Why should I sink tax money into a channel that benefits only a few when I can't even get sewer lines to my house?"

There were also a few more responses in this week's mail on the previous question concerning the amendments to the budget. All were emphatically against them.

Since water-related problems seem to interest the people, we will continue along the same lines this week. A full story on the city's proposed dredging of the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River appears on page 1.

ALL EYES ARE ON Mrs. Robert Johnson, as Mrs. R. L. Templeton installs her as president. Watching are Mrs. Samuel Scott and Mrs. William Barbee.

'She's a hard act to follow'

"She's an awfully hard act to follow," said Mrs. Robert Johnson as she became president of the Virginia Beach Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club Saturday at the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club.

Outgoing president Mrs. Frederick Winfree leaves behind her a long list of accomplishments in her two terms, the most impressive of which was her selection this year as Outstanding Junior of the Year.

Noting the achievements of the Juniors under Maddy Winfree's term, Mrs. Earl Duval, president of the Princess Anne Woman's Club and a guest at the luncheon said, "You new officers will pick up the torch for the coming year and believe me it's a pretty hot one to carry."

Mrs. R. L. Templeton, past junior director of Tidewater District installed the new officers: Mrs. Johnson, president; Mrs. Samuel Scott, first vice president; Mrs. William Barbee, second vice president; Mrs. William Brake, third vice president; Mrs. William Lyons, recording secretary; Mrs. John Vlar, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles Holland, treasurer.

The club welcomed new members: Mrs. John X. Aragona, Mrs. Donald Boyd, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Consolvo, Mrs. Don DeSarro, Mrs. William C. Gill, Mrs. Ronald H. Marks, Mrs. Wayne Sawyer, Mrs. Donald Sullivan, and Mrs. R. J. Wyles.

They are joining a progressive club that recently was awarded first place by the state for its outstanding work in the field of mental retardation.

Continuing this program, they presented checks of $2,000 to the Tidewater Association for Retarded Children to Mrs. Carolyn Strickland, executive director, for the club's share of matching state funds for operation of two classes for retarded children; $1,000 to Mrs. Robert E. Summers, president of Camp Civitan board of trustees; $500 to John Cregar, chairman of Helping Hands for the Handicapped, to be used toward a two-week summer camp in July, at the Kingston Elementary School.

Explaining the summer camp further, Cregar said that it will be under the direction of Sister Mary Riley of Washington, D.C. There will be arts and crafts for the children. Cregar said that volunteers are needed for transportation for the children, and for instructing also. The hours are from 9 a.m. to noon. There is no age limit and both mentally and physically handicapped children are welcome.

Mrs. Betty Gallup who "came of age" and graduated from the club was named an honorary member.

Mrs. William V. Barber

Around The World In 89 days

Around the world in 89 days. This was the good fortune of Mrs. William V. (Edna) Barber of the Mayflower Apartments. She's back now, from a cruise aboard the S. S. Rotterdam, of the Holland-American Line.

The cruise touched such exotic ports as Bangkok, Cape Town, Bombay, Rio de Janeiro, Hong Kong, Nagasaki, Honolulu, Trinidad, Mombasa, among many others.

Mrs. Barber was traveling alone, and she used every available moment to see and learn everything she could.

It was a liberal education. Especially fascinated with Bangkok, Thailand, she noted the prevalence of robed Buddhist priests, their heads shaven.

The passengers received instructions in greeting the Siamese people. "We were to fold our hands in prayer and bow the head slightly at the same time just as they do," Mrs. Barber said. "When we went into the famous Wat Phra Keo Temple, we did this as we took off our shoes and entered barefoot."

It was here that they saw the Emerald Buddha carved from one piece of solid emerald. She said the Buddha's vestments are of gold and precious stones and they're changed by the king with each season of the year.

They walked about the walled grounds of the Grand Palace, and saw the king's golden throne which is topped by a huge umbrella.

In India, there was, of course, the great splendor of the Taj Mahal. But it was the poverty of India that she cannot forget.

"It's appalling," she said. "You would have to visit such places as Agra and see the hundreds of box-shaped one-room shacks, with no plumbing or electricity to realize what horrible conditions they live under."

She returned to her hotel and forthwith sent off a check to the Red Cross of India, hoping that on her return to the States, she could prevail upon her relatives and friends to do likewise.

As the huge cruise ship maneuvered the Panama Canal Mrs. Barber said she was in awe of the most tremendous engineering feat she had ever seen. "I marveled at man's intelligence to be able to construct such a project. But I also wondered why men of such intelligence couldn't find the solution to ending all wars."

It was in Cape Town that she was so impressed with the beauty of nature in the majestic mountains sloping down to the sea and the winding picturesque roads.

And the concern of the natives with their wild life struck her as she saw the huge natural parks where lions, tigers, elephants roamed about in their natural habitat. "Did you know that the elephants grow to twice the size there as do those in captivity?" she asked.

Of the ship on which she traveled, Mrs. Barber said it was a veritable floating palace. Company was congenial, and it was especially entertaining when Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bridges came aboard and mixed with the guests.

Mrs. Barber earned a 40,000 seamile medallion for her travel with the Holland-American Line. Previous cruises have taken her to the Mediterranean and the Caribbean.

She advises those contemplating a round-the-world cruise to take a shorter one first to test their sea legs.

One, would think, then, that it would mean a long rest at home ashore for a while for Mrs. Barber.

"On my no," she says, "in about a month I'll be ready to go again."

Mother of the Year

A PROUD SON holds the certificate that names his Mom "Mother of the Year"--Frank S. Gillikin, Jr., Friends School student, right wrote the winning letter. His father, Frank S. Gillikin, brother Benjamin think Mom is A-O-K too.

Son's letter a winner

Any woman would consider it an honor to be named "Mother of the Year."

For Mrs. Frank S. (Carol) Gillikin of Windsor Woods it was especially gratifying to be selected as the result of a letter written by her son, Frank, Jr., in a contest sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Police, Princess Anne Lodge No. 8. It was open to all school age children.

"The last thing she does at the end of the day is she sees that we say our prayers. I think my mother is perfect in every way."

Not only did Mrs. Gillikin receive the title as a result of the letter, but Frank received a $25 Savings Bond for writing it. Mrs. Gillikin, a graduate of Atlantic Christian College is teaching at Tranwood Elementary School. Her husband is a teacher at Linkhorn School. Another son, Benjamin, 3, attends Sunnybrook Day School.

Frank, a nine-year-old third grader, wrote: "I think my mother should be 'Mother of the Year' because she helps people. She is a school teacher. On Tuesday night she attends a class so she can do a better job at school. On other days after school she plays ball with my brother and me."

"Even though she works very hard she finds time to help Daddy plant flowers and other stuff. Also, on Sunday she helps in teaching a Sunday School class."

IT'S HAPPY CYCLING NOW for Mrs. Gladys Gooslin. Going along is Butterfly, her Persian cat.

Cycling surprise for beauty operator

Mrs. J. D. (Gladys) Gooslin, former owner of Gladys's Beauty Salon, put the last customer of the day under the dryer about two weeks ago when the most unexpected thing happened.

Through the front door came Mrs. Marvin Thomas riding a tricycle.

Gladys was speechless. "What in the world?" she thought. "Surprise" -- said Mrs. Thomas as she looked to the door and in came countless of Gladys's customers bearing a huge cake and refreshments. "Oh my goodness," Gladys said. She was so surprised that she doesn't even remember what she did.

Gladys, who has been conscientiously beautifying women for over 24 years was retiring, and her customers pitched in and bought her the tricycle to ride around her neighborhood in Aragona Village to her heart's content.

She's forced to retire, not by choice, but because she has rheumatoid arthritis, and it affects her hands so that it was impossible to continue with her work.

"It just tickled me to death," she says, "that they thought so much of me that they gave me that bike. I had the nicest bunch of customers anybody could have, and I have to say I miss them already."

Sun Story Gets Results

KRISTINE STROAD, with the assistance of Brownie Anne Powell and Charlene Robbins and Scout leader Mrs. June Martin arranges the donated books on waiting shelves.

When the Sun ran an article April 1 on the Woman's Page, stating the needs of the Seaside Community Center for books and paint for bookshelves in a library they hoped to establish, the response was immediate and commendable.

Mrs. Ethyl Denton, leader of Girl Scout Troop 126 of Beach-lawn Baptist Church, said, "I saw the article in the Sun and I thought it would make a very worthwhile project for our girls."

They approached other troops in the neighborhood. As a result, five girls from Cadette Troop 287 of the Church of the Good Shepherd painted the bookcases. Junior troops 126 and 285 and Brownie Troop 510 gathered 120 books.

Then Mrs. Denton, Mrs. R. F. Coulthard, librarian at W. T. Cooke School, and seven scouts presented the books to Kristine Stroad, STOP worker at the Community Center.

Miss Stroad, who made the need known in the article, was overwhelmed. "They're fabulous--all of them," she said of the scouts.

There's still plenty of room for more books Kristine said, and she'll welcome other donations for the fledgling library. She also wishes to thank the others who donated books to the library.

Hospital growth steady

W. Earl Willis, administrator of General Hospital of Virginia Beach, announced this week the opening of a new 50 bed medical and surgical unit.

"It seems appropriate," he said, "that the opening coincides with National Hospital Week. And what better way for us here at the hospital to show we care than to be able to extend the facilities necessary to meet the health care needs of our community."

There will be observances of the week from May 9-15 at the hospital. A coffee was held Tuesday to honor all employees. A picture display in the lobby emphasized the responsibilities of various departments in giving each patient the care required to return him to health. Bumper stickers and lapel buttons printed with "Your hospital cares" are available to all employees.

The growth of the hospital has been constant and impressive. Recently a 24 bed pediatric unit was added. "We now have a total bed complement of 242 beds and we'll work toward future growth as the needs of our community expand," Willis said.

'Miss America-Ruritan Style

Miss America, JOE SMITH was introduced to the audience to get the show started. Miss America was dressed in the latest style candy striped sheets.

Bulging biceps, hairy legs, five o'clock shadow...surely not at a Miss America contest!

But yes-it was part and parcel of the Miss America, Southern Style contest staged recently by Kempville Ruritan Club at Kempville High School, as a fun-fund raiser.

John Banks, president, said, "Well, it sure showed that people can still laugh and relax nowadays."

And how could it miss? Picture the men-clomping down the runway, wigs slightly askew, big feet "daintily" stepping on the hems of too-tight female garments, lipstick on crooked, eyelashes slipping.

Billed as strictly southern style, it was to tolerate no invading northern contestants. Witness the consternation, then, when Ray Masse dramatically entered the stage, with "Miss Vermont" emblazoned across his chest.

Mike Garriott, MC, nearly flipped, "Out" he said. When that didn't work, he said, "You'll have to sit over there by yourself-don't contaminate our southern 'girls.'"

That was fine with Ray, who proceeded to flirt with the judges, blow kisses to them, lifted his skirt revealing a snazzy garter and...behaved in a most unladylike manner.

And to top off the hijinks, the throne on which "Miss America", or Cotton McLenny was to sit, was really a camouflaged old-fashioned commode.

As "Miss America" clumped down the runway and prepared to ascend to the throne, some Ruritans sneaked over and removed the camouflage revealing the preposterous commode.

But "Miss America" played it to the hilt. Stepping gingerly up to the throne, "she" gracefully bent over and lifted the lid, looked down inside, and sat on it with all the dignity and eloquence "she" could muster.

Then came the evening gown competition led off by MISS FLORIDA, KINKY CHARLES, Former Assistant Principal of Princess Anne High School.

MISS TEXAS, ROLANDE E. DORER was dressed in knee length boots and a mini-evening gown. Dorer was responsible for writing the script of the production.

MISS WEST VIRGINIA, CALVIN LILLY, was next on the ramp dressed in an A-line, street length sleeveless satin evening dress.

MISS VERMONT, RAY MASSE, was prohibited from sitting with a group of Southern Champs, and was ushered by M. C. Mike Garriot to a separate seating area reserved for the yankee girls.

Then came the bathing suit competition with MISS MISSISSIPPI, LEROY COX, parading a 42-40-38 along the stage.

In the talent competition, HORACE CURLING, MISS ALABAMA, performed a moving solo to the delight of contestants and audience.

MISS VIRGINIA, COTTON MCLENNY, surprised everyone with his ability on the trumpet.

MISS TENNESSEE, JOHN BANKS, President of the Kempville Ruritan Club happily surveys the scene as the pageant moves through its various phases.

The judges, RED MORRIS, BUDDY BYERS, STERLING MONTGOMERY, FRANK MATTHEWS and BEULAH HUMPHRIES (not present when the photo was taken) watch attentively to select the Miss America.

When the five finalists were announced, they included, MISS VIRGINIA COTTON MCLENNY; MISS ALABAMA; HORACE CURLING; MISS GEORGIA; TAD WORKMAN; MISS MISSISSIPPI; LEROY COX; and MISS NORTH CAROLINA, BOBBY HOWARD.

After many anxious moments, MISS VIRGINIA was named the new MISS AMERICA, much to the delight of the audience.

Teachers End 76 Years of Service

Curtains are being drawn on careers of two elementary school teachers who've spent a total of 76 years in Tidewater school systems. Transferred into numbers of students, those 76 years account for about 1,900 children.

Members of Alanton Elementary School PTA recently held a reception honoring the school's principal, Mrs. Emily Cobb Parks, and first grade teacher Mrs. Mary Harrell Bradburne. Mrs. Parks has taught for 30 years while Mrs. Bradburne's career spans 46 years.

Mrs. Bradburne, a first grade teacher, ends her career with a record few other teachers can match—in 46 years, she's never missed a day because of personal illness. A lifetime resident of the Virginia Beach area, she graduated from Creeds High School before attending Longwood and Madison Colleges. She taught at Creeds, Charity and W. T. Cooke before moving to Alanton.

She plans to spend her spare time helping needy people in nursing homes.

When Mrs. Parks retires, Alanton will lose its first and only principal. "Since I had not had the opportunity to open a new facility, when the principalship of Alanton was offered to me, I accepted," she said. Before coming to Alanton, Mrs. Parks was principal of W. T. Cooke Elementary where she met Mrs. Bradburne.

Mrs. Parks, a native of the Eastern Shore, also served as assistant principal at Kempsville High School. She, too, is a graduate of Longwood.

Spare time will be spent traveling between the Parks' house on the Eastern Shore and Florida. "But Virginia Beach will still be home," Mrs. Parks said.

MRS. PARKS, seated, and MRS. BRADBURNE examine attendance reports before classes begin at Alanton. When the women retire, they'll be taking a total of 76 years' experience with them.

Knotts Island May Day Festival

Miss Currituck 1971, BRENDA DENBY, was on hand to greet the several hundred spectators at the May Day celebration.

And what parade would be complete without horses.

KNOTTS ISLAND, N. C.--The population of this small farming and fishing community at the top of the Outer Banks swelled to three times its usual size Saturday when firemen, servicemen and high school bands gathered for the annual May Day celebration.

With a cooperative nod from the weatherman, the rain dribbled out and allowed volunteer firemen from Virginia Beach, politicians from Currituck County, bands from Tidewater and spectators from everywhere to enjoy themselves under partially overcast skies.

An annual event of the Knotts Island Volunteer Fire Department and the ladies' auxiliary, the May Day festivities included a 50-unit parade, the crowning of a May queen, several concessions, a lavish lunch, auctions and dancing.

One of the parade entries, the Knotts Island ambulance, was bought with proceeds for past May Day celebrations. Mrs. Jane Brumley, wife of Fire Chief W. G. (Buster) Brumley, said the celebration was begun "six or seven years ago" to gather enough money to provide the remote island with badly needed ambulance service.

"We tried to think of something that would attract people out here and, at the same time, collect some money," said Mrs. Brumley. Hence, the birth of May Day.

Dorothy Cason of Knotts Island was chosen from a field of four as May Queen 1971.

DOROTHY CASON, May Day Queen 1971, squints to keep the sun from her eyes after being selected. She reigned over all festivities and will return next year to crown her successor.

From Kellam High School, the Marching Black Knights' intricate routine took them from one side of the road to the other.

Firemen Compete For Honors

Volunteers from the Beach Borough fire dept. (left) advance on Davis Corner volunteers to emerge victorious in the "water battle" contest.

Plaza volunteer fireman TOM CURTIS fights against the clock, under the watchful eyes of judges, in defending his department in the one man hose coupling contest.

Volunteer firemen from the Beach Borough, Davis Corner, Kempville, Plaza, and Thalia, joined their counterpart from Phoebus on the Peninsula, in friendly competition last Saturday in the annual "Firemen's Contest" staged at the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center.

The contest, which featured competition between firemen using skills they would employ in answering fire alarms, culminated the weekend "Firemen's Carnival" sponsored by Plaza Volunteer Fire Dept.

Beach Borough volunteers distinguished themselves by winning the highly prized first place trophy in the "water battle" by defeating the defending champions from Davis Corner, who captured the trophy for the past four years.

The winning team was composed of Paul Mauch, Steve Wray, Russell Holland, Rex Gurley and T. J. Morse, Davis Corner defenders, who received a runner-up trophy, consisted of Dickie Taylor, Mike Wade, Mike Mayo, Butch Simmons, and John Scanlon.

A number of other events, for which first and runner-up trophies were presented to winners, staged during the "Firemen's Contest" included one-man hose coupling, Phoebus-first, Kempville-second; five-man dressing, Phoebus-first, Davis Corner-second; and four-man hose coupling, Kempville-first, Beach Borough-second.

DEBBIE HOREIS, who moments ago had been named "Miss Plaza", performed her first official act by presenting Beach Borough Volunteers their first place trophy in the "water battle" competition.

Firemen Make Rescue

BEACH BOROUGH FIREMAN W. H. Adams, with the assistance of other men of his unit, goes to the rescue of a stranded cat in the Harbour Point area of the city. Adams retrieved the cat from its precarious perch after it somehow became stranded between branches some 20 feet from the ground.

Books Ready

The telephone directories for Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach will be delivered beginning May 14 and are for use effective Friday, May 28.

L. F. Patrick, local manager for The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia said over 500,000 directories are being printed for the Tidewater area. Initially about 425,000 books will be distributed—about 25 percent more than last year. The remainder of the phone books will be used during the year for replacement and for new subscribers.

Patrick pointed out that the directory cover has a new format and will be on all other future phone books published by C&P. This new format is for quick identification and standardization of the cover as a directory of a Bell System company. The cover has a background of blue and white with stripes of blue and ochre as well as the name of the company and the locality the book serves. The yellow page symbol also appears on the front cover.

For quick reference the inside cover will have the telephone numbers of local area police and fire departments. The frequently called number page is on the inside of the back cover.

In relating some statistics about the directories the C&P manager said over 1,650,000 pounds of text paper and almost 40,000 pounds of cover stock was used in the directories. The white and yellow sections total some 1204 pages, an increase of 35 pages over last year.

Other items of interest can also be found in the directory according to Patrick. Some of these are: the address of various telephone business offices, zip codes, local churches and payment agencies where the customers may pay their telephone bills in person.

Some thirty-four tractor trailer truck loads will bring the new directories into the Tidewater area. To deliver the books to subscribers about 450 people, according to the C&P local manager, are required.

Old directories should be discarded after May 28.

Financial benefits for motorists using the interstate highway system are substantial, and will more than pay for the investment, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

By completion in the late 1970's, total cost of the interstate program is estimated at $70 billion -- but total user benefits are estimated at $107 billion, mainly because of savings in driving and accident costs.

Fair Poster Winners

THESE PROUD GIRLS WERE winners in a poster contest held to promote the Tranterwood Elementary School "State Fair" Carnival being held this Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the school. Winners were (L. to R.) Lisa Feuer, 3rd prize; Lee Drury, 1st prize; Kelly Stenger, 2nd prize; and Brenda Henry, grand prize. The carnival will feature a country store, pony rides, space walks, many games, and drawings for a color T.V., electric waffle iron, a mixette, and a three speed bicycle.

Coliseum Featuring Musicians

Three of the most talented instrumentalists in the field or stream of popular music will demonstrate their talent in the Hampton Roads Coliseum Friday, May 14.

Guitarist Chet Atkins, sax specialist Boots Randolph and pianist Floyd Cramer are scheduled for a 2 1/2 hour show at the Coliseum starting at 8:30 p.m.

The show is billed as the 1971

Master's Festival of Music and includes the Music City Sound and the Boots Randolph Orchestra.

Randolph is known for his "Yakety-Sax" style; Cramer hit it big more than 10 years ago with his million selling record of "Last Date"; and Atkins--well, he's recognized internationally as a premier picker. There will also be a laugh-provoking part of the show: Homer and Jethro, the long-playing parody experts will be featured on the program.

Tickets are on sale at the Hampton Roads Coliseum box office, all area Sears Stores and Nachman's. Prices are $5.50, $4.50 and $3.50.

policy, when purchasing a new paper, to become "totally involved" in the community the paper serves. "And we plan to become totally involved in the City of Virginia Beach," he said.

Dear did not elaborate on plans for the newspaper but did say "we do not plan to make a clean sweep of everyone there."

The purchase involves Beach Publishing Corp., and includes the commercial printing business as well as the newspaper. It does not involve WVAB Radio which is housed in the same building on Pacific Avenue but is operated by Sea Broadcasting, a totally separate corporation.

Beach Publish Corp. is owned by a number of stockholders in Virginia Beach.

The Virginia Beach Sun, now in its 46th year of publication merged in the 1940's with another local weekly, the Virginia Beach News, and up until a few years ago was known as the Sun-News.

In the 1960's the newspaper expanded as a bi-weekly publication but later reverted to a weekly schedule. In 1966 the corporation modernized its physical plant and purchased an off-set press.

GEX To Award Scholarships

G. E. X. of Virginia Beach will again this year award six college scholarships to outstanding High School Seniors in the Tidewater area by Mr. Joe DeCroy, Store Manager.

The scholarships, which are open to the sons and daughters of G.E.X. members, are valued at $500 each, and may be used at any accredited college or university in the nation.

The selection of the scholarship recipients will be made by a committee of leading educators from Tidewater. Awards are based on scholastic achievements and financial need.

The local awards are part of a national scholarship program instituted in 1960 by the G.E.X. organization. This year 120 scholarships, valued at $63,000 will be awarded in 20 cities across the nation, California.

Barracks Dedicated

Adm. P. E. Seuffer, Commander Atlantic Division Naval Facilities Engineering Command and Vice Admiral R. L. Townsend, Commander Naval Air Force Atlantic Fleet, joined in dedicating a new enlisted men's barracks at Oceana Naval Air Station last Friday.

The barracks is modernistic in decor and appointments to provide comfortable quarters for its occupants, and offers more individual privacy than previous such military housing units.

Providing space for 504 men the building contains 126 four-man rooms and was constructed at a cost of $1.23 million in congressionally appropriated funds. Landscaping for the site, providing a natural setting of trees and flowering shrubs, is estimated to cost $8,000.

This facility will increase Oceana's barracks housing capacity to 2,900 persons.

All entries for the contest must be postmarked no later than midnight May 21. Preliminary judging will be June 10 and 11, and the finals will be at 8 p.m. June 25 at Plaza Junior High School.

Official entry forms are available from the City Parks and Recreation Department, 4700 Recreation Drive, or in the children's departments of Smith & Welton's, Miller & Rhoads, Sears, Rose Mall, and Evelyn's Children's Shop, plus Princess Hair Styles and Crystal Room Beauty Shop.

The 1971 winner will be crowned by Miss Amanda Kimberly Owens, "Little Miss Virginia Beach of 1970," and will receive a variety of valuable prizes.

Recreation Director Harold S. Whitehurst said there were 48 entries in the 1970 contest and twice that number is expected for this year's event.

Leslie will be an honor graduate this June and will enter the University of Virginia in the fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Falls of Virginia Beach.

The band, under the direction of Jerry Cole, last week-end took second place, out of 30 competing bands, in the Centennial Celebration Parade in Cary, N.C.

The group has been invited to represent all the Lions Clubs in the state at the Nevada parade on June 22.

4-H's Cite Firm

A Certificate of Recognition from the National 4-H Club Foundation has been presented to Harley R. Powell, vice-president and general manager of Henderson Oil Company, for his company's support of the Virginia Beach 4-H youth programs.

The award was presented by Mrs. C. H. Bungard in behalf of the 4-H Adult Leaders and Miss Judy Nicklas, who represented the more than 4,500 Virginia Beach 4-H'ers.

Roy P. Henderson, president of Henderson Oil Company, and Powell have supported the 4-H Junior Steer show for the past nine years. This year they are sponsoring the 4-H calendar program for the Adult Leaders and youth in the community.

"The youth in our community is the most important resource we have. The 4-H Club work is helping to develop our youth into useful and responsible citizens. We are very pleased to have had the opportunity to play a part in supporting and developing our youth through the 4-H programs," Powell said.

Police Receive Grant

Grants totalling $10,639 have been awarded to the Virginia Beach police department by the Virginia Council on Criminal Justice for the improvement of law enforcement and administration of criminal justice on the local level.

The grants are made possible from funds available under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act in accordance with provisions of the State VCCJ comprehensive plan for fiscal year 1970.

Bomb Threat Nets Conviction

A 17-year-old boy is awaiting sentencing following his conviction of making a false bomb threat to the Virginia Beach Junior High School on March 5. Authorities said such an offense is a felony and conviction of the charge carries a penalty of imprisonment of from one to ten years.

The larger portion of the grants amounting to $8,774 is under the classification of establishment and expansion of forensic laboratory services. The funds will be utilized in the purchase of a fully equipped scientific Mobile Crime Laboratory which will enable the collection, preservation, and preliminary analysis and evaluation of evidence at the scene of a crime. A portion of the funds will also be used in special training for police Sgt. C. E. Carlson in mobile crime laboratory techniques at the Sirchi Laboratory in New Jersey.

Citizens Support River Dredging

"The State, in their efforts to protect the oystermen, are actually contributing to the demise of the Lynnhaven River," Community Services Director W. W. Fleming told state officials Tuesday at a public hearing on the city's proposed dredging of the river's Eastern Branch.

He said the objections from several state agencies, which last year halted the project, were "without substance" and that Tuesday's hearing was to "give the City of Virginia Beach a fair rebuttal" to those objections.

The hearing was called by the State Water Control Board which must certify approval of the dredging before it will be considered by the Army Corps of Engineers. The certification is based on water quality standards.

A large group of citizens were on hand to support the city's proposal, many of them civic league representatives with petitions signed by hundreds of property owners affected by the dredging.

Delegates Richard D. Guy and B. R. Middleton also spoke in behalf of the city's efforts to improve the "dying" Eastern Branch.

"The river is polluted, stagnant and filling with silt," Guy said. "It will soon be unusable by either wildlife or man. My support of this project has been clearly defined. I wish to state today my continued support of it."

"I came to this hearing to learn of any additional objections to the dredging which might influence my thinking," Middleton said, "but I have heard nothing that would change my mind."

Two of the strongest supporters were representatives

League to Hear Candidates

The two Democratic candidates for the State Senatorial seat will speak before the Lake Shores Civic League Friday. Incumbent Senator Edward T. Caton III and Delegate Richard D. Guy, who is vying for Caton's post in the June 8 primary, will speak at 8:15 p.m. at Shelton Park Elementary School.

The league's business agenda will include election of officers. The public is invited to hear the candidates.

Auditorium Dedication Set Sun.

Friends of London Bridge Baptist Church are invited to a dedication of a new auditorium May 23 at 2:30 p.m. It is the latest in a series of expansion plans for the church, one of the oldest in the area.

Established May 1784, with a mission from the original Pungo Baptist church, now Oak Grove, it was located on the eastern shore of Lynnhaven River. Men and women entered the separate front doors of the frame structure and sat separately in church. Older men and women occupied special "amen corner" seats near the pulpit, and the necessary and indispensable cuspidor was available.

Linkhorn Bay at Chandler's Farm became the scene of many a baptism—and services outside were routine.

Over the years the church was remodeled and modern improvements added. A vestibule and steeple were built in 1903. A church bell was placed in the steeple.

In 1946 fire destroyed the church, necessitating services in the auditorium of Oceana High School. A new church was erected in 1948; an educational building was added in 1955.

The present structure of Colonial architecture rises 97 ft., 5-in. above the ground to the highest point of a gleaming white cross on top of the white fiberglass spire of the steeple.

of the Chesapeake Colony Civic League, Donald Clarke, president, and Captain George Ayres, former president and now chairman of its waterways committee.

Clarke said Chesapeake residents "have learned to live with foul smells, with mosquitoes that breed in the mudflats, we dare not crab or fish in the water in our backyards and certainly would not dare to eat the meat, we must warn our children not to even wade in the water because it is so polluted."

Ayres has been actively supporting the dredging for over three years, he said "and I have been stuck in the silt in small boats. I have seen and smelled the problem. We have a dying river and unless something is done to correct the condition it can only worsen."

He displayed an aerial photograph of the river in 1959, showing the open channels, and one taken in 1970, showing them closed. He also presented an exhibit explaining the improvements in the Western Branch since dredging began there in 1968.

A number of oystermen spoke in opposition to the proposed dredging, most of them fearing total contamination of the river once the riverbed is disturbed. Over two miles have already been restricted to marketing of oysters because of pollution. A portion of the 70 acres the city hopes to dredge in this contaminated area, Fleming said.

"I think it would be wonderful if you could clean the river up," G. C. Marshall said. "But if you clean it up and the State Department of Health condemns it, that's something else, if you can clean it up and not condemn it then I am all for it."

"I don't want to oppose the channel necessarily," said Earl Smith Sr. who has about six beds in the affected area, "but this dredging is going to cause a lot of damage to the oysters." In answer to a question from Fleming, Smith said, if given adequate time, he could possibly remove most of his oysters to another site.

The hearing will remain open for 10 days so that additional information and testimony can be sent the State Water Control Board.

About 50 Beach Lodgings 'Unsafe'

An estimated 50 buildings used as transient lodgings in the resort borough have been classified as unsafe as the result of a three week inspection of such facilities.

The inspections were conducted by a team of city officials representing the health department, fire prevention bureau, the building inspector's office, and public works department.

The majority of the buildings involved contain apartments and similar quarters normally leased or rented for relatively short durations of time.

The inspectors said they found unsafe electrical wiring; below-standard plumbing or the complete lack of it; floors, walls, and ceilings which have deteriorated; as well as some buildings which have become delapidated.

Indications were also given that some of the rooms in these buildings were in an unsanitary condition as the result of a large accumulation of trash and junk thus presenting a health hazard to occupants.

Several of the buildings involved also reportedly failed to offer sufficient means of exit in the event of fire, which would thus result in trapping occupants inside and prohibit firemen from properly fighting the fire.

George L. Hanbury, Assistant to the City Manager, said the owners of the property which have been found unsafe or unsanitary will be given notice that conditions must be corrected.

Hanbury said the program was carried out "to rid the city of locations which were being used as housing in the creation of undesirable conditions in the city."

The School Board accepted with regret a reduced budget as presented by Supt. E. E. Brickell Tuesday at a meeting at Plaza Junior High School.

A budget cut of $140,000 was necessary as a result of City Council's approval of a reduced school budget, necessary when voters rejected recently a school bond issue.

Board member James L. Kitchen specifically objected to the curtailment of $50,000 deletion earmarked for funds for a special reading series, which will result in a $4 fee to parents of the children involved.

"I hope City Council realizes they're going right back into the taxpayer's pocket to do this," he said, adding that he was against the budget cuts.

Walter Carroll, director of secondary education, discussed the eight period school day. He said that a sample day would begin with a first session from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.; a second, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with a 9-3 period in between. "This will accommodate 4,000 additional students," he said. Projected enrollment in secondary schools next year is 18,152.

Teachers will be on a seven hour work day, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., with staggered hours. They hope to have a librarian available at all times.

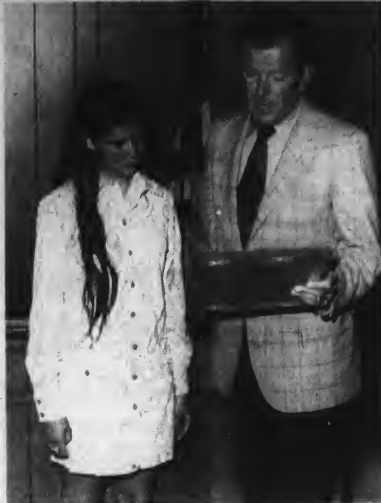

The plan would, ineffect, be equivalent to adding another school to the system. "We have no choice but to accept the plan," Brickell said.

The board approved a lease for additional land at Bayside Elementary School, at $1 per year for 99 years.

The six acres of land, owned by the Virginia Truck and Ornamentals Research Station brings the school to the necessary standards set by the State Board of Education. The lease is subject to change by the Governor's office.

A REPLAY OF LAST YEAR--Nancy Murphey receives the Point O'Woods Civic League's Junior Citizenship Award from Del. Beverly Middleton.

Flag-Raiser Cited

Nancy Murphey, a 14-year-old seventh grader at Trantwood School, has established a monopoly on the Point O'Woods Civic League's Junior Citizenship Award. Last week, for the second time in as many years, Nancy again received the award.

Del. Bev Middleton was on hand to present Nancy a silver bracelet with a flag charm and a parchment certificate. She also will receive a Virginia flag that has flown over the Capitol in Richmond, Middleton said.

Nancy, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Samuel B. Murphey of 400 East Promenade Road, was honored "for demonstrating superb junior citizenship qualities by faithfully raising and lowering our National emblem daily at the Point O'Woods front entrance on Virginia Beach Blvd. for the past two years."

In October, 1969, Nancy received a letter from the Exalted Ruler of the Virginia Beach Elks Club commending her for her outstanding civic duties. Later, Congressman Thomas N. Downing sent the civic league a U. S. flag that had flown over the Capitol and a letter to Nancy congratulating her for raising the flag in care.

"We want to go right ahead in getting this newspaper into all the homes in Virginia Beach," he said. "We want the

Elderly Man Badly Burned

Raymond Ankrum, 72, was severely burned when fire engulfed his house trailer in the County View Trailer Court on Holland Road about 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Hospital officials listed Ankrum in serious condition in the "burn unit" of Norfolk General Hospital.

Authorities said the fire apparently started with an explosion in the kitchen, Ankrum reportedly was pulled from the trailer by neighbors who were awakened by the explosion and sounded the fire alarm.

New Officers Head Beach Publishing

Virginia Beach attorney Thomas C. Broyles, partner in the firm of Broyles, Broyles & McKenry, has been elected president of the re-organized Beach Publishing Corporation, publishers of the Virginia Beach Sun.

Sale of the local corporation See Editorial Page 4 to Dear Publication and Radio, Inc. of Washington, D. C. was finalized Monday and officers were elected.

John R. Griffin, general manager of the Sun, will continue to serve as vice president of the corporation, David R. Dear, president of Dear Publication, will be treasurer. The new secretary is William Sheldon, general manager of the Daily Advance in Elizabeth City, N. C., one of the newspapers owned by Dear, Walter Dear, president of the Gleaner-Journal in Henderson, Ky., another Dear publication, is assistant secretary-treasurer.

The new owners took immediate possession of the business and held a get-acquainted conference with the staff Monday afternoon.

Sheldon told the group there were no changes in the staff presently anticipated but that changes would be made in the editorial content of the newspaper. Priority expansions will be in circulation, classified advertising and display advertising.

"We want to go right ahead in getting this newspaper into all the homes in Virginia Beach," he said. "We want the people of this city to know that they do have a voice, that they do have their own newspaper."

He reiterated Dear's statement of last week that the Sun will become "totally involved in the City of Virginia Beach."

Sheldon said that no immediate change in the publication schedule is planned but indicated it may be accelerated next year. "We do not expect to publish daily in 1971," he said, "but it is possible in 1972."

The Sun's editorial stand will be "completely independent of any political faction," Sheldon said. "When the people read this newspaper they will not know whether the publisher is a Republican or a Democrat. They will know only that the paper stands for what it believes is right, for what is best for the city. We want, above all else, to be fair."

Hopeful Marina Builder Must Submit Top Bid

City Council has declared "surplus" a 75-foot strip of marshland at Rudee Inlet, clearing the way for a private developer to build a 60-slip marina...providing he comes up with the top bid on the land.

Tourist Development Coordinator Robert Whitley outlined the plans of Joe Weller to expand his marina during informal session of council Monday and asked that the property be leased to the developer.

While basically in favor of the proposal, council was hesitant to lease the site since it already plans to sell the city's interest at Rudee Inlet this fall and "get out of the marina business."

Weller said he hoped for a 10-year lease—Whitley said 10 years was more realistic to the city—since it would take about $8,000 in fill to prepare the site for the marina. The property is all marsh, only about one foot above normal high tide. It borders property Weller presently owns.

When asked about the temporary status of the land there, pending the sale sometime after September, Whitley said that the lease could be put on an "option to buy" basis so that Weller could buy it and not lose his investment.

He said Weller had already spent $200 to get an appraisal of the property. It was appraised at $6,000 Whitley said and he suggested a rental of $600 per year.

"This is what we've been waiting for," Councilman Robert Cronwell said, "we've been wanting private development at Rudee Inlet. But I'm not sure this is the right way to go about it."

Council agreed that the most equitable way of handling the

Animal Fair to be Big

A variety of attractions and entertainment will greet those who attend the Virginia Beach SPCA Animal Fair Sunday at the Cavalier Beach Club from 12:30 to 6 p.m.

Marie Thompson, one of the best known dog trainers in Tidewater, will conduct a dog obedience demonstration. Excerpts from "The Fog Prince", under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Ellberg, will be presented at 3 p.m. by students of Garrison Williams School. The playlet will be presented at Lake Wright Dinner Theatre on Saturday at 8 p.m., as a special benefit for the SPCA.

Lt. Newton Miller, a Cincinnati pilot who plays the banjo and guitar and sings in a Navy barbershop quartet, will present a musical program at 4 p.m.

The Virginia Beach Police Canine Corps, under the supervision of Stanley Bennett, will perform at 5 p.m.

Other animals will also play a big role in the fair. Many prize winning cats will make an appearance and some of the delightful dogs and cats from the SPCA shelter will be available for adoption.

A "Celebrity Corner" will also be featured with a number of representatives of radio, television and newspapers on hand to meet the guests.

Proceeds from the fair will be used to build a much-needed addition to the shelter.

'Any Wednesday' Is Rollicking Good Fun

The Lake Wright Dinner Theatre, with several other successful comedies tucked under its belt, is continuing its recent trend with "Any Wednesday". And the successes continue to be attributed to a good cast and excellent set. Certainly this play has both. Muriel Resnik's "Any Wednesday" is basically a fluffy short story about a young mistress who is well cared for in an apartment provided by her wealthy business-type lover. The apartment is a tax-deductible executive suite, as far as the firm is concerned, but for Ellen and John it is their Wednesday hide-away.

A new secretary in John's office fouts things up when she turns the key over to a visiting businessman whose company has been absorbed by the larger firm and makes things even more chaotic for the losers by opening the doors to John's wife.

Margaret Lunsford brings an entirely different interpretation to the role of Ellen, the mistress, by unleashing her own flair for comedy, creating a perfectly delightful uninhibited character. Miss Lunsford actually does as much for the role as any actress could possibly do and her portrayal of a warm, outgoing and definitely kooky young woman is a welcome change from the usual sophisticated or baby-dollish mistress-types. She wins her audience in the opening scene and never once loses her grip as the play progresses.

For those who acclaimed her as the Mute in "The Fantasticks" and the multi-character role of the Woman in "Sunday in New York", Miss Lunsford's talented portrayal in this play comes as no surprise. It is only unfortunate that she has not had more prominent lead roles in local theatre, especially since she has been accepted by the Cleveland Playhouse and will soon leave the area.

Rolla Nuckles as John, the slightly aging lover, is simply not up to the exuberant antics of Ellen. One pictured him with a stereotype sophisticated mistress rather than this childlike waif who adores balloons and her wildly decorated apartment, complete with tied-on flowers in the garden. Nuckles is a talented actor and director but it is perhaps the combination here that hinders him. His character is one-dimensional simply because he, as director, cannot see that John is often stilted. If he relaxes and permits the Nuckles personality to take over, all will be well.

Peggy Boykin as Dorothy, the wife, is charmingly effervescent and vivacious. She is occasionally a bit too sweet-sweet (perhaps cutie) toward the younger woman with whom her husband has been having an affair, and though this distracts very little from her portrayal, a sharp word now and then would more endear her to the audience, at least to the female members.

David Nichols, who has the role of Cass, the visiting businessman thrown into the midst of the wife-mistress-lover triangle, is one of those many talented young men who seems capable of handling every type theatre job, on or off stage. The set in this play is, in fact, his doing. His out-of-breath, wordless "Delivery Man in Barefoot in the Park" was a show-stopper. This particular type of role is not exactly his cup of tea—it's too straight, too humorless—but he nevertheless tackles it with much perseverance and does a fine job. If the playwright had given this character the witty lines and situations Miss Lunsford has, Nichols' Cass would have been long remembered in local theatre. He simply does not have the chance to cut loose in this one. Unfortunately, this is Nichols' farewell performance here; he leaves in June for Australia.

"Any Wednesday" is a bit dog-eared from its exposure but still is a play nearly everyone will enjoy. It's fast-paced, rollicking and just plain fun. And Lake Wright has done an excellent job with it.

Winners Announced

The Virginia Beach Public Schools announce through the Department of Health and Physical Education the winners of the Girls Extramural Tennis Tournament. The contest was held at Princess Anne High School on May 15th with a record number of entries. This is the first year that the junior highs have been entered in this event.

The tournament was held in two divisions, required and elective, with singles and doubles being played in both divisions. All entries were winners of their school intramural tournaments.

Winners were as follows: Required Singles winner was Cindy Shaver of Bayside High over Judy Nicklas of Princess Anne by 6-4, 6-3.

The required doubles was won by Lisa Pauls - Amy Hirtz of Cox over Cheryl White - Karen Wallace of Kempsville 6-3, 6-6, 6-2.

The Elective Singles winner was Debbie Ward of Cox over Kathy Harrison of Princess Anne 6-0, 6-0. The Elective Doubles were won by Nancy Dmoch - Maggie May 6-4, 6-4; over Susan Wagner - Millie Downing of Bayside.

The Extramural Track Meet will be held at Kellam High School on May 28th at 6:00 p.m.

They are Bailey L. Condrey Sr., William J. Fannery, W. Clark Fleming Jr., Marvin G. Hollenbeck, J. P. Sadler and William J. Vaughan.

Antique Shop Opens

"The Peddler's Wife" is the provocative name of a new business at 209 20th Street. Owned by Nancy Warren, she says, "I am the peddler's wife."

She is, in fact, the wife of Milton Warren, salesman, and the mother of five children. Her shop will display antiques primarily, although a boutique is planned for later.

Now, we asked her as she was moving in, did she commence to collect antiques?

"We lived in Greenwich, Conn. and I had a new baby and a great big house, and it was just a natural thing to do—there in New England—to collect antiques."

Finally, there were so many antiques that she knew she needed a store to display them. She leans toward the country pieces. But she will carry all kinds, and they are completely refreshed, she notes.

Look for her shop, every day but Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

6 Men Named

Six Virginia Beach men were named Wednesday to a 24-member President's Advisory Council for Virginia Wesleyan College.

They are Bailey L. Condrey Sr., William J. Fannery, W. Clark Fleming Jr., Marvin G. Hollenbeck, J. P. Sadler and William J. Vaughan.

There is little doubt that

There's an "awakening" at Village Gallery . . . an awakening of the over-30 crowd to the talent and sensitivity of today's generation.

The present exhibit, which will continue through May, is the gallery's third annual showing of art by area young people, either students in Virginia Beach, Norfolk or Chesapeake high schools or members of the Young Artists of Village Gallery.

There are over 200 pieces in the show, the quality ranging from fairly good for the age group to excellent by any standards. All efforts should be recognized and praised, however, as encouragement to these youngsters to develop their talent; surely such expressions of youth can only enrich tomorrow's world.

Reviewing such an exhibit is more than challenging; to judge it is, indeed, formidable. This reviewer wears both hats and is necessarily forced into a critique of her own judgement as well as that of the world displayed.

Young Ideas by Young Artists Worth Seeing

There's an "awakening" at Village Gallery . . . an awakening of the over-30 crowd to the talent and sensitivity of today's generation.

The present exhibit, which will continue through May, is the gallery's third annual showing of art by area young people, either students in Virginia Beach, Norfolk or Chesapeake high schools or members of the Young Artists of Village Gallery.

There are over 200 pieces in the show, the quality ranging from fairly good for the age group to excellent by any standards. Reviewing such an exhibit is more than challenging; to judge it is, indeed, formidable. This reviewer wears both hats and is necessarily forced into a critique of her own judgement as well as that of the world displayed.

To begin with, there is a vast difference between reviewing, basing selections on personal taste influenced by eye-appeal and emotional response, and judging, basing winning pieces on technical artistic endeavor as well as the other factors.

There is little doubt that

John Caddy is an exceptionally talented artist and his display in this show immediately commands attention. In oils, he took second for a sensitive painting of a girl in a field and third for an emotional study of a group of Negro workmen, Vicky Fentress' oil-on-velvet, not necessarily a favorite combination, of deep blue mushrooms took honorable mention because of her excellent use of form and color.

A special children's program will be presented at Lake Wright Dinner Theatre Saturday at 8 p.m. in a benefit for the Virginia Beach SPCA.

Students of Garrison Williams School in Norfolk will present the playlet, "The Frog Prince", under the direction of the well-known Mrs. Barbara Ellberg.

Published weekly by the Beach Publishing Corporation, 3108 Pacific Avenue, Virginia Beach, Virginia, 23451. Second class postage paid at Virginia Beach, Virginia. Annual subscription rate by mail telephone 703-428-2401 and carrier $5.20; single copy 10c. Advertising rates upon request. Member of the Virginia Press Association.

Dressed in animal costumes and singing animal songs, the students will impersonate lions, rabbits, snakes, butterflies and other personalities of the animal world.

The group will also present excerpts from the playlet Saturday at 8 a.m. over WVEC-TV, Channel 13, and at 3 p.m. Sunday during the SPCA Animal Fair at the Cavalier Beach Club.

Patriotism Still A bounds in Music

Making it big on the local entertainment scene is a precarious, if enviable, position, since audiences tend to be critical at the outset and grow even more so at each successful performance, waiting rather diabolically for that first failure.

Followers of the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus are surely becoming frustrated in their long-awaited criticism; this group seems destined to remain flawless as they pile success on top of success.

The talent of the 60-someodd members cannot be minimized but surely the continued record of excellence must rest on the shoulders of director Walter Noons. His direction not only brings out the best in the group but his ideas and showmanship put these concerts in a top-notch theatrical category.

Sunday's performance, following "Music from America-Past and Present" theme, was perhaps the chorus' best effort to date. That, in itself, is a strong statement, in light of the highly-acclaimed concerts they already have to their credit.

The American music, of course, hit the hearts of the audience from the rousing opening "Yankee Doodle" to the unbelievably beautiful "Shenandoah" and "Beautiful Dreamer" (with an excellent solo by tenor Ed Finch) to the balladized "Dixie" ("This is not a batty-cry," Noons told the audience, it is a ballad.)

The first half, ending with "When Johnny Comes Marching Home", was memory-provoking, undoubtedly turning many thoughts of the over-40 group to their elementary school days when such songs were part of "music period". But it was the second half that brought the chorus and audience alive, indicating that perhaps the generation gap isn't as wide as society would have us believe.

The audience communicated, related, to the songs of today, whether they be selections from Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" or Bert Bacharach's "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head" and "What the World Needs Now".

The highlight of the concert, to this reviewer's thinking, was Paul Simon's "Bridge Over Troubled Water". The Simon-Garfunkel arrangement never sounded as it did Sunday afternoon. It was truly one of the most beautiful experiences music can bring.

Boating Clinic Set Saturday

The Virginia Beach Safety Council during its regular meeting Tuesday finalized plans for its second annual "Safe Boating and Water Safety Clinic" to be held this Saturday.

The "Clinic" will be staged at the public boat launching site on waters of "The Narrows" at the end of 64th Street in Seashore State Park beginning at 10 a.m.

Everyone in the region who owns a boat, makes use of boats, or engage in other water sports activities such as swimming, water skiing, etc., is invited to attend the clinic free of charge. The clinic will offer instruction in proper boating procedures, equipment which should be carried on boats for protection of lives in the event of emergencies, and will also provide the opportunity for boat owners who wish to do so to have their boats "safety checked" under present standards.

One of the displays to be utilized in the clinic will contain a variety of explosive devices used by various military organizations in this region, and demonstrate their danger to anyone who might mishandle them. The display will also acquaint the public with steps to take in the event of accidental discovery of such devices. This display will be provided by the Explosive Ordnance Disposal Unit attached to Fort Story.

Organizations which have tentatively indicated they will participate in the clinic include the State Fisheries & Game Commission, Coast Guard Auxiliary, Red Cross, Virginia Beach Power Squadron, Beach Borough Volunteer Rescue Squad, and the Virginia Beach Police.

Tuesday's meeting also witnessed the installation of newly elected officers to guide the Council's activities during the coming year. The board of officers consist of Don Fennema, Pres.; Bill Alexander, 1st Vice Pres.; Dr. Frank Toscano, 2nd Vice Pres.; E. H. Kropp, Sec.; and Sgt. E. I. Jackson, Treas.

Welton Named Va. Retailer

Richard F. Welton, III of Virginia Beach, president of Smith & Welton, Inc., was named Virginia Retailer of the Year at the Homestead last Sunday night.

As a highlight of the 65th annual convention of the Virginia Retail Merchants Association (VRMA), he was awarded the traditional silver bowl: a large one engraved with the names of the 12 recipients of the title during the past 12 years, as a "keepsake" for a year, and a smaller one for his permanent possession.

Raymond M. Munch, senior vice-president of Miller & Rhoads, Inc., made the presentation to his successor to the title. It followed a reception by Clifton Forge and Covington RMAs, a banquet, and an address on "Marketing in this Decade" by Daryl Millus of New York, president of the J. J. Newberry Co.

Welton, a past president of the VRMA, was cited for his outstanding contributions to the retail industry and in community service.

It was after his graduation from Virginia Military Institute and four years in the U. S. Coast Guard during World War II that his career in retailing really began. He was elected president of Smith & Welton in 1956 and, since then, the 81-year-old business has experienced the largest percentage of its growth and expansion. Today, the number of establishments has increased from three to six, serving the

Clarke Pushes Drug Center

Attorney Lowell Clarke, a candidate for the State House of Delegates, told a group of campaign workers Friday that he pledges himself to a drug rehabilitation center to help ease the city's drug problem.

FROM CLARKE:

"More and more we are becoming aware of the drug abuse problem, especially here in Virginia Beach. I understand that there have been innumerable studies instigated in Richmond concerning this problem. It is time now to act and do something concrete about it," he said.

"As a lawyer, I can attest to the fact that there is a dire need to establish adequate facilities to treat the drug addict. We, also, need a place to rehabilitate the youthful offender. We must establish a state-sponsored narcotic treatment and rehabilitation center preferably one located which will encompass the Tidewater area. "You say, doesn't this cost money? It certainly

Pickett Urges Drug Clinic

Owen B. Pickett, candidate for the Virginia House of Delegates, made the following statement Monday at the home of L. M. Gimbert in the Kings Grant Community:

"Young lives are being ruined every day due to physical disabilities because of drug use and criminal records arising from possession and sale of drugs. The State cannot act too quickly to implement the proposed plan to use a part of Camp Pendleton for the purpose of a drug rehabilitation clinic."

"The matter of controlling traffic in drugs is more than a local City Program. The many

Morrow Interest in Industrial Park

House of Delegates candidate James R. Morrow made the following remarks to a group of supporters Wednesday at a coffee at his campaign headquarters on Great Neck Road:

"If elected to the House of Delegates, I have said that I would seek to provide the city representation in Richmond 12 months of the year and that I would tackle some of the major problems and tasks facing our community today."

"As a businessman, I feel strongly that the public is growing more and more concerned about the tax structure of the city and the future economic welfare of our community."

"Today, for example, I feel that there are great assets in Richmond to help us improve our tax base problems, if our representation to the General Assembly would be more aggressive."

"It is my contention, for example, that many state agencies should be brought together to work with our local leadership to insure that the city's industrial park adjacent to the Norfolk Regional Airport makes a major contribution to our economy."

"If elected, I will seek to

Council Again Faced With Moratorium on Multi-Family Units

A developer's cash settlement in the usual school site acquisition formula came back to haunt City Council Monday and prompted a House of Delegates candidate to ask for a moratorium on multi-family development.

The proposal in question was an application of Bush Construction Company for a use permit to build 192 condominium apartments on 14 acres at Holland Rd. and South Lynnhaven Rd. There will be 92 2-bedroom apartments, selling at $14,000, and 96 3-bedroom apartments, selling at $16,000.

Candidate Glenn McClanahan, who said his home is only some 1,000 feet from the site, cited the overcrowded conditions in Holland Elementary School and Kellam High School and also pointed to the "extremely dangerous" condition of South Lynnhaven Rd.

"I simply don't know how we can handle the school overpopulation in this area," he told council.

"I don't know how we can possibly permit more multi-family residences in this area."

He also hit at what he called a "tax disparity." "Until a solution can be found to the tax inequities in multi-housing development, I request a moratorium be placed on this construction," McClanahan said.

Council did not act on the moratorium request but did seem to consider the application with much disfavor.

Realtor Mason Gamage reminded council of the cash settlement paid by the property owners when they originally obtained permits to build 300 units at the site, a portion of which is the 14 acres in this application. He said the city "had obligated itself to the development of this entire site" and asked that 192 units from the earlier permit be transferred to the present permit.

Council deferred a decision for one week until additional information could be determined.

In other planning matters Monday, council:

- * Approved a use permit by Inkeepers, Ltd., to construct a 66-unit motel on the old Tourist Haven Motel site on Atlantic Ave. at 14th St., Beach Borough.
- * Denied Holly Kove, Inc.'s use permit to build four additional motel efficiency units, increasing the number of units to 20, on Arctic Ave. south of Norfolk Ave., Beach Borough.
- * Approved Arthur L. Sene Jr.'s change of zoning to limited commercial on property fronting on Birdneck Rd. just south of its intersection with Cardinal Rd., Lynnhaven Borough.
- * Approved Virginia Beach Civic Ballet's use permit to operate a school of ballet and office on the second floor of a professional building near General Hospital, Lynnhaven Borough.
- * Approved a change of zoning and use permit of M. A. Niegro Jr. and Jack V. Taft to build 24 apartment units on Daytona Drive in Princess Anne Plaza, Lynnhaven Borough.
- * Approved Harold M. Thrasher's use permit to construct professional offices on Virginia Beach Blvd. near London Bridge, Lynnhaven Borough.
- * Approved a use permit of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clevenger to operate a kennel on nearly 4 acres on Ives Rd., Blackwater Borough.
- * Approved a change of zoning to limited commercial for Maxine C. Graham on property on Sandridge Rd. in Curtis Acres, Princess Anne Borough.
- * Approved, over the objections of Councilmen Robert Callis and Reid Ervin, Walton E. and Cynthia D. Baynor's change of zoning and a use permit to operate a parking lot on the northwest corner of Fentress Ave. and Ocean View Ave. at Chesapeake Beach, Bayside Borough. Callis and Ervin voiced concern over leveling of sand dunes on the site.
- * Approved Henry-Manson-Tucker Realty Corp.'s change of zoning to limited commercial on property on the Northwest corner of Haygood Rd. and Twin Lane in Lake Smith Terrace, Bayside Borough.

Whitehurst Welcomed

If the number of Virginia Beach residents at last week's reception for Rep. G. William Whitehurst is any indication of his popularity, the congressman can rest easier in his new surroundings.

The spacious meeting room at the Capes Beach and Cabana Club was filled to capacity with well-wishers who welcomed Rep. Whitehurst in his first "official" visit to the Beach. Parking at the Capes lapsed into a vacant lot across the street where a policeman directed traffic. Rep. Whitehurst replaces Thomas N. Downing as the city's congressional representative after recent redistricting.

Standing near a huge banner suspended from the ceiling ("Virginia Beach Welcomes Bill"), Rep. Whitehurst, a Norfolk native, said, "I'm glad to come to Virginia Beach to visit...but this time I feel as if I'm coming home."

Pledging his mutual and unbiased support to Norfolk and Virginia Beach, Rep. Whitehurst promised to work toward "Virginia Beach's continued growth." The Republican congressman made an afternoon trip from Washington to attend the reception, billed by organizers as non-political.

Attending the reception, among others, were Del. Richard Guy and attorney A. Joseph Canada, both candidates for Sen. Edward (Ned) Cato's state senate seat.

A CONGRESSIONAL HELLO--Rep. G. William Whitehurst, in his first official visit to Virginia Beach, spoke briefly at a reception at the Capes in his honor.

Partnership For the Future

A city and its newspaper are one.

Simple logic tells us there cannot be a strong newspaper without a strong city. Conversely, there seldom is a strong city without a strong newspaper.

There is something mystical--maybe mythical--about a newspaper. People have proven to themselves they live a better life with newspapers. People also have proven they know, just as well as the editors, the differences between a satisfactory and a superior newspaper.

It is at this point the Virginia Beach and the Virginia Beach Sun find themselves.

Because a city and its newspaper are so interdependent any change in one is a change in the other. The acquisition of the Sun by Dear Publication & Radio, Inc., thus marks not only a major change in the offices of the Sun, but a change in Virginia Beach.

The new ownership most definitely cannot state things are going to go along much as they have been. This would be to admit the past was good enough for the future. None of us want that. Probably the best thing about the "Good Old Days" is that they are passed. There will be change in the Sun, but there will not be chaos. There must be change to make the Sun the strong, superior newspaper Virginia Beach demands and needs.

One of the prime reasons for this purchase is that the Dear organization sees a huge vacuum which needs filling. The Sun under previous ownerships has served the community. The new approach is to serve the city.

Virginia Beach is far more than fortunate to have Sidney Kellam as one of its leading citizens. His contribution to the progress from borough to city has been unbounded. The Dear organization pledges itself to make an equal contribution.

The first way to make this contribution is to provide Virginia Beach with a superior newspaper of its own. There is a measurable sense of unity, pride, and momentum in a city when there is a strong newspaper helping to lead the way. This is what is needed in Virginia Beach. An out-of-town newspaper cannot be a substitute. A newspaper serving only a segment of the city cannot be a substitute. A newspaper for which people do not pay cannot be a substitute. History tells us people want to be proud of their local newspaper. The Dear organization is confident the people of Virginia Beach will have an increasing pride in their Sun.

Two obvious questions need to be addressed right from the start:

1-To whom does the Sun owe allegiance?

2-What will group ownership mean?

The answer to the first question--nobody--requires amplification.

Unity is one of our most popular words. We all want a Valhalla in which there is no dissension. We want this from Viet Nam to Virginia Beach. Paradoxically, the American way is built upon debate. There always will be factions, opposing viewpoints, the "ins" and the "outs", the organization and the anti's. In order to constantly keep focus on center, to move toward that elusive unity and away from factionalism there must be a few unwavering old reliables. A superior newspaper is one of these; this is what the Sun will be.

The Sun's new owners have many friends in Virginia Beach. They have been doing business here for many years in several forms. Your new owners are not unskilled in the affairs of Virginia Beach. In fact, this knowledge was a principal factor in wanting to acquire the Sun. But there is a broad difference between having friends and having bedfellows. The Sun will stand independent, but not alone. Issues will be presented not because of our beholdings, but because of our beliefs.

Moving to the second question, the Dear organization--although headquartered in Washington D. C., and publisher of many newspapers for more than 50 years is a local business. In addition to the Sun, the corporation publishes the Seabag, read by so many Virginia Beach Navy friends. Also handled is the printing of a new venture--Tidewater's Available Real Estate--which circulates throughout Virginia Beach.

There will be no flats from Washington. The Sun will be expected to prosper on its own. What ownership by a group of newspapers means in a city like Virginia Beach is expanded resources. It means the Sun will be able to draw on equipment and expertise never before available to it. The people of Virginia Beach can look around their state and they will find all the major newspapers are owned by corporations who have interests in addition to any single newspaper. This is true in Norfolk, as everyone is aware. This means the new ownership is neither unique nor because of geography guilty of lack of involvement before the fact.

A somewhat unique aspect of the ownership of the Sun, among newspapers, will be that a substantial minority ownership will be locally held. It is expected that most of the directors will represent a cross-section of the leadership of Virginia Beach.

It is easy to issue a platitude that you will see more of the Sun now. It is more difficult to state that the new policy of the Sun will be to see more of you.

Virginia Beach is becoming a great city. Our pledge is to fulfill the second half of the axiom that there cannot be a great city without a great newspaper.

Scout Leaders Cited

MAYOR DONALD H. RHODES has proclaimed today, Thursday, May 20, as "Girl Scout Leader Appreciation Day" in Virginia Beach. Adult Leaders Mrs. Bruce Martin (left) and Mrs. R. L. Smouse witness the signing of the proclamation honoring the leaders for "their dedication to the purpose of inspiring girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism, and service so they may become happy and resourceful citizens."

This poem is printed as a tribute to all Virginia Beach Girl Scout leaders since today is Girl Scout Leader Appreciation Day.

THE GREEN ANGEL
I dreamed I went to heaven
And saw among the dead
An Angel dressed in green
With a halo round her head
And she looked kind of funny
Midst all the glaring white
And others asked her jealously
What gave her such a right
I'm just a Girl Scout Leader
I lay no hold to fame
But being such a person
Means more than just a name
My jobs on earth were many Praises and thanks were few
I did more work in one day
Than ten people ought to do
I was a tin can cooker
A hiker, a pathfinder
I've also been a naturalist
A sailor, a bookbinder
I taught jumping jills to dance,
I taught parrots to sing
I made saints out of hoodlums
While mama had her fling
But it was a lot of fun
Life never was a bore
You see, this role isn't new
To me

Wishes, Lies, and Dreams, by Kenneth Koch, New York, Chelsea House Publishers, 1970, $7.95.

Wishes, Lies, and Dreams is a unique book based on the poet Kenneth Koch's experiment in teaching children, grades one through six, to write poetry at P. S. 61 on New York's Lower East Side. In the first section of the book Mr. Koch discusses his methods, the children's response, and how other teachers can use his ideas. The remainder of the book is a collection of the children's poems, divided into sections according to them. Wishes, Lies, and Dreams is illustrated with photographs and original manuscripts of poems.

Knowing the creativity and spontaneity of children and how much they enjoy making works of art, Mr. Koch was curious to know if writing poetry could evoke the same response. Mr. Koch's problems included what to say to children with no commitment to literature, how to get them excited about writing poetry, and how to encourage the children to bring forth their natural creativity. He solved these problems by presenting his ideas with words that children use, by removing barriers such as the use of rhyme, by giving rules such as for a game, i.e. telling them to begin each line with "I wish,"

by showing his excitement about what they were doing, and by selecting well-known poetry which would fit in with his assignments to read to the children just before they were going to write. By allowing the children to be noisy, to exchange their work, by encouraging them to be free and even "crazy" in what they wrote, and by reading their poems aloud, Mr. Koch made the experience an enjoyable and exciting one for the children. The children's poems turned out quite imaginative, funny, and perceptive, as these lines from different poems reveal: "I wish I was a chocolate-covered flying horse," "A butterfly is like a colorful flying rainbow," "A cat's paw touching grass sounds like a cloud floating," "I used to be a fish, but now I am a nurse," and "Heads are like haired baseballs."

Mr. Koch describes the differences in attitude toward poetry and in the poems written by the different age children.

The educational advantages of teaching poetry writing to children are made evident by the success of Kenneth Koch's experiment: writing poetry makes children feel happy and creative, and interested in literature and even grammar.

Rudee Bogged Down

To the Editor:

After observing various editorials and articles written concerning the Rudee Inlet projects, I feel as though I must comment as to the City of Virginia Beach's role in this matter. I feel that the City should not only get out of the Marina business, but absolve itself of any other business that tends to compete with private enterprise. There is documented, a list of numerous projects which was attempted by the City and which proved to be a financial disaster.

I was recently apprised of an enormous Marina project planned for the Rudee Inlet Basin which has not been able to materialize due to the lack of professional ability of several of our higher echelon department heads within the City, or maybe the efforts of these developers are purposely being blocked by these same department heads for devious reasons known only to themselves. An example of why I feel there is some deviousness, it was recently related to me that certain developers ask for permission to install sewage lines from their own pumping system under the creek bed of Rudee to Close Avenue in Shadow-lawn, and then tie into the City Sewer lines. This request was denied, with an explanation that the pumping stations in that area were already overloaded; seemingly this appears to be a valid reason for denial. Yet, on the other hand, what about the new hotels that have been added to that same system, and those planned, and those given tentative approval since the request at Rudee.

The afore mentioned example is one of many impasses encountered. Any questions directed to professional builders, planners, developers, contractors, engineers, and other persons who happen to be bogged down in bureaucratic red tape, and pure nonsense will disclose many many, cases parallel to

Dredging Supported

To the Editor:

The survey question, "Should the City dredge the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River?" In last week's edition of the Sun should have been entitled, "Should the City restore the waters of the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River to their former unpolluted condition and preserve the natural environment of the region?" The present condition of the Eastern Branch is deplorable. Pollution levels at or near the cut-off point for recreational swimming; stagnant ponds of water and foul-smelling mud flats; a decreasing wild-life population; and most tragic of all, the loss of recreational benefits to the people of this region.

Due to the topography of the area the only significant flow in the Eastern Branch is a tidal flow. Dredging would increase the tidal flow which would go a long way toward restoring the area to its unpolluted state. It is interesting to note that water samples taken from the Western Branch of the Lynnhaven and from Long Creek show a marked decrease in pollution levels AFTER the dredging operation.

I know of no better way to clean up a body of water and keep it clean than to make it available for recreational purposes--swimming, fishing, crabbing, boating and water-skiing. People who are out on the water are the first to observe sources of pollution, the first to become aroused, and the first and most effective to demand public and private efforts to eliminate sources of pollution.

On with the DREDGING!
Very truly yours,
Donald H. Clark,
President
Chesapeake Colony Civic League

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell

Now that I have announced to the world that I am a candidate for the office of Vice President, no special party-just V. P. "At Large"--I am starting to understand why that office has been shunned by our glorious leaders all these years.

It seems that the Hon. John Nance Garner, Vice President under President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, from 1933 to 1941, just might have been correct when he remarked that the Vice Presidency was about as effective as a bucket of warm spit. One thing is for sure, the office is not worth any great effort or expenditure of money. This might be a good thing since being a candidate for V. P. sure doesn't move any of this country's "Fat Cats" to contribute large amounts of money.

It might be that the few dollars I have received will be a record. To understand this you have to consider that the V. P. doesn't have any of the grand old political muscle known as "Patronage." Patronage is of course "JOBS." Not really jobs when you get into the group the President can appoint but more like "Positions."

The positions seem to be a prime source of campaign contributions. I wouldn't go so far as to say positions are for sale, nor would I say the Presidential candidates go around offering jobs to the "Fat Cats" who have the money to make rather large contributions. No, I wouldn't say that, in print. What I would say is that in 1968 it is a matter of record that Mr. Arthur K. Watson, one of the top "Fat CATS" of the country and a top official of IBM (International Business Machines Corp.) gave the Republicans $49,000 and when they won, he was appointed Ambassador to France. Please don't get me wrong, I like Mr. Watson. Well, not really. I don't know him but I like his typewriters a lot. It is just that his qualifications to be Ambassador to France seem to be limited to a campaign contribution of $49,000.

Mr. Kingdon Gould Jr., a parking lot tycoon in Washington, D.C., gave the Republicans $22,000 in 1968. It is not known if he gave free parking spaces to Republican officials or not but at any rate he wound up Ambassador to Luxembourg. I don't think he even speaks Luxembourgish but his $22,000 qualified him to become Ambassador.

It is even expensive to become Ambassador to some of the small places. Take Mr. Vincent De Roulet, a marketing research company executive who gave $44,500 to the Republicans in 1968. He was appointed Ambassador to Jamaica.

Mr. John C. Pritzlaff, Jr., a business executive of the first order, who gave $22,000 to the Republicans in 1968. This was not much but then his father-in-law, Mr. Spencer T. Olin, an industrial magnate, gave $12,500. This combined to give Mr. Pritzlaff the qualifications to become Ambassador to Malta in the sunny Mediterranean.

Just so the grand old Republican party won't think I am picking on them and not let me be the V. P. candidate on their ticket, the same thing exists in the Democratic party. Mr. Fredric R. Mann who is a fine manufacturer of paper boxes gave the Democrats $30,000 and this qualified him to be Ambassador to Great Britain.

I don't think this is fair. Why should the President have all these nice contribution getting jobs to shake around and the V. P. not have any? It puts a cramp in the campaign funds of a V. P. Why not draw lots and let the President have two and the V. P. one? If that is not fair then let the President have the BIG ones and give the V. P. the LITTLE ones. Even a few crumbs for the V. P. would help.

Lets see now, if I can get the President, any President, to let me, a V. P. "Hopeful", have a few little countries of my very own so I can appoint our Ambassador, I think it would do wonders for my campaign contributions.

For the Ambassadorship to RWANDA I should be able to get $1,950. T O G O might go for as much as $2,000 and I bet I could get 50 cents for the Ambassadorship to wonderful Upper Volta, who knows, LESOTHO might go for a dollar.

With all that money in my campaign kitty I just might find a Presidential candidate who would jump at the chance of having me on the ticket. With such money I might qualify, if that does it.

Dredging is Tug-O-War

From testimony at Tuesday's hearing by the State Water Control Board, the proposed dredging of the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River is pretty much a tug-o-war between property owners and geysters.

The response to last week's Sun Survey further bears this out. Those against the dredging fought a hard battle, but they lost out to its supporters by a strong 3 to 1 vote.

Nearly every questionnaire that came in had comment. Unfortunately, space will not permit the listing of all of them but here is a sampling: "No-not until the property owners along the river and boats using the river have been made to stop polluting the stream."

"No-We should not spend another dime on dredgings of any kind. This work is not critical. Out streets and highways are in a deplorable condition and the matter is critical."

We were promised good streets, roads, & highways. Why are they still in the same condition they were when we merged? (Worse, actually, because the State used to keep them in better repair). Where is the money for this work? How long will the city ignore the problem?"

"This is a project that will benefit the property owners and people who want boats. It won't help the average citizen."

"The Odyssey of The Lynnhaven Dredge" could be a feature article for your paper if wrote by a qualified writer. Either long years ago the then Lynnhaven Borough Councilman proposed a dredge for the river, including an estimated cost to be amortized thru an increase in the Borough real estate tax. We bought the idea and the dredge. But where did it dredge, most certainly not in the river for many years. Long Creek, Broad and Linnhown Bays, Rudee Inlet (of course) and then to the Pungo areas for the canal (to create tomorrow's waterfront property?), and then stopped by the Navy to lie for many months, unused and rusting; finally to Thalia Creek! Yes-the City should dredge the Lynnhaven River and it's principle covers, now."

"You betcha! We on the Eastern Branch have been trying to get this done for 4 or 5 years now."

"The sewage put into West Neck Creek by the city at the Courthouse will have a faster exit into Lynnhaven."

The School Board has approved a $4 fee per student to provide materials for a special reading program. This assessment of parents apparently was necessitated after City Council cut the school budget. The cut eliminated $50,000 to pay for the program. How do parents feel about this?

Waikiki vacation with a heart

By HELEN CRIST

For Mrs. J. B. (Olive) Downing, a vacation at Waikiki is just about the nearest thing to paradise one can imagine.

So impressed was she with her initial visit there last year, that she reserved her same room at the Moana Hotel this year, where she recently had another 31 memorable days.

She's back home now, remembering it all with nostalgia. "But there was an added dimension to the delight of sunning and swimming this year--there was a tour of the Leper Settlement at Kalaupapa on the peninsula off the island of Molokaia.

Olive Downing, a nurse and former lieutenant colonel in the British Army Nurse Corps, was determined to visit the Leper Colony this year. The colony is not open to the public, and special permission is required, along with a health certificate, she said.

Founded in 1873, by Father Damien, the settlement is administered by nuns. "They're such dedicated people, so friendly and sweet," she said.

"We had coffee and buns when we arrived, then we went to a special mass in honor of Father Damien. I wish I could describe the beauty of the voices in the choir, all patients. I couldn't comprehend how such heavenly voices came from those people who had suffered so much."

And the patients grow to love their island home. Situated on the warm side of the island, thanks to the generosity of Princess Kamehameha, the colony becomes, after a while, a place of security and love.

"They're reluctant to leave when their cases are arrested, because they know they have love there and they're not too sure of their reception from the outside world."

Mrs. Downing was well prepared for her visit. She sewed long hours during the year making tote bags and other articles for the patients.

"They were so grateful," she said.

She toured the island in a small car driven by a patient with an arrested case of Hansen's disease.

"He told us that when married couples within the colony have babies, it's a law of the land that they are separated from the parents at birth. Mothers can see their babies only through a thick glass."

The babies are constantly tested to determine if they carry the bacillus. If not, they don't return to their parents; if so, they go back with them to live in the colony.

Such was the case of the guide. He was found to contain the bacillus, so he's living out his life with his parents.

There are schools on the island. They grow their own vegetables and raise cattle. And even the cattle seem friendly, Olive said. One blocked the road during their tour of the island. "I leaned out the window and said, 'Hi, moo-cow,' and he put his ears down and moved over just as nicely as you please."

Country Day School recalls early days

There were moments of nostalgia last week when Country Day School marked the site of their original school with a plaque. It was placed on the outside wall of the Belvedere Motel, Ocean Front and 26th Street, where the school, now demolished, once stood.

It was five years ago that Country Day School combined with Norfolk Academy, and moved to its present location on Wesleyan Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Miles, Jr., and Mrs. James N. Bell were founders of the school in 1957. They were present last week when the plaque was dedicated.

There too for the ceremony were students, past and present, teachers and friends. Some of them were Mrs. Charles M. Lovitt, headmistress; Capt. F. N. Howe, Mrs. William Everett, Mrs. C. R. Masterson, Mrs. James M. Jordan, III, Mrs. Richard R. Woolling, Capt. Howard Prince, Mrs. Elizabeth Sills.

Memories were many. Remarks in the 1955 annual "Horizons" were typical of those recalled at the dedication, by Stuart Mac Conochie, who gave a nostalgic rundown on the old days.

The annual noted: "Football on the beach...growing grass in our sandy back yard...view on the Atlantic with sand at our door step...physical class...art class...Mrs. Parker's field trips..." and much more.

Everyone sang the old school song played by the Country Day original combo: Helen Johnson, Cindy Nevins, Peggy Garris, Amy Ferebee.

Kemps Landing students have learning experience.

A PROUD RON MORRIS, S.C.A. president, waits for Gov. Godwin.

Gov. Godwin replied to letters from Robert Auchengaugh and Virginia Wilcox inviting him to visit their school and as a result, he appeared and spoke to the some 400 seventh grade students last week. Mayor Rhodes and E. E. Brickell, also invited by the school were there too for the event.

GOV. GODWIN GIVES a friendly hug to Virginia Wilcox, who invited him

When Mrs. Helen Mills instructs her seventh grade class in Virginia history at Kemps Landing School, she believes in making that history come alive to her students. So she had them write letters to prominent people throughout the country and in Virginia asking how they, the students, could help to improve our government.

Hundreds of letters went out and replies were received from many, including President Nixon, J. Edgar Hoover, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Patricia Nixon, Julie and David Eisenhower, Gov. Linwood Holton, Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., Lt. Gov. J. Sargent Reynolds, Atty. Gen. Andrew P. Miller, Mayor Donald Rhodes, Roger Scott and many more on national, state and local levels.

Afterwards the students wrote their impressions of the visit and here is Steve McHenry's:

"On May 11, one of the most well known of the present day Virginians spoke at Kemps Landing School. This man was the former governor of Virginia, Mills E. Godwin, Jr.

Also appearing with him were Mayor Donald H. Rhodes of Virginia Beach and Mr. E. E. Brickell, who is the superintendent of the Virginia Beach schools.

"Gov. Godwin was invited by Robert Auchengaugh and Virginia Wilcox; Mayor Rhodes was invited by Susan Grant. Gov. Godwin was met with a standing ovation. Mayor Rhodes gave a short speech about Gov. Godwin and then introduced him. Gov. Godwin then gave a short speech and was open for questions.

"These ranged from baseball, to long hair, to the governorship. He said he had no objections to long hair if it was clean and neat. After this remark there was a wild burst of applause.

"After the questioning was over, the students gave him another standing ovation. He and Mayor Rhodes were then available for autographs."

Mrs. Mills said: "This was an experience I'll never forget. This was true learning at its best."

Oceana's Chief Petty Officers Club and the Acey-Duecy Club took two second place awards, one third and an honorable mention in the recent annual Culinary Arts Competition held in Richmond.

Sponsored by the Virginia Restaurant Association, the event pits the finest restaurants in the state against one another.

One second place award was captured by originality in presentation. Five suckling pigs were arranged to represent a band, each with its own instrument. Dolls made from confectionary sugar took the other second place blue ribbon award while a replica of Mt. Fujiyama, complete with trees and landscaping made from sugar and salt, took a third place award.

Warren Morgan, assistant manager of the clubs said that a 30-foot utility van was required to transport the entries to Richmond for the judging.

Reports cards must go principals are told

If the threat of grades has to be used to make children learn what we teach, a Lexington, Ky., principal told his colleagues, then "there is something wrong with what we teach or how we teach."

Principal William J. Allen reminded a session of the National Association of Elementary School Principals that its official policy calls for abolition of report cards in favor of more effective procedures. "We have played around with report card revision enough," he said, and it's time to begin a reporting process based on love of learning.

Participating in the convention recently at Cleveland was Anthony Mencini, principal of Trantwood Elementary School.

Allen pinpointed several reasons for the reluctance of schools to abandon grading, all of which, he said, are based on fear: fear of principals to "depart from the rut"; fear of the central office staff that the board of education will not approve and the wrath of the community will fall on them; fear by the board that public reaction will hurt the schools; fear of parents that they won't know how their child is doing, or that their child will not be admitted to college; and fear of teachers that the child will stop working for them "since a potent club has been removed."

Allen advocated parent-teacher, student-teacher conferences as a better way to report progress. He also advised principals to be honest with parents about the many shortcomings of report cards--the pressure put on children for good marks with the act of learning becoming only incidental; the inconsistencies of grading where an "A" to one teacher might be a "C" to another; and the labeling of youngsters as report card failures, which can cause further rebellion and disruptive behavior in the schools.

Women status study

Studies of child-care centers, abortion laws, State hiring and personnel practices (including State supported colleges and universities), industrial training programs, and the creation of a roster of Virginia women qualified for places in Virginia's political life were the topics of discussion for the Virginia Commission on the Status of Women meeting in Richmond on May 8.

Responding to the hearing of the Commission on April 15, and some preliminary thinking of the subcommittees, the members reported some of the areas they hope to cover in a report to be submitted to the legislature in the fall of this year.

Further hearings will be held this summer. In charge of the projected regional meetings to hear the public are: Mr. Robert L. Fodrey (Tidewater), The Honorable John Dalton (Roanoke), and Mrs. Dorothy Burkhardt (Northern Virginia).

Curiosity is a good habit if it leads to growth

By REV. JOYCE KRAMER

Curiosity is a good quality if it leads us to investigate new, interesting, helpful fields of endeavor. It can lead to personal growth and development for us if it inspires us to ready and study and if it instigates positive action.

Curiosity, however, should not be directed toward other people's affairs. It is easy to wonder why people do some of the things they do. Yet we have no right to allow ourselves to get mentally and emotionally involved in other people's business.

Remember the words of Jesus, the Christ, "What is that to thee? Follow thou me." Curiosity about the affairs of others is indicative of emotional problems within ourselves. Biting nosy about the affairs of others is common to those who are ineffective in tending their own business.

Each individual is a growing, evolving soul and should be respected as such. Give others your silent blessing. Resist idle curiosity.

MY CURIOSITY IS DIRECTED IN MEANINGFUL WAYS FOR I MIND MY OWN BUSINESS.

Frozen chocolate cheese pie

A deluxe do-ahead dessert for company

When you have guests that prompt the use of your finest china and serving dishes, you also want to serve the finest food—and this Frozen Chocolate Cheese Pie certainly falls into that category.

Chocolate pie is a national favorite. And when it has the delicate flavor of Baker's German Chocolate, plus the additional richness of cream cheese, and is frozen to ice cream goodness—well, who can resist it?

But don't let the elegant appearance of the pie deceive you, it's really very simple to prepare. You can whip it up early in the morning and serve it for a late afternoon or evening party. Although it can be made a day in advance, longer storage is not recommended for best flavor and texture.

Crumb Crust
1 cup fine graham cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup softened butter or margarine
Combine crumbs and sugar. Mix in butter. Press firmly on bottom and sides of an 8-inch pie pan. Bake at 375 for 8 minutes. Cool thoroughly before filling.
For ease in serving, dip pie pan in warm water for a few seconds; then cut and serve.

Frozen Chocolate Cheese Pie
1 package (4 oz.) sweet cooking chocolate
2 tablespoons milk
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
1/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons milk
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1/8 teaspoon salt
Dash of cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 baked 8-inch graham cracker crumb crust
Place chocolate and 2 tablespoons milk over hot (not boiling) water; stir until chocolate is partially melted. Remove from hot water and stir until smooth.
Soften cheese with a fork. Stir in sugar. Blend in 2 tablespoons milk until mixture is smooth. Prepare whipped topping mix as directed on package, beating only 1 minute after soft peaks form. Blend in cheese mixture. Fold in chocolate, salt, cinnamon, and vanilla. Spoon into crumb crust. Freeze until firm.

It was a unanimous decision of the club and she was presented a silver bowl.

Mrs. Learnard received a silver engraved tray as a departing gift of appreciation.

Several checks were presented at the meeting: $100 to Sister Ann of St. Nicholas Church for the Senior Citizens of the Beach; $100 to Mrs. John E. Yeates for the State Mental Health project of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Beach Salutes Armed Forces

Serving as Parade Marshal was VICE ADMIRAL JAMES L. HOLLOWAY III Deputy Commander-in-Chief Atlantic Fleet.

Virginia Beach, a city unique in the scope of its military installations, took time out from its leisurely Saturday morning pace to pay tribute to men and women who wear military uniforms.

Under overcast skies and to the tune of military music, hundreds marched 21 blocks down Atlantic Avenue as hundreds more sat on street corners and curbs watching. Also watching were scores of men in local and state police uniforms waiting for rumored anti-military demonstration to materialize. They didn't.

The large number of policemen and threatening sides did little to dampen the enthusiasm of the Armed Forces Day Parade, in its 15th year at the Beach. Pretty girls with batons, bandmen, Shriners, men and women in uniform and hundreds of scouts made the 21-block march without incident.

By the time the last floats had been pulled away and the marchers had completed their final few tireless blocks, judges had selected the Norfolk Naval Air Station and Cub Scout Pack 378 floats for the top prizes. Best civilian marching unit was Norfolk State's Pershing Rifles while the Norfolk Naval Shipyard won the top spot in military marching groups. Judges picked First Colonial High School as the top civilian band while the Commander, Atlantic Fleet Band got the nod in the military group.

Spectators, probably half of them children, spread themselves throughout the resort area route as 16 musical units and 250 organizational entries passed by during the two-hour procession.

One policeman on crowd-control duty at the corner of Atlantic and Virginia Beach Blvd., perhaps lulled into complacency by the surprisingly peaceful parade, was noticeably startled when a cannon aboard a Navy float went off at the intersection.

Nearby, a postman with his mail pouch on his back and letters in his hands, proved that parades, like rain, sleet hail or snow, don't stop the mail, either.

The parade kicked off two days of air shows, military demonstrations and parties at Beach military installations.

Princess Anne High School's float was on the Freedom theme with pretty JOYCE CYRUS adorning the arbor.

Text and Photos
by Howard Swindle

The First Colonial Marching Band was named winner in the civilian band category.

Cox High School's float carried a familiar reminder of the Viet Nam War POW-MIA's.

Kellam High School cheer leaders were an attractive entry in the parade which added enthusiasm and vocal charm.

Members of Khedive Temple were on hand to render their usual exciting performance.

The float sponsored by Cub Scout Pack 378 won the award for best civilian float. The theme, which focused attention on Smokey the Bear, was Project SOAR (Save Our American Resources).

The Norfolk Naval Shipyard entered the C. S. S. VIRGINIA, which has traveled the parade route several times before.

The U. S. Coast Guard Color Guard was one of many which made their way along Atlantic Avenue.

The Woman's Democratic Club celebrated Jefferson Day last week with luncheon at the Cooper Kettle Restaurant.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Edward Simiele, Mrs. Charles Faison presided.

The women heard both sides of the story from guests Senator Edward Caton and Richard D. Guy who are opposing each other for the Democratic nomination of state senator.

It was a partisan group that listened, but only politically speaking. For when Selma Gusler, Polly Brown, Barbara Almond and Dobie Hogan gave a Rose Hall fashion show following the political discussion, the guests were in unanimous agreement that the fashions were exciting and appealing.

Among the guests were Mrs. Edward Caton, Mrs. Richard Guy, Mrs. Bev Middleton, Mrs. Jack Etheridge and Mrs. R. B. Tynes, who with Mrs. Etheridge founded the Democratic Club 12 years ago.

MRS. RICHARD GUY is delighted with POLLY BROWN's exotic hot pants outfit.

"Exotic Dancer" Only A Name

PLANNING SESSION—LT. MOTT (hands in pocket) discusses field operations with two Army officers and a commander from STRIKE headquarters in Florida.

WITH EXOTIC DANCER IV FORCES—Slowly, the heavy Navy-gray trucks, their loads pushing the tires deep into the sandy ruts, made their way along the backwoods North Carolina road toward one of the few clearings near Catherine Lake.

Within a few hours, the trucks pulled their empty trailers from the clearing, leaving five large mobile communications vans, portable generators and antennas throughout the once-plowed field.

Nearby, less than 20 yards into the heavy brush, men in olive-drab fatigues hurried to erect four large tents before the sun vanished.

Admittedly, an unusual scene for the Navy. But setting up communications in out-of-the-way places and wearing fatigues instead of dungarees is a way of life for men of Air Transportable Communications Unit No. 5 (ATCU).

Commanded by Lt. Ralph Mott of 5629 Susquehanna Dr. in Virginia Beach, the unit is one of few in the Navy that can be deployed to the field in case of national emergency or natural disaster. The unit, based at Naval Communication Station Norfolk, is on a constant 72-hour alert.

ATCU No. 5 and seven of its men just returned from Exercise Exotic Dancer IV, a massive military exercise centered near Camp Lejeune, N. C., involving all four services.

Lt. Mott and his men provided support for the Army's 11th Signal Battalion from Fort Huachuca in Arizona. For this operation, nine members of the Air Force's 4th Mobile Communications Group from Altus AFB in Oklahoma were assigned to ATCU. The Navy's primary mission was to provide a transmitter and receiver site for messages originated by the Army.

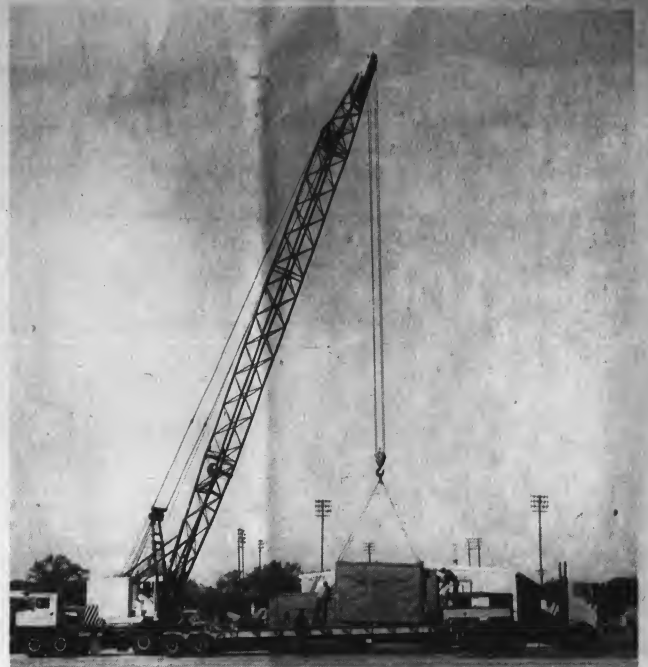

ATCU also maintained a radio link with the USS Raleigh, a huge amphibious transport ship off the North Carolina coast.

Marines made an amphibious assault on the beach as a part of Exotic Dancer.

Though the name of the war games was Exotic Dancer, the name belies ATCU's living conditions. Men slept in tents. Their only water supply came from Army "buffaloes," 400-gallon water trailers. Hot water for shaving and washing came from 30-gallon garbage cans with heating coils.

When ATCU first deployed, men ate C-rations from cans. Later, however, they ate at nearby Army mess tents.

But, the men of ATCU No. 5 didn't complain too loudly about living conditions. The memory of their last deployment was still too fresh. That was when the sleeping bags did little to block out the 16-degree February temperatures.

A HEAVY-DUTY JOB—A huge crane loads a mobile communications van aboard a trailer truck for its trip to the North Carolina operations area.

Citizens Serve The City

WAYNE FRENCH (right) wards off the attack of RAYMOND JACOBS during training of Auxiliary Police officers in self-defense tactics.

D. E. MCATEE (left) points out an important function of the human circulatory system during the training of fellow Auxiliary Police officers JOHN SEAMAN (ctr.) and THOMAS H. DAMERON in proper procedures to be used in the administering of emergency first aid.

A group of resort city private citizens, including a number of businessmen, for some time have been devoting a major portion of their leisure hours to protection of the residents of city through the Virginia Beach Auxiliary Police.

During the past 12 months the Auxiliary Police, consisting at present of a compliment of 80 men, recorded more than 50,000 hours of such voluntary work. None of the members of the Auxiliary Police received any pay for this work, and all of the hours were worked on a voluntary basis.

The Auxiliary operates as a unit of the Virginia Beach Police Department, with each member being a sworn police officer with all police powers. When on official duty they are clothed in brown police uniforms, carry sidearms, police badges and identification cards.

Auxiliary officers work regular duty schedules at each of the three Police Precincts in the city patrolling areas on foot and/or riding with regular police officers on routine patrol by police car of assigned districts. They also assist in handling traffic control of motor vehicles throughout the city and when large crowds are expected at special events, as well as handling crowd control at high school events and various civic affairs.

Col. William T. McFarland is Chief of the Auxiliary Police and is assisted in the unit's operation by Lt. Col. Donald T. Fantone, who serves as Administrative Officer.

Before an applicant is accepted for membership in the Auxiliary he undergoes a thorough background check. He must be in above average physical condition, receive clearance of any past criminal activities by the Virginia Beach Police Department and the FBI, and receive a satisfactory rating during an interview by the Review Board.

Once an applicant is accepted he undergoes a thorough training program prior to being assigned regular duties. This training involves classroom instruction in the proper performance of their police duties; familiarization with the federal, state, and local laws which they might be called upon to enforce; training in the use of firearms which they may have to use; instruction in self-defense; and satisfactory completion of a course of instruction in first aid techniques which might be required during a medical emergency.

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis expressed his feeling on the value of the Auxiliary Police by saying "These men I think do a great service to the community, and certainly ease our problems in being able to lessen the load on the regular police department. For instance, they had 50 men at the Armed Forces Day parade on traffic control points and this of course relieved the department of this job. I really don't at this point see how we could function without them in light of the many events we have throughout the year in which they assist us. I don't know of any greater service a man could give his community than perform this line of work. He gets absolutely no pay for this service, and I think they have an extraordinary record."

Learning proper sighting techniques is only one of many of the important phases of instruction Auxiliary Policemen receive in their training in the use of firearms.

Peace Officers Honored In Ceremonies

Three Virginia Beach police officers, who gave their lives in the performance of their duties were honored last Friday during "Peace Officers Memorial Day" services. Tributes were paid to the memory of Charles Porteus, Roger McClung, and Robert Monette.

Porteus was fatally injured in June of 1952 on Atlantic Avenue while questioning the driver of an auto he had stopped during investigation of a traffic law violation. Porteus and the driver were both struck by another auto, also resulting in the death of the driver being questioned.

McClung and Monette drowned while working as a team in the waters of Lake Rudee in December of 1969 with the police department's "Underwater Search & Rescue Squad" during a training exercise. Although McClung and Monette were under observation by other members of the "Squad" as they moved across the lake beneath the water's surface, efforts to rescue them when they encountered difficulty were unsuccessful.

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis in delivering the feature address during last Friday's ceremony pointed to the fact that "In 1970 a record high of 100 law enforcement officers were murdered, and 72,000 were assaulted. In the last decade 661 men were lost to criminal action".

Pointing to an increasing rise in the rate of crime, and attacks on police officers, throughout the nation Col. Davis pointed out "the role of the policeman becomes increasingly dangerous". "The price of enforcing the law is high. Perhaps no one knows just how costly, except the slain the slain policeman's family and his fellow officers. Only an aroused citizenry and swift and certain punishment by the courts can reduce felonious acts against police.

When an officer dies at the hands of a killer, part of our system of law dies with him". The ceremony was marked by the placing of memorial wreaths around the police honor roll plaque near the entrance to the police headquarters building in the Princess Anne Courthouse Complex.

The Virginia Beach Police Color Guard moves into position during last Friday's memorial service honoring slain police officers.

LT. A. E. SMITH represented the Police Association of Virginia in services honoring police officers who gave their lives in the line of duty.

MRS. SALLY LIPPERT, Pres. F. O. P. Ladies Auxiliary, places a wreath during "Peace Officers Memorial Day" services.

Cape Henry Museum Proposed

House of Delegates candidate Glenn McClanahan directed remarks Friday before campaign supporters toward a museum at the Cape Henry Lighthouse. The statement was made at a coffee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billy R. Forinash in Princess Anne Plaza.

"The first permanent English settlers in America first landed on the soil of what is now Virginia Beach, near the site of the old Cape Henry Lighthouse. The Cape Henry Lighthouse has been designated as a National Historic Landmark, and according to a sign at the entrance 'This site possesses exceptional value in commemorating and illustrating the history of the United States'. Yet, amazingly enough, there is no museum to display for tourists and ourselves the great events that have occurred here," McClanahan said.

"I am writing today to Congressmen Thomas N. Downing and William Whitehurst and Governor Holton requesting that Virginia and the most appropriate agency of the federal government immediately cooperate to establish a museum near the Cape Henry Lighthouse.

"This idea first occurred to me during a recent visit to the Museum of the Sea at the base of the Cape Hatteras, North Carolina Lighthouse that is operated there by the National Park Service. Their displays describe the history of the 2 Cape Hatteras Lighthouses, the shipwrecks that have occurred just off the Dare coast, pirates ventures, the great Hatteras storms and their effects and the history of the eastern North Carolina area. The entire display area occupies less than 2,000 square feet. Annual visitation at the Hatteras museum ranges from 150,000 to 170,000 persons with daily visitation going as high as 2,800 visitors.

Students Honored

Two area students, Dorothy Williams and Roland Shaw, received awards for 1970-71 at the 11th annual Honors Award Convocation recently at North Carolina Wesleyan College campus here.

Miss Williams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Williams of 717 Cardinal Rd., Virginia Beach, received the Phyllis Strickland Award for excellence in French. She is a senior and frequent Dean's List student.

Shaw was the recipient of the President's Cup, given by the college chaplain and considered the top student honor. He also received the Helen Merriam Thorp Award, given by the Choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Rocky Mount, for outstanding achievement in music. Shaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Shaw of 604 Nottingham Rd., Portsmouth. He is a senior music major.

This museum on the Outer Banks reaches more people than any other activity conducted there by the National Park Service, for instance, 80 times more people visited the museum last year than took the guided beach walk or visited the nature trails.

"This land is owned by the Army and buildings already exist adjacent to our Cape Henry Lighthouse, that could be used immediately to house a museum. Activities presently in them could be transferred to other locations at Fort Story without material difficulty. Therefore, the Museum could be begun immediately with comparatively small costs involved.

"The fact that such a Museum would be a great attraction for our visitors and ourselves is obvious. Though I wish to see this established by no later than June 1, 1972, this Museum can be an important part of the celebration being planned for 1976 by the recently established Virginia Bicentennial Commission."

City Golf Course Opens

For years, thousands of vacationers have flocked to Virginia Beach, Va., to enjoy the matchless lures of nature--miles of clean beaches, gentle ocean surf, picturesque woodlands, bountiful farms, fishing and hunting--or to walk through a score of historical attractions. And for the 1971 visitor, something new has been added.

Or, to be more accurate, there will be 18 new reasons for "getting away from it all" in Virginia Beach this year.

Each of the 18 holes at Red Wing Lake Golf Course truly does have its own distinctive characteristic, and combined they will present the toughest kind of challenge for even the best of the straight shooters. The championship distance is 7,007 yards, however, there are four tees at each hole and the shortest route is 5,280 yards.

The million-dollar, par 72 course--built and operated by the City of Virginia Beach--will be opened formally on July 1. Play is by green fees only, beginning at $6 on weekends and holidays and $5 on weekdays. (Since it is a municipal course, Virginia Beach residents are given a $1 discount).

"Par breakers on this course will be about as rare as four-minute miles" were 15 years ago," one sports writer commented after his first tour of the Red Wing Lake layout. The Course pro, Jennings House, immediately agreed and added, "It will test the greatest and I'll predict that within a few seasons they'll be looking at it for a major PGA tournament."

The first thing that puts Red Wing Lake Golf Course in a class by itself is water, which comes into play on 10 of the holes, Nos. 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9 (twice), 11, 12, and 18. Then there are the large, sloping greens (averaging almost 8,500 square feet) with undulating carpets of bent grass, the sadistic placement of 84 traps and a design which has only one par-four or par-five without a dogleg.

Too, it will be impossible to play from one fairway to another because trees or water separate each, and bottleneck approaches virtually prohibit anybody from dribbling his ball onto the greens.

Two of the holes, No. 9 and No. 18, already have been dubbed "magnificent monsters." No. 9 is 600 yards long, water in front of the tee, a dogleg right, and water in front of the rolling green. No. 18 is "only" 567 yards, but it has nine yawning traps, a sharp dogleg left and 75 yards of water guarding the green.

Besides 9 and 18, the par fives are the 512-yard fifth and the 483-yard 11th. There also are two par-three holes on each side, with the longest being the 224-yard No. 4 and the shortest, 187 yards at No. 13. The 10 par-four holes measure up to 440 yards.

Red Wing Lake was designed by noted golf course architect George W. Cobb of Greenville, S.C. The layout was carved from 250 acres of virgin woodland touching the lake from which it gets its popular name. (The formal name is The W. Russell Hatchett Virginia Beach Municipal Golf Course, in honor of the man who retired in 1968 as city manager).

The course is only a short distance south of Virginia Beach's main resort section, off General Booth Boulevard.

In addition to the playing layout, Red Wing also has a spaacious practice area for woods and irons, and tremendous putting green.

The unique, modular clubhouse nestled in a grove of stately trees offers lockers, a lounge and a restaurant, plus a complete pro shop and garage for a fleet of electric carts. And there's a parking lot built with the expectation that up to 400 a day will be playing Red Wing Lake Golf Course.

Surfing Area Open

The newly provided surfing area at Camp Pendleton will be available to surfers this week-end but the city's parking area in Croatan will probably not be ready until June 12.

"The surfers can use the beach," George Timmes, assistant to the city manager, told City Council Monday, "but someone will have to take them there and pick them up."

The 900-foot surfing area is a joint program between the Federal, State and City governments and private interests. Overall cost would be about $26,300, Timmes said, but because of contributions of materials and labor by the military and private citizens the cost has been cut to about $18,000.

The State made the site available, when not in use by the Navy and National Guard, and will bear the cost of completely fencing the strip off from the installation and the Croatan community.

No parking will be allowed within the confines of Camp Pendleton, however, so the city must provide parking. A paper street a short distance from the beach will be opened and graded to accommodate cars and vehicles.

The city will also provide personnel to man the gate, four life guards, liability insurance and first aid provisions. The Navy will remove underwater obstacles and the National Guard will clean the beach. The area will be closed about 30 days, possibly less, for military operations but adequate notice will be given. Signs will possibly be placed on General Booth Rd. at the Croatan Road entrance on closed days to prevent unnecessary traffic into the area.

The State has required that surfing hours be from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.; that no commercial facilities, food or drink be allowed inside the gates; and that no admission or parking fees be imposed. The city will provide portable toilets in the area.

Council was concerned about the restrictions but agreed to go ahead with the plan.

'School Fling'

The public is invited to attend a "School Fling" tonight at Pembroke Meadows Elementary school on Cathedral Drive.

The program begins at 6 p.m. with an art work display by students and will be followed by a musical program on the lawn of the school. Elementary grade students from the Pembroke, Bayside, Hermitage, Shelton Park, and Thoroughgood elementary schools will participate.

Miss Virginia Beach Hopefuls

The popular event, sponsored for the first time by the Chamber of Commerce, will be held Saturday at 8 p.m. at Princess Anne High School. Other contestant are Christina Lynn Owens, Barbara Ann Carter, Linda Elaine Campbell, Kim Marie Davison, Darlene Ellen Hughes, Barbara Craig Beaver, Darlene Jo Koch, Debra Louise Hudson, Debbie Lee Copeland and Susan Elaine Myers. Among the judges will be Paul Lavalle, music director for Radio City Music Hall.

Bags Approved for Garbage

Garbage--what it can consist of and how it can be disposed of--was the subject of two ordinances passed Monday by City Council and which will become effective within 30 days.

One ordinance amends the City Code to allow use of plastic or polyethylene bags which meet the standards of the National Sanitation Foundation. The other requires that small dead animals or other garbage which might attract rats be kept in tight containers until disposed of.

The second ordinance was necessary, City Manager Roger Scott said, "because the Community Services Department has been handling some garbage they shouldn't be required to."

In general, the ordinances specify that garbage:

- "Be placed out on the day of pick-up before 7 a.m. and that receptacles be removed the same day.
- "Be placed on the curb line or in an alley wide enough for trucks.
- "Be deposited in metal cans of not more than 20-gallon capacity or plastic or polyethylene bags. Each can must be in good condition and have a tight fitting cover at all times and bags must be intact and tightly tied.

Any garbage consisting of waste animals or vegetable matter upon which rats may feed must be stored in covered containers. It is also unlawful to dump any dead animal or any waste vegetable or animal matter on any premises, land or waterway.

No wooden boxes, barrels, other wooden receptacles or unapproved receptacles can be used for garbage or refuse. Leaves, grass or shrubbery trimmings may be placed with burnable materials in a tight metal container with cover, bushel baskets, plastic, or polyethylene bags or tight durable containers not over 20 gallons capacity.

All tree limbs, hedge trimmings and branches must be cut in 6-foot lengths or under and placed alongside the garbage receptacles. The amount must be reasonable, however, so it will not impair routine collection.

Unauthorized persons may not tamper with the contents of any garbage receptacle or remove manure, offal or rubbish from the streets without permission of the Director of Community Services or his designated agent.

Violation of these regulations will be a misdemeanor and guilty persons will be required to pay a $5 fine. Notice of violations will be served by sanitary inspectors of the Department of Public Health and Department of Community Services. The fine must be paid to the Clerk's office of Municipal Court within three days after notification.

Beethoven Film to be Shown Fri.

Friends of Library will present "The Magnificent Rebel", a technicolor film of the life of Ludwig van Beethoven, Friday at 8 p.m. at Atlantic Permanent Savings and Loan Assoc. on Independence Blvd.

The film, which is shown free to the public, concerns the dynamic pianist-composer who became deaf at the height of his career. It re-creates the episode of lost love that prompted him to write the famous Fifth Symphony, his depression and anxiety when he is unable to hear his own music, his unyielding

Public Will See Long-Range Plan for Bayside Area

Informal Hearing Set Tuesday Night

By Ruby Jean Phillips — The Bayside Development Plan, scheduled for its first public airing next week, will include City Planning Department recommendations on such issues as protection of the Lake Smith watershed and the Western Branch of the Lynnhaven River, consideration of seven historical homes and buildings and the possibility of a 250-acre park.

The long-awaited plan will be presented by the Planning Department in an informal public hearing Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Bayside Junior High School auditorium. It will be officially presented to the Planning Commission on June 10.

It has been the project of Urban Planner Lee W. Hickman who said Wednesday it is a "sound plan" designed to guide development of the Bayside area over the next 15 years.

"We've handled this one a little differently than the others," he said. "I've met with all of the civic leagues in the area and each appointed a representative to work with me in the development of the plan."

The advisory group consisted of 20 persons, he said, "and we've already made quite a few changes to reflect their interests and wishes because they represent the Bayside people."

The plan encompasses a full range of development, with planning recommendations on roads, schools, fire and police stations, libraries, parks, high density areas and other future land use.

"It will definitely have an effect on the future development of the entire Bayside area," Hickman said.

One of the department's more "grandiose" recommendations, as Hickman termed it, concerns the development of a major park on the 250-acre San Jones tract.

"It is economically infeasible at this time," he said. "We can't even get school sites. It is a grandiose recommendation because we recognized it is almost impossible to acquire this much land with the city's finances the way they are at the present."

The park has nevertheless been included because Bayside is sadly lacking in recreational facilities. There are, in fact, no recreation areas at the present time. "The residents are using the schools," Hickman said, "or at least those who are fortunate enough to live near a school."

Seven sites are recognized in the plan as "historically significant" and the department will recommend that immediate steps be taken to rezone them into the historical classification.

"Mover, Mover, Spare My Tree"

by Les Lehigh

The usual quiet serenity of the Great Neck Point section of the resort city was broken by cries of outrage from residents, loud barking of dogs disturbed from their morning siesta, and acts of protest yesterday morning.

The motivating factor behind the unrest was the moving of a house through the narrow, winding roadways of the region.

Property owners of the area vocally and, at least in one instance, physically protested the trimming back of trees and shrubbery blocking the passage of the house along Lynn Cove Lane, and the temporary removal of mail boxes placed along the road side. Property owners could be seen lining the road methodically making notes of the activity involved in the house moving. One lady showed her dislike of the operation by pulling her auto across the roadway and defying the house moving crew to go any further. She was diplomatically persuaded to remove her blockade and permit the operation to continue.

Before the house had reached the intersection of Adm. Keeling Blvd. words of consolation had quietly been given disturbed property owners by officials of the house moving contractors, police officers, representatives of the city's Bureau of Consumer Protection, two lawyers summoned to the scene, and a representative of one real estate firm.

As the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN went to press the synopsis of the saga of Wednesday, May 26, could not yet be recorded. For the sequel of events which unfolded in Great Neck Point were perhaps only the beginning of a lengthy "tale of woe."

Before the house moving operation would be completed the structure and its escort of police units, and cars transporting city officials would be required to travel Great Neck Road, Shore Drive, Atlantic Avenue, Pacific Avenue, the Rudee Bridge, Cal. Soothe Blvd., Oceana Blvd., Princess Anne Road, and Sandbridge Road before reaching its final destination, a site near the Lotus Gardens in the Sandbridge section.

Bingo for the Elderly Enmeshed in City's Red Tape

By Howard Swindle

The old folks at Medico-Home Health Center may have to find something else to do on Wednesday nights. That's because a soliciting regulation in Virginia Beach threatens to abolish a youth-sponsored bingo night for elderly residents of the center.

Since Christmas, 16 Hyppyes (Happy Young People Pleasing Your Elders Society) have appeared at the rest home every week offering prizes to the old folks who win the bingo games.

"These kids have knocked on doors in the neighborhoods selling small items so they could buy prizes for the old folks," said Charles G. Jacobs who, along with his wife, helps the youths with bingo night.

Recently, however, the city has forbidden the children from napkins until it can decide if the Hyppyes need a soliciting license. Jacobs says this week's bingo night could be the last.

TYPICAL SCENE--This has been a typical scene at the nursing home since the Hyppyes began bingo night five months ago. Additional pictures on page 7.

Jacobs, who lives in Virginia Beach but works in Hampton, said he called the commissioner of revenue and explained that all of the money collected by the children goes to buy gifts for the old folks. "He said I didn't need anything but a permit from the city manager's office to solicit," Jacobs said. "That's because of a law in Virginia Beach that says you can't solicit without a permit."

According to Jacobs, the bottleneck began two weeks later when the city manager's office called to say it couldn't issue an unlimited permit to solicit. "They said I had to submit another application," Jacobs said. "So I filled out another application and sent it back."

Then, about a week later, Jacobs said he received permission to solicit for a period of about a month and a half. "That was hardly enough time because the kids wanted to keep this thing (bingo night) going all year round," he said.

Less than one week later, Jacobs said the ax fell. "I got a letter from the commissioner of revenue saying we couldn't solicit at all until I appeared in his office to find out if we needed a license," Jacobs said.

Jacobs said a personal appearance is impossible since he leaves for his job in Hampton by 7 a.m. and doesn't return until after the city's offices are closed. "And, of course, the offices aren't open on weekends," he said.

Last week, more than 30 residents of Medico-Home gathered in the meeting room to play what could well be their last bingo game. And most didn't receive the news very well.

Mrs. Cecil May Beaman, a 76-year-old whose poor vision hampers her bingo game, feels strongly about the issue. "Don't let them stamp out bingo," she said. "We're old folks and bingo is one of the few things we've got left to look forward to."

"Everyone always talks about how bad the children are, but they just haven't seen the good they do," Mrs. Beaman said. "It's just wonderful that they take time out to come up here and see us."

David Almgren State Winner

By Helen Crist
David Almgren is a refreshing 17-year-old. He seems to be the typical teenager. But he possesses a musical talent that's far from typical. In fact, last week at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club he won, after two previous eliminations, the coveted Bland Scholarship.

The state award is given by the Virginia Lion's Club annually. Named for James A. Bland, the great Negro songwriter and composer of "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginia", it carries a $750 scholarship for instrumental and vocal first-place winners, to a school of their choice or for private study.

David, who took first place on the piano with Scherzo in B

Flat Minor by Chopin, will put his award toward schooling at the University of Maryland. He'll enter the freshman class next Fall after his graduation from Kellam High School next month.

His sponsors in the contest were the Wards Corner Lunch-club, representing District 24D.

It's an understatement to say that David was happy to win. But, with a philosophy beyond his years, he says, "It isn't the competition that I like really. It shouldn't be necessary, because music should be played and enjoyed for itself alone. Just performing should be reward enough."

As with many artists, David says the music really consumes you, and he finds he wants to practice all the time. "I love to play for people, it's a real luxury."

In this he echoes the sentiment of his teacher, Clifford Herzer. Herzer said he was thrilled to death that David won first place, but adds, "I felt absolutely no doubt that with his experience he would."

That experience includes concerts in unison with Herzer, and most importantly, three coaching sessions with Madame Rosina Lhevinne at Julliard School of Music in Lincoln Center.

Madame Lhevinne is Herzer's former instructor, for whom David played last Fall when Herzer took him to New York for a special meeting with the venerable piano artist.

Madame coached him on the three separate occasions and each time David said, "It was absolutely amazing, she'd remember exactly what she'd told me to do the last time. But I didn't do it, she'd say, 'But I TOLD you to work on that!' and then she'd get up and show me how it should be done."

This would not be too remarkable, except that Madame Lhevinne is 91 years old, and still playing and teaching the piano.

David credits his piano success to Herzer. A pupil of his for two years, David says, "He's the one who really brought out the music in me. He had faith in me."

He practices about three hours a day now, besides student teaching. None were happier at his success than his mother, Mrs. Carolyn Almgren, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. Cosenza, Jr., with whom he lives at Bow Creek Boulevard.

The Virginia Beach City Public Schools Planetarium will feature a program during June on popular theories of the formation of the planets, along with current information available on them.

Entitled "The Seven Powers" the program centers on the ancient five planets, the Sun, and the Moon.

Those visiting the planetarium will see the paths of planets through the starfield, constellations of the Zodiac, and slide reproductions of telescopic views of some of the planets.

Summer hours of operation of the planetarium are from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sundays, and from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Admission to the planetarium, located on Lynnhaven Road, is free. Advance reservations may be made by phoning 486-1971. Children under 12 may be refused entry unless accompanied by a mature person.

Rock Group 'The Family' Opens Cavalier Beach Club

Taking its cue straight from the calendar The Cavalier Beach Club opens on Memorial Day weekend traditionally turning on the good-time season at Virginia Beach.

Caton-Guy Battle Rages

With all of the vigor traditionally saved for the waning days of primary campaigns, incumbent State Sen. Edward T. (Ned) Caton and hopeful Richard D. Guy met face to face last week to discuss their views on campaign issues and on each other.

The result was a heated exchange that hopelessly from horse racing, state parks and urban financial woes to campaign expenditures and personal attacks.

Lake Shores Civic League provided the political arena at Shelton Park School Friday and the ensuing verbal battle between the two Democrats followed the same lines that have earmarked much of their campaigns.

Continuing his claims that Guy, a first-term member of the House of Delegates, represents special interests, Caton said, "He (Guy) doesn't represent the people of Virginia Beach. The reason he wants my seat is because he wants to represent the Terry Corporation." The senator said Guy has both family and professional links with the company, one of the largest land developers in Virginia Beach.

The incumbent senator pointed to Guy's refusal to co-sponsor House Bill 800, a bill which would have required land developers to donate land to the city for schools and parks. Nothing that the Terry Corporation is planning another large development in Virginia Beach, Caton asked, "Who's going to build the schools for them? You are and I am, that's who."

Guy, who earlier accused his opponent of "preaching hate, bigotry and fear," said, "Certainly I represent the Terry Corporation, but...I also represent a lot of other clients." Guy said he refused to co-sponsor House Bill 800 because of a study commission and remarks of two senior senators who were against the bill.

Guy, a vocal advocate of horse racing in Virginia and the increased revenue it would provide, lashed out at Caton for "this wishy-washy absolutely nothing, on the issue, the Chamber, who pushed for a study commission on parliament betting, said Caton 'is hiding behind his appointment to the study commission.' 'It's just an excuse for not having an opinion,' Guy said.

"Sure, I think it (horse racing) is attractive," Caton said, "but there are bad things about it, too." The senator said he will await results produced by the study commission before he takes a definite stand. "That's the purpose of the study commission," Caton said.

Calling land for the proposed False Cape State Park "irreplaceable," Guy spoke in favor of its establishment and said the current generation might possibly be the last that could save the area from destruction. Caton said he would have preferred to see the land developed commercially. "If I'd had my choice, I'd have taken that money (used to buy land for the park) and built us a community college in Virginia Beach with it," he said. "It's a question of priorities...we need to educate our children more than we need parks."

Both candidates took advantage of the meeting to disavow their allegiance to political organizations. Guy has accused Caton of being supported by an organization headed by Jack Etheridge; Caton has claimed the Kellam organization.

Bible College to Hold Commencement
Virginia Baptist Bible College in Virginia Beach will hold commencement exercises Monday at 8 p.m. The speaker will be Rev. Ashby Browder of Faith Baptist Church, Windsor, N. C.

This will be the first graduating class since the reorganization of the college. Kenneth W. Oldaker and Norman R. Wilcox will each receive the Diploma of Bible and Arts. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached Sunday at 3 p.m. Rev. Ellis Sharpe of Landmark Baptist Church, Richmond, Virginia, will speak.

Both have conducted aggressive and often better campaigns leading up to the Democratic primary June 8. Though both Caton and Guy have lengthy platforms, priority issues appear to be:

- Caton--State and federal revenue sharing; establishment of a Virginia Beach community college campus; professional administrators for local jails and juvenile detention facilities; and increased quality in education.
- Guy--Legalization of parimutuel horse racing; increased facilities in Virginia mental institutions; professional administrators for local jails; anti-pollution measures; creation of False Cape State Park; and joint military and civilian use of Camp Pendleton.

First Building Begins in City's Industrial Park

Ground was broken Tuesday for the first of an estimated 200,000-sq-ft warehouse, which will be the first structure in Virginia Beach's 183-acre Airport Industrial Park.

The one-story masonry building will be owned by Realty International, Inc., a Richmond-based firm, which has several similar facilities under lease to major companies across the nation. Joseph Marchetti, president of Realty International, said "the tenants with whom we are negotiating leases for this building will be a definite asset to this fine city."

Marchetti also said Daniel Construction Co. had been signed to build the facility. Actual work was scheduled to begin Wednesday. The building is scheduled for completion before the end of the year and the warehouse is expected to provide jobs for 50 to 60 people.

Realty International took an option on the 6.26-acre tract on April 5, and completed the $109,074 purchase from the Virginia Beach Industrial Development Authority in a brief ceremony at the Municipal Administration Building shortly before the groundbreaking. Participating in both ceremonies were Marchetti, Mayor Donald H. Rhodes, IDA Chairman Frank W. Kellam, Sr., City Manager Roger M. Scott, Economic Development Director A. James De Bellis, and the City Industrial Coordinator Walter N. Alford.

Besides being the first construction in Airport Industrial Park, the Realty International project is the first to have been totally negotiated by Virginia Beach's Department of Economic Development, which began operating last September. Realty International is constantly working with various agencies," Marchetti commented as he signed the purchase agreement, "but I know the Bayside area is bounded on the North by the Chesapeake Bay, follows the Eastern boundary line to the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, turns West up Shore Drive to Independence Boulevard, down the boulevard to the major interchange at the Northern boundary of Thoroughgood to the Western Boundary of Lynnhaven Inlet, follows that to the toll road at the Norfolk line and the Western boundary line is the dividing line between Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

Broad Bay Regatta

The Eleventh Annual Regatta sponsored by the Broad Bay Sailing Association will be held Saturday and Sunday to highlight the Memorial Day weekend. A record number of entries, exceeding last year's 174, is expected to be on hand.

The first race is scheduled to start at noon Saturday followed immediately by the second race. The third race will begin at noon on Sunday. Skipper's registration will be from 8 to 10:45 a.m. at the Narrows at the end of 64th Street. A skipper's meeting will be held at 10:45 a.m. at the Narrows on both Saturday and Sunday.

Class boats to be started and scored as a class are Sharks, Flying Dutchmen, 50's, Thistles, Mobjacks, Hampons, Windmills, and Skipjacks. Other classes with five or more entries will be scored as a class, however, they may be started with one or more other entries.

A special feature of the BBSA Regatta, the first of the season for the South Bay area, is the free cab feast for skippers and crews at the Narrows following the second race on Saturday.

First, second and third place awards will be given for each class with five or more entries. The Broad Bay Bucket, the BBSA perpetual trophy, will be presented to the winner of the class which has the largest number of starters for the series. Last year David Zanks of the Hampton Yacht Club won the "Bucket" in his 505, however, top point getter was Charles McCoy, Jr. of the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club.

General Chairman for this year's BBSA Regatta is Charles L. Smith, Jr. and Race Committee Chairman is John C. Huenerberg, both of Virginia Beach.

New Motel Approved; Restrictions Lowered

The Cavalier Hotel Corporation received a use permit Monday for a 300-unit motel and restaurant on a portion of the Beach Club site but it took some top official action to get the application on the floor for a vote.

After much discussion from residents of Cavalier Drive, who had opposed certain features of the development, Vice Mayor Earl Tebault made a motion that the application be approved with certain restrictions agreed to by the developer.

Mayor Donald Rhodes called for a second. No one spoke. "I guess I'll have to second it to get it on the floor," Rhodes said. It was approved 5-2 with Councilmen Robert Callis and Frank Dusch opposing. Councilman Curtis Payne was out of town Monday, leaving a 10-member council.

Although residents of the area have not opposed the new convention facility as such, they have repeatedly voiced concern over the parking and use of Cavalier Drive, as well as certain construction features of the proposed 11-story structure.

They submitted to the Planning Commission 12 restrictions they wished placed on the development and these restrictions were incorporated in the commission's recommendation.

Council, however, was hesitant to go along with the overall request and finally trimmed the restrictive items down to eight, all of which the developer agreed to.

"Some of these things seem to affect the basic construction," Mayor Rhodes said of the original 12 items, "and I don't think this council has the authority to impose these restrictions. As long as they adhere to our city building code, I don't think we can legally tell them how they must build their motel."

Councilman Reid Ervin, himself a resident of North Virginia Beach, agreed. "Our need for consistency is paramount," (no other motel has had such restrictions) he said. "We should have prepared a buffer zone between residences and motels many years ago but we didn't."

The motel's use of Cavalier Drive was of particular concern. Realtor "Duck" Braithwaite said the short through was between Atlantic Avenue and Ocean Front is already so congested in the summer "if there were a fire during the busy times you couldn't even get a fire truck in there."

Attorney Arthur J. Winder, representing property owners on the street, supported his concern and asked that council adhere to the restriction against an ingress and egress from the motel parking lot.

The Cavalier's representative, attorney Thomas C. Broyles, pointed out that the corporation actually owns the street and that the residents have access to their property through an easement. Winder said the city paved the road and contended it must be city property.

The mayor agreed with Broyles. "I personally cannot deny these people use of their own property any more than I could deny you use of yours," he told Winder.

The restrictions, as finally approved, prohibit an ingress off Cavalier Drive but allow an egress barred to service vehicles. The parking ratio was lowered to 100 per cent of the number of units from the 125 per cent asked by the residents. The usual ratio for motels is 80 per cent.

Fire Victim Dies

Raymond Ankrum has become the city's fourth fire fatality this year.

Officials said 72-year-old Ankrum died early Saturday morning of second and third degree burns over 75 percent of his body which were received early last Wednesday morning when fire engulfed his house trailer.

Authorities said the fire apparently followed an explosion in Ankrum's house trailer in the County View Trailer Court on Holland Road.

Still Committed

House of Delegates candidate James R. Morrow told a group of supporters Tuesday morning: "It was with deep regret yesterday that I learned that a federal court has postponed the Democratic primary until September 14."

"When the announcement was released on May 7 that Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's office had rejected selected portions of plans to realign Virginia Senate and House districts, I expressed my regret."

"Many of you may recall then I said that that action would probably throw the public into a state of confusion over primary actions."

"I'm sure that it did and I feel that the court actions will throw additional clouds over the current campaign."

"During this confusion over apportionment, I had hoped that Governor Linwood Holton, Atty. Gen. Andrew P. Miller, the General Assemblies, and federal officials could have a meeting of the minds over this issue so that the courts would not have had to take the action it did."

"Nevertheless, I want you to know today that I am still committed to seeking a seat in the House of Delegates, whether the primary be in September or June."

"Because of this commitment, I have already gotten my campaign organization geared up to schedule meetings for me throughout the summer and into the fall.

Multi-Headed Monster

The proposed sign ordinance, already the subject of several editorials and vast newspaper coverage, continues to be a multi-headed monster. It has brought public chastisement to the Planning Commission; embarrassment to the planning director; pressured frustration to City Council; and unbelievable concern to the citizens of this city. The issue is wearing thin around the edges, but it cannot be laid to rest until final disposition is made.

Director vs. Commission

Planning Director Charles Carrington made a stand for what he thought was right, not an easy thing to do in this day and time, and has taken the blunt of some of the political unrest (or is it mere personality conflict?) for having done so.

When he told City Council he could not, his department would not, support the commission's revised ordinance of April 13, he broke the bond that has for years tied his position to the whims of the council-appointed commission. Since July 1 the director has answered only to the city manager; previously the commission was boss.

The director represents the professional side of planning. The commission is designed to be the citizens' voice. The two, working together, would ideally produce a compromise between the logical and the emotional, a blend most beneficial to the development of a growing city.

With the sign ordinance, however, it was Carrington who spoke out for the people. His department's more restrictive draft, its professional logic, was more acceptable than the lenient revisions approved by the Planning Commission. Even the proposal drafted by the commission's own sign committee was more acceptable than that finally approved.

Carrington supposedly was "on the carpet" Monday night when council met with the commission, in executive session, to discuss personnel matters. Since Carrington had been called "insubordinate" by the commission, in a letter to council, it has presumed he was the point of conflict. It is possible, of course, that it was the commission, not Carrington, actually under fire.

The Planning Commission, though not a policy-making body, rules on planning matters and passes its recommendations to council. The two groups continually find themselves in separate camps when they should, in fact, be fighting the battle united. This one facet of development--planning--strikes the hearts of the average citizen more than any other one issue and the confusion caused by lack of governmental communication only adds to the growing concern.

Carrington's stand, for which he is to be highly commended, will, in the long run, be one of the best things that could have happened to this city. It brought the council and the commission together for, hopefully, a better understanding of each group's responsibility to the people and their own relationship to each other.

The time is fast coming, perhaps it is already here, when council must realize that a thirteen-member commission is ungainly. Diversification of opinion is important, but not to this extent. Council may also realize that successive reappointments to four-year terms create a staid, rather than a progressive, commission.

Public election of the Planning Commission is, perhaps too expensive, too vulnerable to political influence; this may or may not be the answer. But apparently a re-vamping of the commission's structure is just over the horizon and council had best be giving it thought.

The June 7 Decision

The decision is near. In less than two weeks City Council must finally, after many, many months, come face to face with the notorious sign ordinance. The councilmen are not to be envied their position.

They, of course, realize the people's thinking and are well aware of the wishes of the signboard and commercial interests. Now they must find the happy compromise with which everyone must live. Hopefully they will do just that.

There is much to be learned, however, in the long, tedious signboard ordeal, a lesson which causes the concerned citizenry to cast a critical eye at the City Code which allows passage of such an important ordinance with so little public notice. This was most apparent when the Planning Commission approved a revised version of

"HEY, L.B.J., IS THIS THE WAY?"

Elect, Not Appoint

To the Editor:
So-The "Tall Wags the Dog" or is it that "Appointments" are of greater authority than Elections in the City of Virginia Beach?

An elected City Council (which includes an "Appointee") requests a qualified City employee to prepare and report to them, for their consideration, a proposed ordinance affecting the City, far into the future. This was done, as requested, by the employee and supported by him as is normally required of any such employee (or hired consultant) by any business organization (or elected, responsible official). Is it not time for the City Council to propose to the electorate, at the next November polls, a change in the City Code; requiring immediate election of Council vacancies and the Planning Commission (based on the Council form of representation) PLUS an effective "Conflict of Interest" law for all elected, appointed and employed personnel?

Lonely Family

To the Editor:
Last Sunday evening my family's heart was broken and, needless to say, mine also. We lost "Christie" our cocks-poo. He was an indoor dog but occasionally he would get out. He followed a child to the store and was hit by a car on Plaza Trail. It broke his back and paralyzed his back legs, so we had him put to sleep.

The men that hit him stopped, looked, and kept on going. They made no effort to get him to a hospital.

I was at work at the time and a neighbor's daughter saw it happen and carried him back home. Another neighbor, Mrs. Wilson, got him to a vet. There was no hope for him.

It's hard to explain to an eight-year-old little girl--especially one whose father is overseas. She loved her dog so much and he kept her from being so lonely. We miss "Chris" more than anyone will ever know. I do want to thank my neighbors for their kindness.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joyce Schaak & Donna, Mike & Sharon.

A Nice Extra

To the Editor:
The Friends of the Virginia Beach Public Library is an organization dedicated to increasing library services to the citizens of our city. They provide those nice extras which are so desirable for a strong library, but unfortunately cannot be provided for in the annual budget.

On Friday, May 28 at Atlantic Permanent Savings & Loan, 944 Independence Blvd. they will present a movie in color on the life of Ludwig van Beethoven. The public is invited--free.

Won't you help us get the word to the people of our city? Thanks ever so much,
Ann M. Middleton

The Right to Know

The Freedom of Information Act, enacted by the 1970 General Assembly, has become a bone of contention between City Council and the working press. It has been an undercurrent issue for some time but it really came to the front Monday night when council met in executive session with the Planning Commission.

There are times, of course, when some privacy is necessary. The act allows for that in personnel and real estate matters but these must be stipulated in the motion to adjourn into executive session. Such was not the case Monday. At least not until members of the press called it to council's attention.

Earlier in the day council had indicated the meeting would concern the proposed signboard ordinance as well as the commission's conflict with Planning Director Charles Carrington. It was not the press's intention to air derogatory remarks concerning one individual but certainly the press, and the public, has a right to know how the sign ordinance is progressing.

The old days of working out the city's problems behind the security of locked doors has passed. The citizens of today will not allow it. They, after all, are the city; it is for them that a council is elected, that decisions are made. And it is through the news media that the people are made aware of what their elected officials are doing.

Biased and inaccurate reporting is usually the result of misinformation or "leaked out" information. The public deserves better than this. That's what the Freedom of Information Act is all about.

Other Tidewater cities habitually violate this act; Virginia Beach happens to be the one under fire. Now is the time for City Council and other governmental bodies to set an example...perhaps some neighbors will follow. If there is nothing to hide, no innocent person to hurt or no real estate negotiation placed in jeopardy, then open the doors. The city, and its citizens, will be better for it.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell

Many of my readers believe that they are facing a real danger from the bias of the major urban newspapers, the television networks and the bureaucratic structure of government. They see their way of life, their views and wishes being ignored. They think the so called leaders in the media and government are trying to brainwash them.

For the first time, I get the idea my readers are about fed up with being lead around by the nose. They haven't decided to act as yet but they are starting to wake up and that is a good sign.

As one reader said, "The majority isn't silent, the system is deaf." He went on to say that the majority has been saying all along what it felt but no one has been listening.

We elect someone to high office on a platform and statements that indicate they share the views of the local people and when they get to Washington or the State Capital, something happens.

When our leaders get in the big city they come under the influence of the liberal TV and biased urban newspapers. Our leaders forget about the people back home and become so afraid that the reporters and commentators will call them "nasty old names--like conservative or old fashion--that they join in with the new left types.

Many of my readers sight the candidates for office who run on a "no new taxes" platform and the first thing they do when they get to Congress or the Legislature is vote for the largest tax increase and highest budget ever to come up.

It seems that no matter what the people back home say, do or who they vote for, the so-called leaders just keep right on going down a different road and ignoring the people. This sad situation doesn't seem to be in just one area. Our turncoats are from all over the country.

The TV commentators seem to be hung-up on their own personal views and those of the networks to a point where they can do no wrong and the people can do no right. No matter what the people say or believe, if the TV "Flock" doesn't agree, then the people are wrong.

Day after day, night after night, the TV people beat the people over the head with brainwashing. It seems the TV idea of balance of news is 99 per cent super liberal views and 1 per cent what the majority wants.

The major press is so biased that some of my readers tell me they never make up their minds as to how they are going to vote until their local newspaper comes out with its candidate endorsements. They then vote just the opposite since they feel the paper represents the enemy.

Many feel the agencies of government pay little attention to the wishes of the people. In fact, many feel the government bureaucrats pay little attention to the law if it differs from their personal views.

This seems to be the time of the "minorities." The majority seems to be playing second place to the minorities. While the majority pays the bill, the vocal little groups who have open use of the TV and major newspapers get all the benefits.

Let me give you an example. In a large city recently one of the high schools held its regular election for student officers. Since the white students were in the majority, they won the elections.

The black students went on a rampage in protest. Some of the press and TV in the area joined the contest and what happened? It seems that the school will now set aside a percentage of the student offices for the minorities. In other words, if the school has 30 per cent black students, 30 per cent of the student officers must be blacks.

If we follow this same line of thought in our political system, we must now set aside a percentage of all elected offices for the minorities. In Congress we would have to elect a set number of blacks, Indians, etc.

Then we would have to be sure that the proper percentages of Republicans and Democrats were included. To go a step further, the Office of the President would have to be rotated between the States to be fair.

The fallacy of this kind of thinking is that it does away with the very basis of our system--majority rule! Our whole system is based on the majority rule principle.

If the people ever decide to act, they just might over act and then our biased media will find themselves in trouble. Not that they will take it but good advice would be to take it easy, real easy.

Who would have ever thought it!

Who would have thought it could happen?

With a question like "Do you favor the $ per student fee to finance a special reading program next school year?" no one would ever expect a tie vote.

But that's exactly how the readers responded--half in favor, half against.

One of the voters included a lengthy, most interesting note: "I don't know. Why, when after six years of school and my poor-reading sixth grader can finally expect some much-needed help, should I be required to pay a $4 fee?"

"Reading is the most basic and vital of all academic subjects and when properly taught by competent teachers to normal children (mine is!) could and should be learned by the second year of study."

"For City Council to push our school system into budget cuts which necessitates a charge for reading instruction in grades 1, 4 and 7 is incredible."

"I realize the School Board's dilemma but fees for any other subject would be a bit more logical. Reading? No!"

Not everyone agreed, of course...Let those who need special services pay for it. "It's a very sensible idea!"

"City Council caused the problem. The School Board is handling quite fairly" and other similar comments appeared on a number of the questionnaires.

But, in the final analysis, the people of Virginia Beach are apparently pretty well divided on most of the school issues.

The Freedom of Information Act established by the 1970 General Assembly has been a hard thing for governing bodies to live with. After many years of solving the more controversial issues behind closed doors, officials are now required to hold open sessions unless the meeting pertains specifically to personnel or real estate matters. This sometimes proves painful. Does the general public feel it has the right to know exactly what goes on in the handling of city affairs?

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: "Do you feel the governing bodies--City Council, Planning Commission, etc.--should adhere more strictly to the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act?"

Beach Orchestra-Singers in concert June 5

AMID THE BUSTLE of moving to a new home, Frank and Olga Ferrigno talk of the Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra and Concert Singers

The pounding of carpenter's nails couldn't drown out the sweet notes of music that flowed through the intercom at Frank and Olga Ferrigno's new home on the Lynnhaven River.
The moving in process was going on when we sandwiched in a few questions about the Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra and the Virginia Beach Concert Singers, both of which the Ferrignos were instrumental in forming.
"That's one reason we like this house," Frank said. "Plenty of room for rehearsals and lots of company."
Olga's grand piano and organ are already placed in the music room, which has, incidentally, a wide sweeping view of the river as do all the rooms.
"We're getting in just in time to rehearse for the concert," Frank said.
The orchestra and singers to get together will give a concert June 5, at 8:15 p.m. at Plaza Jr. High School. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students.

"There's something for everyone in this one," Frank said.
For instance, the program includes such favorites as "What the World Needs Now" by Bacharach, "Nightingale Marietta", "Parade O' Cars", a duet from La Traviata sung by Ferrigno and Mary Baraso.
The Civic Orchestra was formed by the Ferrignos in 1966. Olga is pianist, and Frank is president of the board of the corporation. He says: "It's the only civic orchestral organization in the city." It is the nucleus for what will some day be the Virginia Beach Symphony Orchestra.
To promote this, he appeared before the City Council in January, requesting that they consider approval of a budget for fiscal year 1971.
In the past he said, they've been grateful for the support provided by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation.

"But now the orchestra has grown so that additional professional assistance is required as well as some financial aid." The outcome of the request is still pending.
Conductor of the orchestra is Albert Ascorion, chief musician at the Armed Forces School of Music, assisted by Larry Harrington.
"A symphony is sorely needed in such as fast growing city as this," Frank says, adding: "We'd like to establish a permanent scholarship fund for young people."
He notes that the orchestra serves as an educational vehicle, giving education to young musicians and to public school children through free concerts. At least one half of its membership consists of young people from 13 to 18.

Braised fruited celery

Braised fruited celery makes "new" vegetable

Which vegetable to serve the family today? Why not thrifty celery cooked in a new, flavorful way?

Celery is almost always a good buy because Florida growers, who supply half the celery eaten in the country at this time of year, have all kinds of modern, efficient ways of cutting production costs—from mechanical harvesting to assembly line packing.

When it comes to cooking Florida celery, braising or "panning" is ideal. The thin film of fat helps seal in flavor. Of the bit of water or broth used, some cooks sway as steam, the remainder becomes a savory sauce to be served with the vegetable. This is essentially Chinese vegetable cookery—fast, almost waterless, which gives us a pleasingly crisp product with lots of flavor and texture.

Every ounce of fresh celery is usable in planning the week's meals. The larger outer ribs are excellent served as a hot vegetable. The inner heart makes a delicate appetizer. The bright green leafy tops can either be added to green salads or cooked in stews or soups or with another vegetable such as carrots or cabbage.

BRAISED FRUITED CELERY
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups sliced Florida celery
1/3 cup chopped onion
1 large apple, peeled, cored and diced
1/2 cup golden seedless raisins
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground white pepper
1/8 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crumbled
In a large skillet heat butter. Add celery and onion; saute 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer 10 to 12 minutes or until celery is crisp tender, stirring occasionally. Add more water if necessary. Serve with pork chops, if desired. YIELD: 6 portions.

STEWED CELERY, EARLY AMERICAN STYLE

1 stalk fresh Florida celery
1 cup water
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 tablespoons bacon fat or butter
1 cup thinly sliced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon ground mace
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon ground white pepper
Trim celery leaves and stem. Cut stalk in half lengthwise. Cut each half into thirds to form wedges; set aside. In a large skillet heat water. Add bouillon cube; stir until dissolved. Add celery. Cover and cook 8 minutes. Remove celery; set aside. Pour off and reserve liquid for later use. In the same skillet heat bacon fat. Add onion and saute 5 minutes. Return celery to skillet along with remaining ingredients. Add 4 to 6 tablespoons of the reserved broth. Cover and cook 5 minutes or until celery is just crisp tender. YIELD: 6 portions.

Cars were all parked in Howe's driveway. The people turned out all the lights. Then all pounced out singing "Happy Birthday" when he walked in the back door.

"Huge surprise," Nimo Howe said. "Then everybody gave him a screwball gift. Much hilarity. Real success," he added. Success was due to Zeke's wife, Mary, who engineered the whole thing.

Do you put off tomorrow what you should do today?

By REV. JOYCE KRAMER

Are there times that you find it difficult to get started doing something that you want to do, or something that you know you should do? Why?

Our reluctance to start is usually due to one of two reasons. First, the habit of procrastination, this is putting off until tomorrow and the day after in a repeating pattern. Secondly, we may be indecisive and uncertain in regard to our ability to do the job well.

To overcome the habit of procrastination—simply start. Begin when you realize that you want to or should do something. Take that first step and you will find the job much easier than you anticipated.

If you have a tendency to be indecisive and uncertain, tell yourself that you know you can do it. Declare "I know I can do it" several times. The doubt will leave and you will be guided into the first step. Take it.

RELYING UPON MY INNER STRENGTH AND COURAGE, I BEGIN TO DO TODAY THE THINGS THAT I NEED TO DO.

Versatile vinegar

Vinegar cooks, cleans, heals, deodorizes and preserves, among its more obvious usages.

After you have fried fish, pour some vinegar in the hot frypan and the fish smell will fade away. When you clean up afterwards, add a little vinegar to the dishwasher. The acetic acid helps cut the grease.

Madame President Rapport, action goal of Council president

By Helen Crist
(Sun Women's Editor)

The new president of the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach takes her office with eyes wide open alert to the great responsibility, but with projected plans well prepared.

Mrs. John C. (Sylvia) Brewington, yesterday succeeded Mrs. A. H. Gallagher as president following a luncheon at the Admiralty Motor Hotel.

"Let's Join Hands" is her theme and she looks for the greatest cooperation between the Council and civic organizations in working together to become a forceful voice in the community.

As she takes office she says she's especially concerned that the public be aware of and educated to the importance of ecology. "Each individual needs to maintain the ecological balance on his own property," she says.

She suggests organic gardening, with a constant watch over the types of pesticides used. "Make sure they're not going to pollute streams, and wild life. The council will have pamphlets for individual homeowners," she says.

Then, too, she urges that leaves not be burned. "Make a compost pile of them. When they're decomposed, work them into the soil. Pine needles can be used to cover them if desired, for a more pleasing appearance."

And she adds that each individual is important. "You know people say 'Gee, it won't matter if I burn a few leaves—I'm just one person—what harm can I do?' But one person can do a great deal of damage, just as one vote can make or break a political candidate."

As Mrs. Brewington takes office, she'll put into action definite plans for more efficient committee action. "We'll try to set up guidelines this summer for committee chairmen. In this way we can become better coordinated, eliminating endless phone calls."

Well organized herself, she plans ahead to insure smooth proceedings and she anticipates good rapport with all the members.

And with all her organizational expertise, she's very much the feminine woman.

She moves with grace, and understandably so. "My greatest love was dancing," she says.

As a pupil of Miss Preston in Norfolk, a graduate of the Helen Wilson School of Dance and later, as owner of her own studio in Norfolk, the Sylvia Bashara School of Dance, she made a name for herself in the field of ballet and tap.

A 1954 graduate of Maury High School, she's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bashara of Colonial Place, Norfolk. Her daughter, Cindy, 7, is following in her footsteps and is a pupil at Sarah Sadler's School of Dance.

But dancing for Sylvia gave way to marriage and a family. Her husband is a vice president of Virginia National Bank, in Norfolk. A son, John Herbert, 11, is actively involved in the Bronco League, and this finds the family out there at King's Grant Elementary School rooting for him on many an afternoon.

Sylvia's a member of the Kingston School PTA, active in Foundry United Methodist Church. She was president of the North Ingleside Garden Club when she lived in Norfolk after her marriage. She's a past president of the Mayfair Garden Club and was treasurer of the Beach Council for two years.

"You know it's funny," she says. "When people find out your husband works for a bank, they just naturally make you treasurer of your club."

A cooperative venture for the Brewingtons is taking home on W. Kingston Lane, is taking old furniture, and either refinishing it, maintaining the antiquity, or applying unusual touches so that it becomes a unique article on its own.

MRS. JOHN C. BREWINGTON, quill in hand, pens a letter on the corner desk in her living room.

MRS. BREWINGTON, as a graduate of Helen Wilson School of Dance-1954.

For instance, there is the old desk in a corner of the living room. Sylvia simply covered it with black flat paint, making it a stand-out. In the kitchen, there's a child's desk, the kind they used many years ago. The top has been antiqued off-white, and it serves as a charming utility table.

Sylvia's home carries the stamp of the artistic, appropriately so, for she is an artist. She studied with Jack Clifton in Hampton and at the Hermitage Museum.

She's enthusiastic about a Colonial landscaping mural she plans above the hall stairway. But all in time. And she budgets hers well.

Right now she's excited about something that's been on her mind for some time. "I think it would be wonderful to have a crape myrtle festival at the Beach." As a starter in this direction, she hopes that garden clubs will continue to create a crape myrtle trail along

General Booth Boulevard and First Colonial Road, and that the city will provide funds for the planting.

"Then let's have a Crape Myrtle Festival, a queen, a ball, the works," she says.

WHOLE HOG--Troop 362 of Community United Methodist Church drew quite a bit of attention from neighboring Scouts--especially around supper time. The pig on the spit emitted some delicious smells.

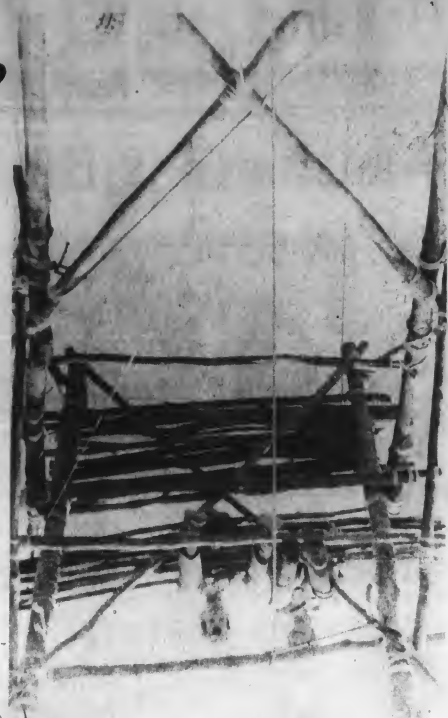

More than 6,500 Scouts of all ages and sizes gathered at the Frederick Campus of Tidewater Community College during the weekend to celebrate 60 years of scouting in Tidewater.

Nearly 250 units of Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers, many of them from Virginia Beach, presented demonstrations and exhibits in the three-day affair.

An estimated 20,000 spectators, many of them undoubtedly Scouting parents, browsed through the packed campus and saw exhibits ranging from first aid and survival to auto demonstrations and ecological studies. One Scouting official said this year's exhibits reflect an even greater awareness of ecology among youths in Scouting programs.

One Virginia Beach Cub group, Pack 444, sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, conducted a "Keep America Beautiful" campaign and distributed home-made litter bags to spectators visiting their exhibit.

The general theme of the Diamond Jubilee Jamboree was "The Wonderful World of Scouting."

HIGH PERCH--MIKE HARREL and SCOTT CUMMINGS seem to enjoy themselves atop a signal tower built by Troop 66 of Kempsville.

SCOUTS WILL BE BOYS--This rustic jungle gym proved to be irresistible to Scouts' monkey-like tendencies.

ROPEWORK EXHIBIT--DAVID ORHAN, left, and JERRY MORROW were part of Boy Scout Troop 430's ropework exhibit. The troop is sponsored by Suburban Christian Church.

Boating and Water Safety Clinic

W. S. HYERS, C. G. Auxiliary Flotilla #57 (ctr.), examines a life preserver during a courtesy safety check of the HARVEY SHORT family's boat moments after their return from a trip through waters of Broad Bay.

An estimated 100 boating and water sport enthusiasts travelled to the beaches of the Narrows last Saturday for the second annual "Boating and Water Safety Clinic" sponsored by the Virginia Beach Safety Council.

One of the main attractions of the Clinic was the display by the Navy's Explosive Ordnance Disposal Unit attached to Fort Story. This was the first such display in the Clinic featuring different types of explosive devices which might be found accidentally by the public that could result in serious injury if improperly handled.

Other highlights of the days activities included courtesy safety inspections of privately owned boats to determine the condition and if properly equipped to meet emergencies which might develop during their operation. The inspections were conducted by Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla #57.

The American Red Cross was on hand to explain the organizations various life saving training programs, along with the Virginia Beach Police Marine Unit to outline the Unit's activities in safety patrols of the many waterways of the Virginia Beach.

Men of the Beach Borough Volunteer Rescue Squad placed a portion of their equipment on display to acquaint the public with the unit's activities when they are called upon to respond to medical emergencies which might develop in the city.

These Officers Young

The occasion was the second annual "Mess Night" of the Naval Junior Officer Training Corps Unit from Princess Anne High School. Many of the young cadets brought their dads to the formal dinner.

Howard L. Price is scheduled to return to court June 18 charged with murder in the shooting of Charles W. Davis. Police officials said Price, 22, was charged with allegedly shooting 21-year-old Davis, of the 4900 block of Bonney Road, several times in the head and throat.

The shooting reportedly occurred shortly after midnight last Saturday morning during a fight in Price's home in the 4800 block of Bonney Road.

Garland Jackson; Captain John Ford of Oceana; principals of Princess Anne, First Colonial, Bayside and Kellam; and Captain William Nicklas, program officer for the Fifth Naval District NJROTC.

Highlight of the evening was presentation of the C. E. Caton Excellence Award Trophy to the Virginia Beach Board of Education by Commander C. G. Erb (Ret.), commanding officer of the Princess Anne unit.

Car Hits Girl

Police officials say 6-year-old Ruth Pigg was seriously injured when struck by an auto last Saturday afternoon in the 2200 block of Greenwell Road.

Investigators said the girl, daughter of the Henry E. Pigg's of 2500 block of Pleasure House Road, apparently ran between two parked vehicles into the path of the oncoming car.

Hospital officials said she received multiple injuries in the accident. No charges have been made.

Beach Officer is Best

Virginia Beach police officer J. C. McCormick has been chosen "Policeman Of The Year" by the Virginia Jaycees. McCormick received the award Friday night during dinner at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond. Gov. Linwood Holton was the featured speaker.

McCormick was selected by the Jaycees to receive the award on the basis of his undercover work which resulted in the arrest of a large number of suspected narcotic and/or drug "pushers" in the resort city, as well as an overall evaluation of his performance of police duties.

Highlights of police duties involved in the evaluation included special schools he has completed which improve his professional background, his knowledge of laws applicable to police duties, the method in which he carries out his responsibilities as a law enforcement officer, his contributions to the community through membership in religious, civic and fraternal organizations, in addition to his evaluation as a police officer by his superiors.

McCormick, along with officer H. T. Cobb, was honored in March of this year by the Virginia Beach Jaycees to receive the L. Travis Branch Award. The citing of McCormick and Cobb as Virginia Beach "Policemen Of The Year" was based on their months of undercover work to curtail the flow of illegal narcotics and drugs through the city. This marked the first time in the history of the award that two men were chosen as policemen of the year by the Virginia Beach Jaycees.

"They (the residents of Medicine Home) talk about the bingo games for days afterward and they really look forward to the next one," she said.

Jacobs said the small novelty items sold by the Hyppies are bought from a company that specializes in sales to charitable organizations. "And every penny we receive goes toward the prizes we give," he said.

Prizes usually are articles that can be used by residents of the home such as baby powder, hand lotion, facial tissue, aftershave and perfume.

"It just doesn't seem right that they (the city) should stop us from helping these people," Jacobs said. "Everybody remembers these people at Christmas time, but few come to see them throughout the year."

The youths, aged eight through 17, decided to organize the Hyppies after a trip to the nursing home during the Christmas season. "They came with their church to sing carols and fell in love with one of the people here," said Mrs. Jacobs.

"They decided they wanted to do something to help them."

Jacobs, who acts as the group's "senior treasurer," is uncertain what will eventually happen to bingo night at Medicine Home, but at present "it looks impossible."

"I can't believe the red tape involved," he said. "Especially when you're just trying to help old people."
